Yanks Break Loose on Wide Leyte Front

STRIKE CALLED ON 2 SUBURBAN ROADS TODAY

Thousands of war workers and others employed in essential industries will be among the estimated 75,000 commuters without their regular means of getting to work this morning if 600 employes of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee and the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric railroads carry out a threatened strike at 4 a. m.

Final strike preparations were made at a meeting of 150 employes of the C. A. & E. in Wheaton last night. The employes reiterated their determination to strike, according to union officials who said similar action was taken by employes of the North Shore line at a meeting in Waukegan Wednesday night.

Officials of the Chicago and North Western railroad and J. E. Spencer, Chicago superintendent of the Greyhound Bus Lines said every effort will be made within war imposed limitations to serve suburbanites affected by the strike along the routes. Many towns along the North Shore's Skokie valley route are not served by bus or railroad.

9 Cent Increase Demanded.

The North Western serves many towns on the electric lines and the Burlington railroad is available for Aurora commuters, but does not run thru other C., A. & E. towns. The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad has suburban service in the territory affected.

John Zanger, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and D. D. Miller, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, notified the two electric lines that their members, employed as motormen, collectors, conductors, and switchmen, would walk out unless granted a wage increase of 9 cents an hour. The collectors now receive 80 cents an hour and the others get 92 cents.

A strike originally was called for Sept. 20, but was averted at that time by President Roosevelt's appointment of a special emergency panel to attempt arbitration. The panel consisted of Judge E. B. Rudolph, chairman; W. H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, and Judge E. M. Tipton.

The panel recommended on Oct. 19 that a 5 cent increase should be granted. The railroads were ready to grant the raise on Monday when the unions turned down the proposal and reissued the strike call.

"It seems inconceivable that the many loyal employes of these railroads will strike," said a company statement, "when it is obvious that interference with the operation of either railroad would hinder the war effort.

"Therefore, the two railroads will continue to operate after the hour fixed for the strike to the extent present train service employes will man the trains."

Lt. George Barnes, head of the police labor detail, announced that if employes did report for work, every protection would be given to assure that there will be no interference with operations.

Company officials said the employes have received 14 cents an hour in increases since Jan. 1, 1941, and that an additional 9 cents would make the total one-half cent more than steam railroad employes have been awarded.

Officials of the two electric lines estimated that 125 trains, averaging three cars each, operate daily on the C., A. & E., and 165 on the North Shore. The North Shore trains are manned between Howard st. and the loop by employes of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, who are not involved in the walkout.

Cromwell Cost to Doris Put at $700,000

Reno, Nev., Nov. 9 [Special].—Five years of married life with James H. R. [Jimmy] Cromwell, New Deal politician and former United States minister to Canada, cost Doris Duke Cromwell, tobacco heiress, more than $700,000, it was charged in depositions presented in Judge William McKnight's court today by attorneys for America's richest woman.

Fifty depositions and the testimony of several witnesses, including a bank president, were presented as Mrs. Cromwell reopened her Reno divorce fight of last December. A New Jersey court last May ruled "null and void" the Reno decree secured by Mrs. Cromwell on the ground she was a resident of New Jersey and still the legal wife of Cromwell.

Charge Cromwell Fraud.

Today's testimony, designed to submit additional evidence that Mrs. Cromwell was a bona fide resident of Nevada and to incorporate that evidence in an amended Nevada decree to offset the New Jersey ruling, also charged that Cromwell himself had perpetrated "a sham and a fraud" in claiming he was a resident of New Jersey.

One of the depositions, a statement by William L. Baldwin, Mrs. Cromwell's financial adviser, told of her husband's financial demands during the five years they were married. The Cromwells began a world honeymoon cruise shortly after they were married in February, 1935.

"They had not been gone more than a few days before I received a radiogram from Mrs. Cromwell asking me to deposit a large sum of money with Thomas Cook & Son to cover expenses of the honeymoon trip, which Mr. Cromwell had arranged," said Baldwin's statement. The bride provided more money before the tour ended, said Baldwin.

He Was Embarrassed.

About two years later, Baldwin said, Doris and Jimmy went to his office in New York, where Cromwell said he would "devote his time to traveling with Mrs. Cromwell and writing."

"He stated that, to save him the embarrassment caused by having Mrs. Cromwell pay all their traveling expenses direct and further embarrassment of having to ask Mrs. Cromwell each time for money to defray these expenses, he and she thought some sort of arrangement should be made whereby Mr. Cromwell could have control of certain income," Baldwin related.

Baldwin said he refused to create a trust fund for Jimmy because the latter had lost money in Florida real estate and he feared creditors might attach the income from the proposed trust fund.

It was decided that Doris should bank $10,000 a month for her husband, Baldwin asserted, but a final accounting in May, 1940, when they separated, disclosed that Cromwell had received $426,034.94 from this bank project alone.

Later Doris instructed Baldwin to give Jimmy $50,000, $15,000, and $2,228 to settle the Florida deals, the deposition said, and she also

Claim Chemist Admits Killing Grandmother

Boonville, Mo., Nov. 9 [Special].—Prosecutor Thomas G. Woolsey of Cooper county announced tonight that Edward Jewett Martin, 24, a Charlotte, N. C., chemist, had signed a confession that he killed his wealthy grandmother, Mrs. Edward M. Jewett, 67, of Boonville, the night of May 9.

Woolsey said the confession was received from Martin, held since last May in Durham, N. C., on a first degree murder indictment.

Martin's confession, Woolsey said, told of a quarel between Martin and Mrs. Jewett while they were riding in Mrs. Jewett's car on an inspection of the woman's property in Cooper county. Martin had been drinking, the reported confession said, and Mrs. Jewett objected to his driving while under the influence of liquor.

Fell from Car.

Martin said Mrs. Jewett "interfered" with his driving and in the course of the interference the door on her side of the car flew open and she fell out, injuring her head on the road.

The confession, Woolsey said, then related that Martin backed up the car and ran over Mrs. Jewett. Then, according to Martin's story, the nephew picked up his grandmother's body, which still had some life in it, and placed it on the front seat of the car.

Shortly afterwards Mrs. Jewett died on the front seat, the confession said, and Martin decided to take the body to his mother, Mrs. Lewis Patton in Charlotte. He put it in the trunk of the car and drove to Charlotte, he related, but when he arrived there four days later the body was so decomposed that he dumped it into Eastwood lake, near Durham.

Arrested May 22.

Martin was taken into custody May 22 when a search was started for his missing grandmother.

He was indicted on a first degree murder charge by a Durham county grand jury May 26 while the search for Mrs. Jewett's body was going on. The next day a diver found the woman's body in Eastwood lake, near Durham. It had been weighted by five cinder blocks weighing 25 pounds each.

Mrs. Jewett's will, which was filed for probate June 3 at Boonville, bequeathed a large part of her $100,000 estate to Martin and named him as an executor.

Gov. Forrest Donnell of Missouri signed extradition papers yesterday to bring Martin back from North Carolina for trial. Sheriff G. B. Harlan is on his way there to get him.

YANK GETS THE BILL FOR FREEING PARIS —$1,100 IN HIS CASE

(By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.)

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Nov. 9.—It's costing one American soldier $1,100 for having participated in the liberation of Paris. A jeep driver, he entered the city with newspaper men and press officers who seized the Hotel Scribe as press headquarters. When sniping got hot in the streets, he and several other drivers left their vehicles to take shelter. In their absence several jeeps disappeared. If an officer had ordered the drivers to take shelter, the men would not have been responsible for the vehicles, but in the actual circumstances army regulations require them to pay. One driver lost a jeep and trailer valued at $1,100 and this will be deducted from his pay. He receives only $12 a month after his allotments are sent home, and it will take him almost eight years to discharge the debt. An officer is attempting to obtain review of the case.

JAPS LOSE PLANE WHICH RAIDED PEARL HARBOR

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP).—Radio Tokyo disclosed today that the Japanese flying boat which "surprise raided Pearl Harbor" on March 4, 1942, was shot down during the second battle of the Solomons and all five members of its crew killed.

The Tokyo broadcast, quoting the agency Domei, said the five flyers, all warrant officers, drew posthumous decorations and promotions.

The United States war department, telling of the 1942 raid, said "a single enemy plane dropped several bombs near Honolulu. The bombs were dropped from above the clouds and did no damage."

10c Words Get $2 Meanings at Air Parley

BY CARL WIEGMAN.

English is the official language of the international civil aviation conference now in progress in the Stevens hotel, but much of the English spoken there is a special jargon that leaves a simple layman wondering what it's all about.

For example, there is the word "convention." This has nothing to do with the kind of convention held by the Elks or the American Legion. A convention is a formal agreement, a treaty. Some hairsplitters say there is a difference between a convention and a treaty, but the consensus is that the two words mean about the same thing.

New Kind of Escalator.

Another word with a special meaning at the aviation conference is "escalator." This has nothing to do with ladies' ready-to-wear, shoes and chinaware on the third floor. It simply refers to a clause in the Canadian proposal by which an airline operating with more than 65 per cent pay load would have the right to run additional planes on the same route.

Then there is the term "white paper," a contribution to the language from the United Kingdom. The British government, to simplify the routine of handling official reports, prints them on different colored paper.

A white paper is a document, printed on white paper, explaining British policy on a certain subject. It is available to the public and copies are sold by His Majesty's stationer's office.

What a Plenary Session Is.

Another word that keeps popping up at the conference is "plenary," pronounced with a long "e." A plenary session of the conference is one to which everybody is invited, including the press.

"Innocent passage" is a term that requires explanation because there has been much talk of "freedom of innocent passage." This refers to the theory that civil airplanes should have the right to land any place for refueling, but not to pick up passengers and freight.

Drafters of conference documents rarely use a short word when a long one will do the job. They say "signatories," instead of signers.

A veteran of many international conferences summed it up.

"Some people say that the talk at international conferences is diplomatic cant," he said, "but I call it Mandarin, the language of the government which the people don't understand."

JAPANESE LOSE 35,000; SEND IN FRESH ARMY

Key Hill Seized by U.S. 24th Division.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Nov. 10 [Friday]—(AP).—Veterans of the American 24th division today broke a four day stalemate and drove over storm lashed ridges for "extensive gains on a wide front" four miles south of Leyte's Carigara bay, Gen. MacArthur announced.

The Yanks smashed thru Japanese positions south and east of Limon and seized commanding terrain on a key hill, identified as No. 1525, near the mountain village of Minoro, about six miles east by south of Limon. Minoro lies at the foot of a 517 foot high ridge.

Drive Toward Ormoc.

Under constant shelling and bombing, Ormoc's "usefulness to the enemy as a supply base has been greatly reduced," MacArthur's bulletin said.

MacArthur also reported that the 96th division, which has plunged westward across the mountains from eastern Leyte, destroyed numerous Japanese strongpoints.

"Our patrols," said MacArthur's bulletin, "have penetrated deep into the central mountain range."

Thru Ormoc, Gen. MacArthur said, the Japanese have poured reënforcements into Leyte, thereby replacing an estimated 35,000 men lost in the campaign.

Japan's 16th division—conquerors and torturers of Bataan—has been smashed as a fighting unit and the 35th imperial army has been sent to Leyte, MacArthur said. The fresh troops are pouring into Ormoc, on Leyte's western coast, from Cebu, Mindanao, and other adjacent Philippine Islands.

Massed in Valley.

Most of the enemy's reënforcements are massed in the narrow, ridge bordered valley north of Ormoc, down which the Yanks are driving, but the Americans hold better than a two to one numerical superiority.

American aircraft ranging over thousands of miles from the Solomons to the Philippines destroyed seven enemy aircraft in the skies, 23 on the ground, and probably destroyed seven others in a series of sweeps during the last 24 hours, MacArthur said. One small freighter and a barge were sunk, various small craft destroyed, and numerous buildings, anti-aircraft positions, and supply dumps hit.

Allies Smash U.S. Deserter Mobs in Italy

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 9.—Allied military police in the last week have smashed two criminal gangs largely composed of deserters from the American and Canadian armies and the French Foreign Legion. The military authorities now are seeking other deserters in Rome and Naples who have chosen to be criminals rather than soldiers.

The first step was a military bulletin which placed all civilian restaurants in the two cities out of bounds to all uniformed members of the military forces. Police explained that many of the deserters retain their uniforms or impersonate officers or members of the other allied forces and rely on such restaurants for food. It is hoped the bulletin will drive many of them into the open because of their inability to get food. Regular officers' and enlisted men's messes will not be affected by the new ruling.

House to House Canvass.

In Rome military authorities have begun a house to house canvass of the residential districts which have catered to soldiers seeking temporary living quarters while on leave in Rome.

Today's precautions were set up as the aftermath of the arrest of seven American army deserters who had become members of two gangs in Rome and Naples.

Apprehended with the Americans, who face early courts martial, was a motley assortment of deserters from the Canadian army and French Foreign Legion plus some Spanish and Italian civilians. Military authorities refused to make public the names of the Americans further than to reveal that one gang was led by a 23 year old Pennsylvanian who used the alias "Robert Lane." His organization, known as the Lane gang, contained five other Americans.

Stole Army Vehicles.

It was this criminal ring whose activities were by far the most spectacular. Impersonating officers or soldiers of various allied armies as the occasion warranted, Lane's gangsters acquired an assortment of military vehicles ranging from motorcycles to large trucks. These, with weapons obtained in the same way, were used in robberies in Naples and Rome and in highway holdups on the roads between these cities.

The incident which led to the arrest of the Lane gang came 15 days ago when a Canadian deserter wrecked a stolen jeep on the Naples-Rome highway. Later the same night another Canadian dressed as an American lieutenant and an American staff sergeant, both gang members, came for the jeep and ran into military police guards. When challenged they tried to shoot their way out but were unsuccessful.

Invade Hospital.

Both men were found to be suffering from venereal disease and placed in a local hospital. Next day in a bold attempt to rescue these comrades two other members of the gang dressed as military police and

ARMOR JOINS IN NEW DRIVE; GAINS 4 MILES

Moselle Crossed at Two Points.

(Maps on pages 2 and 3.)

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—The United States 3d army hurled four more divisions today into a major offensive along a 55 mile front in eastern France. The assault by two infantry divisions broke across the Moselle river, 18 miles north of the mighty fortress of Metz as the crack 4th armored division and the 5th infantry roared into battle from the south.

Enemy lines were ripped by more than 1,300 United States heavy bombers, in the first close support on such a big scale since the St. Lo breakthru that opened the battle of France. By sundown the Germans had yet to send a tank into the struggle.

A dozen towns were overrun as Lt. Gen. Patton sent the infantry divisions and the 4th armored—one of the architects of the St. Lo victory—into the spreading battle to join the three infantry outfits that seized 16 towns and 1,000 prisoners in the opening assault on Wednesday.

Arc Faces Saar Basin.

Slogging thru the sleet and rain the 3d army was shaping up an arching line some 35 miles from Saarbrucken, heart of the Saar basin.

Berlin propagandists called the attacks the opening phase of an allied winter offensive. Patton, they said, was bent on outflanking fort girt Metz and crushing the Saar basin. The northern anchor was at Berg, on the west bank of the Moselle, nine miles from the Saar border, and 22 miles northeast of Metz.

While the Germans were offering only moderate resistance and conserving their tanks, several hundred allied medium and fighter bombers following the heavies joined the attack to bring the total sorties to 2,500.

90th Division Strikes.

After the bombers loosed 4,000 tons of anti-personnel bombs on the sleet covered German positions, the veteran 90th division struck for the first time north of Metz. Commanded by Brig. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, the infantry crossed the rain swollen Moselle at two points and seized Koenigsmacher and Haute-Ham, 19 and 18 miles north of Metz and 11 miles from the Saar—70 square miles of coal fields, iron works, and German war plants.

An unidentified division also pushed across a tributary of the Moselle at an undefined point north of Metz, to keep up the pressure on both sides of the city.

Meanwhile the 4th armored, which also had been held in check yesterday, then stormed into the fighting, driving four miles northward to near Delme and Viviers in a dangerous salient 18 miles southeast of Metz and 25 miles south of the Saar frontier.

Cut Across Main Highway.

The 4th armored swept thru the towns of Lemoncourt and Oriocourt and broke across the main highway from Metz to Chateau Salins, a road center 25 miles southeast of Metz.

The 35th infantry division, one of the three in the initial attacks, stepped aside to let the tanks thru, then moved on and seized both towns.

The 5th infantry division, under Maj. Gen. Leroy Irvin, plunged across the Seille river and occupied the town of Cheminot, 10 miles south of Metz.

Three miles east the village of St. Jure fell, as did Phlin and Craincourt, three and six miles farther southeast. Another force took Morville-les-Vic, 1½ miles east of Chateau Salins. Patrols probed into the forest of Chateau Salins where Germans were believed to be holding strong positions.

Small Gains in South.

Farther south, the three infantry divisions which ground out gains of three miles in opening the assaults yesterday—the 26th, 35th, and 80th divisions—were slogging ahead over a sleet covered battlefield.

A front dispatch said small gains were registered on this sector, whose southern end is at Moncourt, 33 miles southeast of Metz.

On the southern end of the western front, the United States 7th

Road Washed Out; 'Buffaloes' Swim

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPOOCAN, Leyte Island, P. I., Nov. 9.—American amphibious tractors can go where no other vehicle can. They proved their mettle today when they found the war on Leyte up to its eyebrows in mud after 18 hours of pouring rain.

Forward elements were running short of food and ammunition after the bottom dropped out of the Carigara-Capoocan road. Ten amphibians—better known as water buffaloes—were called on to deliver supplies. They simply cut across Carigara bay to Capoocan. It was about an hour's trip.

Among the buffaloes' crewmen were Corp. Joseph Bussy and Stanley Grayer of Chicago; Louis Poth, South Bend, Ind., and Everett Beck, Lebanon, Ind.

'Lady Thelma' Lost.

The water buffaloes have made a proud record on Leyte. Two of them supplied an entire battalion for four days, making their own roads thru swamps and over mountains. Others have served as troop carriers and supply trucks—even as tanks.

Only one of the 17 ton, heavily armed vehicles has been knocked out by enemy action in the battalion which brought the main to Capoocan today. This was named Lady Thelma.

Lady Thelma took ammunition to a company which had been pinned down by a Jap machine gun. The company commander told of a machine gun nest up the road and the buffalo's crew volunteered to "go up and have a look."

60 Japs Accounted For.

Her guns mowed down Japs hidden in weeds along the road. She knocked out the machine gun, turned around and started back. It was then that a Jap darted from the weeds and tossed a demolition charge under the amphibian. Lady Thelma was stopped by a broken left track.

For a few hours the buffalo's Yanks beat off waves of attacking Japs. When the infantry came up, 60 enemy bodies were counted. Lady Thelma had made a victorious last stand.

army, driving deeper into the Vosges mountains, captured the village of Les Baraques and fought to within three and a half miles of St. Die.

In a push two miles northeast of Reherry, doughboys on the northern limits of the 7th army front seized Migneville, which is 15 miles southeast of where the 3d army is operating around Moncourt.

Small Gains for 1st Army.

To the north, inside Germany, the United States 1st army lashed out in limited attacks southeast of Aachen. Headquarters reported small gains in the face of heavy enemy pressure south of Vossenack, 13 miles southeast of Aachen, and said Germans still were being cleared from Hurtgen forest west of Schmidt, two miles farther south.

An Associated Press front line dispatch said the battle for southwest Holland ended at dawn today in the winter's first snowfall as allied troops wiped out the last German rear guards south of the Maas river at Moerdijk, seizing 350 prisoners.

Polish troops in the forefront of the last assault arrived at the Moerdijk bridge, one of the longest in Europe, and confirmed R. A. F. reports that two spans had been destroyed by the enemy.

On flooded Walcheren Island, only two pockets of from 100 to 150 Germans remained north of Middleburg.

SNOW ADDS TO HAZARDS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY in France, Nov. 9.—The first heavy snow today gave the pines of the Vosges a picturesque trimming, but also produced the worst possible conditions for conducting the American type of offensive warfare. The Moselle river and its tributaries, swollen by continual rains and now by the snow, were near to overflowing in several places, washing away at least one bridge and threatening others.

The crest line of the Vosges had been touched by snow last week, but widespread storms began today and the foothills and valleys were covered two inches deep. Military traffic toiled the mountain roads cutting their speed to avoid skidding.

Harder for Doughboys.

The snow added more unhappiness and hazard for the doughboys. The footing was slippery, adding to the difficulty of taking cover quickly when the Germans opened fire.

The weather did not bother the enemy nearly as much, because many of his forces are placed in pillboxes and dug-in positions in the forests.

Despite their handicaps the G. I.'s still were pressing toward the Meurthe river line in the St. Die area. That fortress town received some more shells and the Germans responded in kind. The hardships in the projected crossing of the Meurthe were enhanced by the high level of the water in that always swift stream and the whole scheme of forcing thru the Vosges passes onto the Alsatian plain will be more difficult if the snow is high in those defiles.

Shell Gives an Assist.

Pvt. Anthony Mannella, 9018 Baltimore av., Chicago, Ill., told today how German artillery won an assist while he and Sgt. Willis F. Adler of Marysville, Kas., were repairing a telephone line which had been cut by a German shell. Mannella and Adler went 300 yards or more thru enemy fire before they found the break.

"We fixed it," Mannella related, and the sergeant had just asked for the pliers to clip away an excess strand when another shell burst within 10 yards of us. Shell fragments cut away the extra wire. It was close, but at least Adler didn't have to use the pliers."

EISENHOWER PLEDGES TO AID BELGIUM THRU WINTER'S SHORTAGES

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 9 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower told the Belgian parliament today that the allies were fighting "an enemy who understands only one thing—force—and we intend to apply force to the utmost."

The allied supreme commander received an ovation as he entered the packed chamber of deputies to address both houses.

Eisenhower was accompanied by top allied army, navy, and air force commanders, including Lt. Gen. Bradley, Air Chief Marshal Tedder, Adm. Ramsey, and Air Marshal Coningham.

"We are sensible of sacrifices you have made," Eisenhower said, "and as far as possible consistent with military operations I pledge that you will get everything we can bring you. I only ask that you understand we are doing our best."

The general's promise of aid was interpreted as indicating his concern over the current shortage of civilian supplies in Belgium, where the bulk of the people face the prospect of a heatless and hungry winter.

NABS 8 GERMANS IN BASEMENT OF COMMAND POST

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY ON THE MOSELLE RIVER, France, Nov. 8 [Delayed].—During a visit today to the 35th division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Baade Jr., Fort Wayne, Ind., we were shown around by Capt. Lee White, 29, of 1352 Astor st., Chicago, former advertising agency head in the Wrigley building. He visited Malaucourt with us.

En route we met Pvt. John P. Prendergast, 25, of 5718 S. Green st., Chicago, formerly employed with the Wilson Packing company and now a peep driver.

In the town proper—which at that time was almost entirely in our hands—Capt. Leo E. Huff, Altamont, Kas. was telephoning to the rear for an ambulance, more grenades, and more Browning automatic rifle ammunition. Huff had put his command post in one of the first houses in the town and it wasn't until an hour and a half later that he found there were eight Germans in the basement. They were taken prisoner.

U. S. PUTS 10 ON TRIAL IN BRITAIN AS SLAYERS OF 3

LONDON, Nov. 9 [Reuter].—Ten United States Negro soldiers pleaded not guilty today before a general court martial at Thatcham, Berkshire, to a charge of having murdered Mrs. Rose A. Napper and Privates Jacob Anderson and Joseph Coates, military policemen. The prosecuting officer said the 10 men left camp without passes on the night of Oct. 5 and were ordered by two military policemen at Kingsclere to return. They went back, he said, collected ammunition, and returned to Kingsclere. As Anderson and Coates were leaving the Crown hotel, the prosecutor added, a volley of shots fatally wounded them and Mrs. Napper, who operated the hotel.

WOMAN VOTERS TO OUTNUMBER MEN IN FRANCE

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—French women more than 21 years old and qualified by six months' residence in their districts prepared today to register tomorrow. For the first time in French history, they will vote in municipal elections in February, and in national elections when they are held.

At least 3,000,000 more women than men are eligible to vote and 2,000,000 Frenchmen, prisoners, or deportees, won't be here to ballot.

CHICAGO YANKS HELP 3D ARMY HAMMER NAZIS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY ON THE MOSELLE RIVER, Nov. 9.—Among Yanks who today held Jallaucourt, taken yesterday, was Tech. Sgt. William E. Hanna, 2728 S. Kedvale av., Chicago, whose mother lives at 5834 Shields av. Hanna formerly worked in the postoffice and is sergeant major of the 3d battalion of the 137th regiment, 35th division.

Correspondents moving along a road toward Oricourt were accompanied by Lt. Clarence Kreger, Dodge City, Kan., an artillery man of the 137th regiment. They saw long columns of American armor and counted 101 Germans being herded toward the rear.

Yield Without Fight.

The Germans had been captured without a fight in a house just beyond Oricourt. Col. William S. Murray, Nogales, Ariz., a regimental commander who was at Oricourt, said German resistance seemed to have "fallen apart" temporarily.

At Lemoncourt American infantry still was cleaning up the houses. Eight prisoners were taken while the correspondents were there. Several came out with upraised hands clutching allied leaflets promising safe conduct if they would give up.

70 Fire Not a Shot.

Lt. Col. George T. O'Connell of Emporia, Kas., commander of the 2d battalion, 137th regiment, said his men had taken more than 70 prisoners, including four officers, in Lemoncourt without having a shot fired at them.

Pvt. John Prais, 34, of 4432 S. Homan av., Chicago, an ammunition carrier, rugged in a four day beard, was in the town.

IRAN'S PREMIER RESIGNS, TURKISH RADIO ASSERTS

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Premier Mohamed Saed, whose Iranian government has been under attack from Russia for refusing to grant oil concessions to the soviet union, resigned yesterday, the Turkish home radio reported.

The radio, quoting a broadcast from Teheran, said the resignation was accepted by Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, 25, Iran's ruler.

This report came after a dispatch from Moscow said a new strain had been placed on soviet-Iranian relations because police at Teheran broke up a planned celebration of the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution. Announcement of the arrest of officials of the labor union council and other organizations, was published in Moscow.

ELSA KLEIN.

Miss Elsa Klein, 22, of 2648 Mildred st., has been named sweetheart of an army automotive maintenance battalion in New Guinea, she learned yesterday. Her picture was submitted in the contest sponsored by the battalion paper, Round-Up, by her "No. 1 boy friend," Lewis Volk Jr., 23, of 1871 Fremont st., who has been overseas with the battalion for a year. Miss Klein, who models coats for a loop furrier, is 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 123 pounds, and has blue eyes and chestnut brown hair.

HIRED COUPLE LOOT HOME.

Mrs. Betty Zahn, 2754 Wilcox st., told police yesterday that a couple hired to take care of her child had stayed one day and then left with clothing and others items valued at $150.

2 GANGS FORMED BY DESERTERS SEIZED IN ITALY

From the men in custody police learned the whereabouts of the other members and staged a raid on a Rome cafe which was their meeting place. The police arrived just in time to capture several of the gang members in the act of taking an Italian civilian for a one-way ride because he had talked too much after disposing of stolen goods.

Leader Is Captured.

The apprehension of Lane, himself, was equally theatrical. Military police first made a quiet search of his Italian sweetheart's apartment, discovered his picture, made reproductions of it and returned the original without her knowledge.

The photographic reproductions were distributed in Rome and Naples and a three day hunt began with Lane being chased from Rome to Naples and then back to Rome. Here it ended when a police agent saw him enter a cafe, gave him time to order a drink, then arrested him.

In the questioning which followed, military authorities learned that the Lane gang had stolen a car belonging to Lt. Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, commander of the Polish army corps.

Foreign Legion Gang.

The other gang, which included one American deserter, was led by two deserters from the Foreign Legion, both veteran criminals.

Maj. Robert Wilson of Columbus, O., director of investigations for the army in Italy, was instrumental in the capture of both gangs. Lt. Col. Geoffrey White, a British officer, who is deputy Rome provost marshal, said the formation of the gangs is the result of many deserters being stranded in Italy without funds.

"In order to live such men turn to crime, spending their proceeds in the large cities," he said. "Altho these two groups definitely are broken up, there is a strong probability that similar gangs will be formed in Rome or other cities as the war moves on."

SUITCASE STOLEN FROM CAR.

BRITISH TROOPS FIGHT ACROSS CANAL; CLOSE ON FORLI IN ITALY

ROME, Nov. 9 (AP).—British 8th army troops fought across a wide canal forming the eastern boundary of Forli air field and advanced to within 500 yards of the village of Bussecchio, a mile southeast of Forli, it was announced today.

Fighting was reported in progress for the extreme northern end of the Forli air field, with British infantry and tanks meeting Nazi infantry supported by 60 ton Tiger tanks.

Other allied troops advanced up a secondary road leading into Forli from the south. Especially heavy fighting took place between Grisignano and San Martino before San Martino was captured and allied infantry pushed on within two miles of Forli's southern outskirts.

Polish troops, driving in on Forli from the north, captured Dovodola after stiff street fighting and tonight were moving into hills northwest of the town.

Losses to U-Boats Last Month Lowest of War

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—German submarine activity in October was materially lower than in any other month of the war, an Anglo-American government statement said tonight. The statement said: "The number of united nation's merchant vessels sunk by German submarines during the month was the lowest of any month of the entire war."

LONDON POLES REJECT STALIN BORDERS DEALS

Demand Guarantees for Independence.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Polish government in London has refused to accept the settlement of its eastern boundary demanded by Marshal Stalin and approved by Prime Minister Churchill without an agreement on the western border and a guarantee that Poland's independence would be respected within the new frontiers. Stalin had demanded that the Curzon line be accepted as the eastern boundary.

[The Curzon line would push Poland's eastern border about 160 miles westward. It extends generally from Grodno thru Bialystok south to the Bug river and Brest Litovsk, thence to the Carpathian mountains.]

Decision Reported Unanimous.

The exiled government's decision was unanimous and it would appear to be supported firmly by Polish opinion here.

Thus it seems that the Polish problem will be the major political question to be considered at the three-power meeting which London expects to be held within a few weeks, as it was at the recent Moscow meeting of Prime Minister Churchill and Stalin.

Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the exiled Poles saw Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden in the last week and presumably told them of the cabinet's views. With the American election over, the decision probably will be passed on to President Roosevelt by Jan Ciechanowski, ambassador in Washington.

Altho Stalin was insistent during the Moscow conversations that the Curzon line adjustment should give Lwow and the eastern Galician oil fields to Russia, the Poles have not given up hope of retaining that territory.

The feeling in the Polish government at the moment is against pushing the western frontier to the Oder river, as proposed by Stalin, if they can have Lwow. If not, however, they are prepared to accept that German territory with its attendant problems.

[A Bern, Switzerland, broadcast said the London Poles were ready to accept the Curzon line with a modification that would put the city of Lwow inside the new borders of Poland.]

New Factors Stiffen Stand.

The Polish attitude both in and out of the government has stiffened considerably against accepting the Curzon line since Mikolajczyk returned from Moscow. Factors in shaping this new attitude have been Russian reaction to Iran's refusal to grant oil concessions and her rejection of Switzerland's request for diplomatic relations.

The Poles here believe that the first shows they cannot hope for independence from Russia, no matter what concessions they make, and that the second indicates the same lack of good will to small nations as Russia has shown toward Poland during the attempts to reach a settlement.

Stettinius Declines Comment.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9.—Undersecretary of State Stettinius declined to comment on the story that the Polish government in London had submitted a plan for the guarantee of Polish independence.

De Valera Tells of Reply to War Criminal Notes

ASSASSINATION OF HIGH BRITON PROBED BY EGYPT

Takes Over Inquiry on Jewish Gunmen.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Egyptian government today took over an investigation of two Jewish terrorists accused of assassinating Walter E. Guinness [Lord Moyne], British minister of state resident in the middle east.

[Foreign Secretary Eden said in commons yesterday the assassins gave the names of Moshe Cohen Itzhak and Chaim Saltzmann, members of the Stern group of Jewish terrorists, and that they singled out Guinness because he was carrying out a policy against Jewish nationals. Eden said the government would consider publishing a white paper dealing with terrorism in Palestine.]

The Stern organization, which Cairo police assert ordered the assassination, is a group of Jewish nationalists who employ the methods of American gangsters for allegedly patriotic reasons.

Opposed by Zionists.

Its Hebrew name means "fighters for the freedom of Israel," and its professed obective is to secure Palestine as a national home for Jews. British intelligence believes fewer than 400 men belong.

Its strongest opponents are Zionist and other Jewish groups, who also want to make Palestine a Hebrew state.

A few hours after Guinness was shot down Monday, J. J. Giltin, Zionist official, declared, "the Zionist council takes this opportunity to state that every responsible, reputable section of world Jewry views with abhorrence the activities of these terrorists."

[Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish agency for Palestine, in a letter to Prime Minister Churchill made public in London last night deploring "political crimes of this kind," said, "I can assure you that Palestine Jewry will go to the utmost limit of its power to cut out, root and branch, this evil from its midst."]

Stern Slain Last Year.

Abraham Stern, for whom the terrorist organization was named, was shot thru the head by unknown killers after police seized him in Haifa last year.

An ultra-Nationalist, Stern was even more radical than Vladimer Jabotinsky, with whom he broke in 1939 when the latter ordered a suspension of terrorism for the duration of the war.

With that split a crime wave broke over Palestine, buildings in Jerusalem were dynamited and wealthy Jews were kidnapped or forced to pay for "protection." It ebbed when the Germans threatened Alexandria, but broke again when this drive was smashed.

BELGIAN AIR OFFICER WHO ESCAPED TWICE IS A CHICAGO VISITOR

Gaston De Gerlache, 25, a Belgian flying officer with the British royal air force, who escaped from German and Spanish custody during the war, is spending a leave at the Edgewater Beach hotel. De Gerlache, whose father was a famous Belgian explorer and headed an Antarctic expedition in 1897, served the British intelligence thru the Belgian underground system after escaping from a camp in Germany where he was held for six months in 1940. It took him eight months, he said, to reach England via Spain, Portugal, and Gibraltar after he left Belgium in September, 1942. During this period he was interned in Spain for six months before escaping. He will return to duty in England soon.

RUSSIANS BREAK GERMAN LINE ON 40 MILE FRONT

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—Russian troops, in a new threat to besieged Budapest from the northeast, broke the Germans' middle Tisza river line on a 40 mile front today and advanced 17 miles to within a mile of the Budapest-East Slovakian railway, Moscow announced tonight.

A soviet bulletin also said the 2d Ukraine army had killed more than 100,000 Germans and Hungarians and had captured 42,160 between Oct. 6 and Nov. 6.

Berlin implied that the Russians had cut the Budapest-East Slovakian railway, a development that might force the Germans to begin a withdrawal into central Czechoslovakia and hasten the fall of Budapest.

Push Beyond River.

At the top of a front moving westward the Russians took a town eight miles beyond the Tisza and 15 miles southeast of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth city.

In a wide encircling move on Budapest other soviet troops were reported by Berlin to have crossed the Danube river at Dunafoldvar, 43 miles south of Budapest, whose defenders still were holding the Russians at the southern rim of the city.

In Yugoslavia, according to a Berlin bulletin, the 3d Ukraine army crossed the Danube at Apatin, 15 miles south of the Hungarian frontier.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

Germany's war summary said yesterday:

"Strumica valley [Yugoslavia] was evacuated according to plan in the course of our operations in the Balkans.

"German and Hungarian flak in joint action with bombers effectively participated in fights southeast of the Hungarian capital. The enemy who had advanced as far as Mezoekoevesd was intercepted in counterthrusts opened by our troops north of the central Tisza."

6 JAP COLUMNS DRIVE TO CIRCLE CHINA RAIL TOWN

Nearest Force 15 Miles from Liuchow.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Japanese, redoubling their drive to wipe out American air power in south China, rolled up today to within 15 miles of Liuchow—Chinese stronghold and railway center in Kwangsi province—and steadily were encircling the city.

The Chinese high command said that the closest column, moving down from the north, was only 15 miles away, but the peril from other directions appeared almost equal. A companion column struck to Liucheng, railway town.

Reach Town of Loyung.

The fall of Liuchow would be a heavy blow to the Chinese defenses, for mainly along the railway to Kweichow province lies safety in retreat and hope of reinforcements.

Japanese driving down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway were conceded to have reached the outskirts of Loyung, 20 miles northeast of Liuchow.

[The Japanese agency Domei said forces seizing Loyung had pressed on and were now "launching an attack against the outer defense positions located in the northeastern sector of Liuchow."]

Further advances also were scored by a Japanese force pressing westward from Hsiujen, 47 miles east of Liuchow, and by another swinging up from Mosun, 45 miles southeast.

A 15 mile advance was scored by a Japanese force which drove to within six miles of Laipin, southwest of Liuchow, in an attempt to cut the railway from Liuchow to Yungning.

Fight in Kweilin Suburbs.

Ninety-five miles northeast of Liuchow the Japanese were beaten back in five tank led assaults on encircled Kweilin, like Liuchow a former American air base.

Chinese military authorities said the Japanese had used "large quantities" of poison gas in an effort to win Kweilin.

JAPS BOLSTER AIR STRENGTH IN PHILIPPINES

At A LEYTE AIR BASE, Philippines, Nov. 8 [Delayed]—(AP).—From all indications the Japanese are rushing considerable air strength into the Philippines from Chinese and Japanese bases in an attempt to break the American stranglehold on Leyte, say American pilots fighting them.

Many types of Japanese planes from radial-engined Oscar fighter-bombers to twin-engine heavy bombers have been encountered in the hectic days since American army fighters took over the job of air cover from the navy.

MARIE ROSE LACOMBE.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 9 [Special].—Marie Rose Lacombe, 14 years old, whose beaten body was found near the Salem High school football field yesterday, was last seen alive with a tall youth at 8:30 p. m. Sunday, investigators learned today after interviewing her student friends. Police Lt. Raymond E. Foley said the two were seen walking away from the Salem bus terminal in the direction which could have taken her to the athletic field.

Chester R. Arnold, high school principal, canceled a school assembly scheduled for this morning to permit authorities to appeal for information which might aid in solving the crime. Instead individual questioning was started.

Dr. Alan Moritiz, state pathologist, reported an autopsy showed three blows which fractured the girl's skull caused death. She also had been raped.

The body was found about a mile and a half from where the mutilated body of Frances Cochran, 19, of Lynn, was discovered in 1941. The Cochran slaying has never been solved.

THIRD ALLIED WEDGE DRIVEN IN NORTH BURMA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 9 (AP).—The allies, campaigning to open a land route to China have driven a third prong into Japanese held territory in northern Burma, the allied command announced today. It said they had crossed the Irrawaddy river midway between Bhamo and Katha and were threatening to outflank both of those enemy strongholds.

Chinese troops carried out the new drive, occupying Shwegu, on a cliff on the south bank of the Irrawaddy.

In an advance southeastward from the Tiddim area in northwest Burma, troops of the Indian 5th division captured Fort White.

HOMES WRECKED AS ROBOT BOMBS STRIKE ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—A flurry of robot bombs which kept southern England anti-aircraft and fighter defenses busy during the night and killed at least five persons stirred speculation today that the Nazis have established new launching sites in northern Holland.

The German radio again declared that the "flying telegraph pole" long range rocket V-2, was being used against England.

Blast damage to houses was heavy over a wide area. Rescue work continued all night.

"England and other far distant objectives are to be bombarded on an increased scale," Transocean, Nazi propaganda agency, declared.

Britain Backs Dutch Claim for a Slice of Germany

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP).—The Netherlands government has informed Britain it reserves the right to claim a "suitable part" of adjoining Prussia in compensation for damage caused by the Germans in Holland, Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told commons today. There were cheers when he said Britain would give "energetic support" to just claims.

VELOCITY WARFARE ONLY AT BEGINNING STAGE, EXPERTS HOLD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 [Special].—The world is seeing only the beginning of velocity warfare and no one can afford to smile at the thought of robot bombs capable of ranges of thousands of miles, an editorial in Army Ordnance, official publication of the Army Ordnance association, will say tomorrow.

"Electronics, atomic energies, rockets, jet propulsion, to say nothing of metallurgical, chemical, and plastic progress, all pave the way to realms of research formerly unknown to the artillerist and tactician and even now unpredictable to the scientist," the editorial continues.

In view of these facts, it was added, the foundation of the country's security rests upon our proficiency in ordnance research and upon our industrial strength "ready for instantaneous use." The editorial goes on to question the need "or desirability" for establishment of vast governmental enterprises for weapon research. "The answer is in the hands of private research and educational organizations coöperating with the time honored experience and engineering direction of the ordnance department of the army," says the publication.

FOUND: COLDEST AIR BASE; WATER FLOWS AT −40°

'Trees' Six Inches High; Glacier Perils Road.

BY FRANK STURDY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. AIR BASE, Coral Harbor, Southampton Island, Canada, Nov. 9.—When the soldiers at the army air base here return home, they will be able to strike the neighbors popeyed with tales of some pretty strange things on Southampton Island in northern Hudson bay.

As post engineer, Lt. Robert B. Mullins of Los Angeles, Cal., has acquired an interesting fund of information about the island's oddities.

Altho only 250 miles from the arctic circle, the island has some swampy areas. The peculiar thing about them is that they never freeze, even when the rest of the island is a sheet of snow drifted ice and the temperature is 30 or 40 below zero and has been there for months.

Shallow Frost Line.

The ground rarely thaws to a depth of more than a foot. There are places where Lt. Mullins has been able to drive a drill only a few feet before being stopped by rock and ice. Yet, a short distance away, the ground seemed to be a mere shell, a bottomless void. Mullins' drill penetrated easily, then dropped out of sight. He never recovered it.

A short service road near the base, which has the only roads on the island, is being approached by a small glacier. Winter and summer, it moves imperceptibly forward. Eventually, the glacier will cut off the road.

There are a great many small lakes near the base, some as deep as 14 feet. Two are connected by a small rivulet. They now have 12 inches of ice on their surfaces, but the rivulet, only 4 inches deep, remains liquid. These two lakes, Mullins says, will freeze to the bottom this winter, but the rivulet will not.

Coldest Spot on Earth.

Accurate records of weather on the island do not exist. The island had no inhabitants except Eskimos until the army built the airport two years ago. The coldest temperature Mullins has heard of on the island was 66 below zero and the warmest 70 above. Lower temperatures have been recorded in other inhabited parts of the world, but, says Sgt. Russell H. Williams, forecaster at the base, Southampton has a lower average temperature thruout the winter than any other place on the globe where readings are reported.

There is not a tree on the land. Botanists have identified types of weedy plants that cover the rocky ground in the summer, Mullin says, but they grow to a height of only 6 inches and all look alike to the soldiers.

If there were any reason to do it, the whole surface of the island could be paved with comparative ease. When the army started construction of the airport, machinery for digging and paving the surface was brought in that never was used, because thet engineers discovered the surface was almost all limestone shale, with gravel of various convenient sizes in several places. All they had to do was gather it, roll it smooth, and wet it down. The stuff set like concrete.

Eskimos Hunt Bears.

This is polar bear country. The animals are hunted by the Eskimos. Tiny cracks have been seen near-by and Mullins thinks they may have been made by lemmings, altho no one has ever seen one.

Lt. Mullins had driven a jeep to the Hudson Bay post a few days before our arrival in the weekly supply airplane. It was the first time the trip had been made in any kind of wheeled vehicle. He offered to drive over again to give the pilot, Capt. George Frank of the air transport command, the co-pilot, Lt. Gerald Neville, and me an opportunity to see the store and inspect the village.

We got up at 5 a. m. There were a few soldiers in the mess hall when we stopped there for hot coffee. They were listening to a phonograph from which came softly the nostalgic song, "I'll be seeing you in all the old, familiar places. . . ."

Hang On, Boys!

For the first three miles the jeep made fast time over the road from the base to the cove where supply ships are unloaded and cargo brought ashore in summer. At this point, Lt. Mullins shifted into low gear, said "Hang on," and started across country.

The jeep skittered over the washboard-like frozen ground, gears whining. Mullins tried to follow the tracks made on his first trip but these showed only at long intervals. At times just crawling, Mullins drove a twisting course around boulders as big as the jeep. We did not go over any larger than basketballs.

There was only seven minutes of this, but when we came to a small lake and Mullins started across the smooth ice our relief was so great we were not much concerned when he said:

"This was strong enough to hold me up on the last ride. I don't think it has thawed."

Mullins slowed down at the far shore, got into low gear, and lunged the car up the rocky bank. After that we bounced and knocked over hundreds more acres of boulders. They seemed to grow out of the ground like wheat.

Long Way Around.

Finally, Mullins pointed out the Bay post and the village. It was only a half mile away, but he was forced to drive at least a mile and a half in order to find a way thru drifts, rocks and over more lakes before we reached it. We had covered about four miles in 35 minutes.

A Mr. Browning, whose wife is the only white woman on the island, is manager of the post. He took us to the unheated store of one story with a storage loft, about 30 feet long and 15 feet wide. The shelves were stocked with staples for the Eskimos: tea, candy, sugar, matches, canned milk, pins and needles, syrups, tinned butter, knives, axes and other hardware, cheap calico dresses and yard goods for the petticoats the Eskimo women wear in large numbers, ammunition, and other items by the score.

We all bought pairs of the famous Hudson Bay blankets, which have been unobtainable in stores in Canadian cities for a long time. Browning said he could not supply the demand by soldiers.

"I have to keep enough to take care of the Eskimos, you know," he said.

Eskimos in the village and in other parts of the island make small workable harpoons, complete with bone-socketed joints and steel tips, walrus tusk carvings, miniature skin boats, and a few other samples of their handiwork for Browning, who resells them to the soldiers.

Headed by Prince.

The Coral Harbor Eskimo village is a collection of a dozen small dwellings, some of them of wood. The others are tents with board sidings. The Eskimos will stay in those that are warm enough thruout the winter. Others will build igloos.

John Ell, an Eskimo brought up by a missionary, is the acknowledged leader of the island's natives, a sort of prince. His domain is about 190 miles from north to south and 210 miles from east to west.

Few of the other Eskimos know any English, altho they are picking up a few words from the soldiers.

The soldiers are quite willing, however, to keep their relations with the Eskimos on a friendly but distant basis, as the Eskimo habits of housekeeping and hygiene are strikingly informal and completely casual. Their houses and igloos produce a conglomerate odor that is remarkable for carrying power, and in their associations with them the soldiers try to keep on the upwind side.

FRENCH EXECUTE PARIS EDITOR FOR BEING COLLABORATOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Georges Suarez, editor of the newspaper Aujourd'hui during the German occupation, was executed at 7:53 o'clock this morning at Montrouge fort on the southern outskirts of Paris by a firing squad of 12 men commanded by a member of the French Forces of the Interior. The first "collaborator" to be executed in Paris was driven into the fort in a windowless police car. Only three minutes elapsed between the time the editor stepped from the police car and the time when his body was lifted from the ground.

Sentenced to death upon his conviction Oct. 23 of treason and intelligence with the enemy by the new court of justice, Suarez's appeal was rejected a fortnight later. His execution came one day after Gen. De Gaulle had refused to grant his plea for mercy.

PUT WAR FIRST GEN. DE GAULLE WARNS FRANCE

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Addressing the consultative assembly, Gen. De Gaulle, head of the provisional French government, said today that to regain its former position France must forget her internal quarrels and concentrate on winning the war.

"It is only on the battlefield and with an immense effort that our nation will be reborn," he said.

He said that apart from the overweening ambition of the German people, the breakdown of the social, political, and moral system of Europe was responsible for the conflict.

Elections Promised.

He promised elections in France as soon as possible, and asserted the constitution of his consultative assembly in Paris marked a new phase in the restoration of democracy in France. The assembly will act as France's legislature until elections are held.

With Leon Blum, its leader, a prisoner in Germany, the Socialist party began a four day convention here to fix policies.

"A new society of nations is necessary," Daniel Mayer, general secretary, told the party. "Economic problems must be solved on an international basis. The peace treaty must impose the destruction of the Nazis. The junker must also be suppressed, the Rhineland chemical industries must be nationalized, and German school books subjected to international control. Then, willingly or by force, the German people should have a place in the society of nations."

Red Alliance Invited.

Discussing a proposed alliance between the Socialist and Communist parties, Mayer said that if such an alliance had not been consummated it was not the fault of the Socialists. "The Communists must have their place in the country," he said.

Amid applause, Mayer added that Socialist ranks must be cleaned out of all who had sympathized or worked with the Petain government.

FLYING SLEUTHS IN R. A. F. TRAP SMUGGLING RING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Flying detectives in royal airforce uniforms, it was reported tonight, have broken the back of a big air smuggling ring. Swiss watches, jewelry, and many other articles had been smuggled from the Mediterranean into Britain in service planes.

Following an investigation in Gibralter, North Africa, and the Azores, a number of suspects have been trapped.

Military police of Paris and Brussels have been ordered to seize British and other allied service men engaged in a racket in black market currency.

CHURCHILL SAYS F.D.R.'S ELECTION HASTENS PARLEY

Asserts It's High Time Final Blow Is Planned.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The reelection of President Roosevelt has vastly improved the prospects of another and early meeting of American, British, and soviet war leaders to plan the final onslaught to smash Germany and restore peace to Europe next year, Prime Minister Churchill said today.

The prime minister told guests at a Mansion house banquet to celebrate the appointment of Frank Alexander as the new lord mayor of London it was "high time" such a meeting was held. He asserted it "might easily bridge the suffering of mankind and stop the fearful process of destruction now ravaging the earth."

[A London dispatch said Marshal Stalin of Russia had been invited to London for talks with Churchill and President Roosevelt, but seemed reluctant to accept. It was believed the meeting might take place in the middle east, the dispatch said.]

Covers Old Ground.

Churchill warned that it would take the fullest exertions of the three powers and further great operations to crush enemy resistance, but said none can be blamed for "hoping that victory may come to the allies and peace to Europe in 1945."

He said the operations in Italy, Holland, and Belgium had cost the British and Canadians "very heavy losses" and in a discussion of military events covered much the same ground as in his recent war review for parliament.

Churchill devoted much of his speech to the outcome of the elections in the United States, tho warning his listeners that "we must be very careful to avoid mixing ourselves in American political affairs."

He thanked the members of parliament, British newspapers, and public men for their ordered restraint in preelection comments and expressed gratitude to the American political parties for the "manner in which the interests of the allies and the prosecution of the war had been held high above that of partisanship."

Hails Dewey Sportsmanship.

Churchill paid tribute to Dewey for the "sportsmanlike manner" in which he had congratulated President Roosevelt. Churchill said Britain had within the Republican party "vast numbers of friends and well wishers," but added that the President's reelection gave him great personal joy.

"However we may regret it," Churchill continued, "it seems almost certain this old island will have in a 1945" general election. He added that he was confident such an election would not destroy war time unity.

JAPS 'OFFENDED' BY STALIN TALK OF AGGRESSION

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP).—Premier Stalin's speech last week in which he branded Japan an "aggressor nation," surprised and offended the Japanese people, Domei, Japanese news agency, reported today in a radio broadcast. The broadcast said that the Russian premier's address has become the "central topic of discussion of all Japan, but government circles are refraining from making any comments."

Japanese propagandists reiterated their theme that Japan was fighting the war to "free the peoples of greater east Asia from the imperialism of America and Britain."

The Domei broadcast added that "it is naturally expected that the foreign policy of Russia will change as new situations demand. Consequently, it is the firm belief of the Japanese general public that Japan must also adopt a realistic policy which will conform with any new situation created by the Russians."

F. D. R. PONDERS FRANCE TRIP TO VISIT DE GAULLE

Parade in Washington Scheduled Today.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard Presidential Special, Nov. 9.—Speeding back to Washington, President Roosevelt tonight was reported to be seriously considering an early acceptance of Gen. De Gaulle's recent invitation to visit Paris.

There was no official confirmation of this report as Mr. Roosevelt left his Hudson river home and boarded his special train which will arrive in Washington at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow where local officials are said to have prepared a "spontaneous" demonstration for the fourth term victor.

Churchill Also Invited.

But the President's known flair for the spectacular and his love for playing historic roles make him eager for the trip to France, it was said. Fresh from a precedent smashing electoral success, he would be making a triumphant appearance before a liberated people who could be expected to give him a tumultuous reception.

The President has been urged to make the trip as a gesture of moral support to Gen. De Gaulle whose provisional government is having its troubles with the national council of resistance, supported by the Communists. Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Eden have been invited to Paris and will go soon.

Hull in Hospital.

Secretary of State Hull was also invited to go with the President but the state of his health will probably make that impossible. In fact, one of the first tasks confronting Mr. Roosevelt upon his return to a desk piled high with unfinished business, will be to clarify the situation brought about by Hull's illness.

The ageing secretary has been absent from his desk for five weeks. His stay in the naval hospital at Bethesda, Md., has been officially designated a "physical check-up" but Hull has been authoratively reported as stating he would be unable to return to his strenuous duties.

Truman Flies East.

RED OFFICIAL IN BUCHAREST.

MOSCOW, Nov. 9 [AP].—Andrei Vishinsky, soviet vice commissar of foreign affairs, arrived in Bucharest today to check on steps taken by the Romanian government to fulfill the terms of the armistice.

FRENCH SHY AT WEST EUROPEAN BLOC OF NATIONS

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Discussion in French diplomatic and political circles tonight indicated that Gen. De Gaulle's government would resist suggestions from London that a bloc of western European nations be set up after the war. The plan has been discussed in connection with an invitation to Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Eden of Britain, and President Roosevelt to visit Paris.

[A dispatch from London to the Associated Press said a British foreign office spokesman, when asked whether Churchill and Eden would be accompanied to Paris by other officials, replied, "No, unless President Roosevelt goes along."]

Eden Makes First Move.

Eden has taken up the matter of forming a bloc of nations with Foreign Minister Spaak of Belgium. As reported in the French press, the British scheme is to establish France, Britain, Holland, and Belgium as the nucleus of the bloc.

Diplomatic circles said the French position is that such a bloc could only form a part of and fit into a larger and international setup.

De Gaulle asserted two weeks ago he was opposed to formation of any western European bloc that would be opposed to countries to the east.

French policy, it was said, seeks to bring about understanding among France, Britain, the United States, and Russia to the extent that the United States would take an interest in European politics. This would require a unity of views on principal European problems and it has been asked how such an understanding be realized.

Alternate Plan Seen.

French diplomatic circles hint that, failing to draw in the United States, the British, French, and Russians might conclude a new alliance or the Anglo-Russian treaty of 1941 might be extended to include France.

What the French want, it is stressed, is an international organization in which all nations would participate.

Some kind of regional arrangement among states that have the same geographical, economic, and political problems, it is declared, might cause the French to listen to British proposals for closer union among Britain, France, Belgium, and Holland.

FRENCH REDS SEE OWN POSITION AS STRONGER WITH F. D. R. ELECTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Left wing elements—which, since the liberation of France, have been in overwhelming majority here—see their own position, which would have been jeopardized by Gov. Dewey's election, greatly strengthened by America's choice of President Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Jacques Duclos, secretary of the French Communist party, writing in the Red newspaper L'Humanite, today said:

"The election of Mr. Roosevelt was a victory for democracy and a stinging defeat for all champions of personal power. The French Communist party is certain it interprets the feeling of the entire French nation when it hails in the election of Mr. Roosevelt an important step on the road that is leading up to a victory of the liberty loving peoples over Fascist barbarity. The Communist party sees the certainty of a free and democratic France entering the circle of great nations."

BAD NEWS!

ALONG with all the good news of victories abroad, comes some very bad news here at home.

That can mean just one thing! Too many of us are letting the good news GO TO OUR HEADS. Too many believe that, with the collapse of Germany, we can relax.

Don't these people know that the battle of Germany is just one chapter in this global war—and that we still have a long, tough road to travel in the East?

* * *

Even the TOTAL DEFEAT OF GERMANY can't help us one bit as far as the fat situation is concerned. And for a specific reason: IT'S THE JAPS WHO HAVE OUR FATS.

Our fat shortage troubles began when Japan moved into the Pacific areas and cut us off from ONE BILLION POUNDS of fats and oils we used to import every year. The Japs are still there—and we're still cut off!

* * *

So we must continue saving used fats to help make up that loss. To help make the munitions, synthetic rubber, medicines, soaps and other materials needed to finish the war. WE MUST SAVE EVEN HARDER THAN EVER. So let's get busy and send the fat collections climbing up all across America! THE NEED IS SO URGENT, our government gives you 4¢ and 2 free red points for every pound saved!

SO KEEP SAVING USED FATS UNTIL V-J DAY—the day when we can celebrate final victory over our last and toughest enemy—Japan.

URUGUAY URGES REVIVAL OF OLD WORLD LEAGUE

Gives It Preference Over Dumbarton Oaks Plan.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—The first official criticism of the Dumbarton Oaks world security plan by a small nation came today from Uruguay, which proposed instead that the league of nations be revitalized.

Uruguayan Ambassador Juan Carlos Blanco presented the proposal to the other American republics at a meeting of Latin American diplomats with Acting Secretary of State Stettinius. The session was the third to be held on the general subject of Dumbarton Oaks accomplishments.

Uruguay asserted it would be advantageous to conserve the old league with reforms to strengthen its military, political, and judicial power. If that is impossible, Uruguay said, then guarantees for small nations should be incorporated in any new organization to preserve the world's peace.

League Fate in Doubt.

What to do about the league was one of the questions left unanswered by the big four at Dumbarton Oaks. It still lives in theory, altho it stopped acting as a clearing house for international conflicts when the war spread over Europe in 1939.

Absent from today's diplomatic conference were Argentina and San Salvador, whose present governments are not recognized by Washington.

Following the meeting of diplomats, Stettinius said that it had been "a fruitful discussion."

"We are encouraged by the support that the American republics are showing for the basic ideas embodied in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals," Stettinius said. "We received assurances today that all the American republics are giving careful study to the proposals and are going to bring their comments to the group."

Suggests Specific Rules.

The council of the world organization should have specific rules to guarantee the rights of small nations, Uruguay asserted. These possible rules were suggested:

1. Requiring special majorities for important decisions.

2. According nations not represented on the council the right to have "voice but not vote" in council deliberations directly concerning them.

3. Specifying beforehand the precise powers of nations on the executive council "which will be elected by the assembly."

4. Fixing the number of nations on the council "in order to avoid any contingencies contrary to the rights and personalities of the small nations."

Find Peoria War Veteran Dead in Gas Filled Home

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 9 [Special].—Stanley R. Kimble, 22, an honorably discharged veteran of the army air corps, was found dead in his gas filled home today with four gas jets in a stove open.

Royal Divorce

PRINCESS ROSTISLAV.

Princess Alexandra Romanoff, 35, of 37 E. Schiller st., obtained a divorce in Superior court yesterday from Prince Rostislav Romanoff, 40, nephew of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia.

The princess, who operates a dress shop under the name of Princess Rostislav, charged her husband with cruelty. She told Judge John A. Sbarbaro that on Oct. 31 she invited her brother to stay for dinner, and the prince objected that "he did not want company" and struck her. Later in the evening they played gin rummy, she said, and Rostislav became angry and twisted her arm.

They were married in Chicago in 1928 in Holy Trinity Orthodox church. In 1939 they formed a real estate firm in Lake Forest. Attorneys Thomas I. Underwood, representing the princess, and Preston Bolden, for the prince, said there was an out of court settlement.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. VICTORS GAIN IN TARDY RETURNS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans slowly forged farther ahead in the close races for state offices yesterday as party leaders pondered means of strengthening their organization for the future.

The Illinois legislature became more safely Republican as late returns filtered in. In the house, where 77 members is a bare majority, the G. O. P. climbed up to 78, seven short of the majority held at the close of the 1943 session. In the senate a two-thirds majority of 34 was attained—sufficient for passage of emergency legislation.

Gov. Green, whose majority of 64,030 assured him of another four years in office, watched the returns in Springfield on other races. He and Sen. Brooks pointed out that the Democratic landslide of 1936 was followed two years later by a strong Republican comeback.

Recount Talk Squelched.

State's Atty. Courtney squelched rumors that he would seek a recount by writing to Green: "Accept my heartiest congratulations on your victory and at the same time permit me to extend every good wish for success in your administration."

Marine Sgt. Edward J. Barrett, Democrat, who was elected secretary of state, said he expected to receive a medical discharge so he can take office in January along with other statehouse winners. He is in the Great Lakes naval training center hospital for a physical checkup. A veteran of World War I., he has undergone two major operations during his 20 months in service in this war.

The fat patronage office of secretary of state was irretrievably lost by the Republicans as a result of Barrett piling up a lead of 121,022 votes with 192 precincts missing. His opponent, Arnold B. Benson of Batavia, retired as senate majority leader in the Illinois general assembly to make the race.

Becker's Margin 13,836.

For state treasurer, Conrad F. Becker, Republican, of Red Bud, inched ahead of Earl W. Merritt, Democrat, of Salem. With 84 precincts missing, Becker's majority rose to 13,836.

Lt. Gov. Hugh W. Cross, Republican, gained a more comfortable lead over Edward C. [Ted] Hunter of Rockford, Democrat. With 81 precincts missing Cross's lead was 22,565.

Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett, Republican, reached a lead of 44,195 over Sveinbjorn Johnson, Democrat, of Champaign, former counsel for the University of Illinois. There were 82 precincts missing, likely to increase Barrett's majority.

State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder, Republican, was 37,853 votes ahead of William Vicars, Democrat, of Pontiac, who retired as minority leader of the Illinois house of representatives. There were 86 missing precincts in this contest.

As missing precincts were found, the Republican vote for President and United States senator rose slightly. Dewey was 142,384 votes behind Mr. Roosevelt for President and Richard J. Lyons, Republican, was 209,837 votes behind Sen. Lucas. Only 25 precincts, most of them in Cook county suburbs, remained to be heard from.

Mr. Roosevelt's vote of 2,076,967 topped that of all other candidates in Illinois. Lucas was next with 2,055,567, and Secretary of State-elect Barrett third with 2,005,548. Gov. Green headed Republican vote-getters with 2,001,668.

Brodie High in County.

In Cook county Coroner A. L. Brodie [D.] was high man except for the President and Sen. Lucas, with 1,239,038. John T. Dempsey, G. O. P. nominee for state's attorney,, topped Republican state and county candidates with 1,000,016.

Power of the Democratic machine, reinforced by the CIO political action committee, was shown by the straight ballots cast. In Chicago, 48.5 per cent of all ballots cast were straight Democratic, compared with 43 per cent in the 1940 Presidential election. Straight Republican ballots were 29.27 per cent of the total.

Evanston lost a ward to the Democrats for the first time in history. It was the 5th ward, largely Negro, Roosevelt got 2,202 to 2,045 for Dewey, altho Gov. Green carried it by a vote of 2,162 to 1,840. Evanston's total vote for President was 26,221 for Dewey to 10,955 for Roosevelt. In 1940 Roosevelt's vote was 8,655.

Suburban Canvass to Begin.

New Trier township comprising Wilmette, Winnetka, Kenilworth, and Glencoe gave Dewey 16,912 to 5,593 for Roosevelt. Lake Forest gave Dewey 1,819 to 930 for Roosevelt. Dewey got 1,097 to Roosevelt's 526 in Lake Bluff.

The official canvass of the suburban vote supervised by County Clerk Flynn starts today. Suburban precincts in the jurisdiction of the Chicago election board will be canvassed next week, starting Monday, as will the Chicago vote.

RAILROAD MAN FATALLY HURT.

John Alexander, 63, 500 E. 89th st., died in Illinois Central hospital yesterday. He was a car inspector for the railroad and had lost both legs when he fell under a train a few hours earlier.

PICK ADM. INGERSOLL TO DIRECT FLOW OF SUPPLIES IN PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—Adm. Royal R. E. Ingersoll, who proved his ability to convoy vast quantities of supplies across the Atlantic, now will direct the pouring of men and material against Japan. Navy Secretary Forrestal, at a news conference today, announced the transfer of Ingersoll from command of the Atlantic fleet to duty as commander of the western sea frontier.

In the new assignment, Ingersoll, of La Porte, Ind., will "manage the flow of supplies to the Pacific fleet thru west coast ports," Forrestal said. The navy secretary added that appointment of Ingersoll is an "indication of the increased importance of the task" of moving supplies to the Pacific for the war against Japan.

In the new command, Forrestal said, Ingersoll will have the status of a deputy commander in chief of the United States fleet.

CAPT. DOUGLAS IS CASUALTY ON PACIFIC ISLAND

Capt. Paul H. Douglas of the marines was wounded on the Palau Islands, it was disclosed yesterday by his wife, who was elected on Tuesday to be congressman at large. Mrs. Douglas, known politically as Emily Taft Douglas, said a letter from her husband described the wounds as "not serious." Capt. Douglas, a former alderman of Chicago's 5th ward and a University of Chicago professor, ran as an independent Democratic candidate for the United States senatorial nomination in 1942, but lost to Raymond McKeough, subsequently defeated by Sen. Brooks.

MAN WHO BEAT FISH TO VOTE 'INDEPENDENT'

Newburgh, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—Augustus W. Bennet, the man who ended Republican Rep. Fish's 24 year congressional career, said today he would sit on the Republican side in the new house of representatives, but that his vote would be "independent."

"I was elected by tens of thousands of Republican votes," Bennet said, "and I have always enrolled as a Republican."

"Nevertheless," he added, "I am grateful to the Democrats, without whom I would not have been elected. I have already written the Democratic chairmen of the four counties in my district thanking them for putting me on their ticket and supporting me at the polls."

"Probably I will go along with the Republicans in the house on purely partisan matters," Bennet said, "but in other matters, particularly measures having to do with international coöperation, I will vote for what seems to me to be the right thing."

REVISIONS PUT F. D. R. AHEAD IN MICHIGAN TALLY

13 Normally Democratic Precincts Missing.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 9 [Special].—President Roosevelt was given an unofficial lead late today for the first time in the race for Michigan's 19 electoral votes on the basis of late revisions in the vote from Wayne [Detroit] county which an election official said might still contain major errors.

With only 13 precincts uncounted, and those in a heavily Democratic district, Mr. Roosevelt held a lead of more than 18,000 votes over Gov. Dewey in the revised tabulation.

Returns from 3,828 of 3,841 precincts gave Roosevelt 1,097,581 and Dewey 1,079,503.

Dewey Led Early.

At one time, early in the tabulation of Tuesday's vote, Dewey had held a lead of 133,000 votes on the strength of returns from normally Republican outstate areas.

Included in the revisions were vote corrections from 86 Wayne county precincts which were rechecked this afternoon by the Wayne county board of canvassers. These returns gave President Roosevelt the lead in the state for the first time since tabulation of the vote started.

Mistakes Explained.

Earlier today the county canvassers had rechecked 81 other precincts and found what they said was a previously uncounted vote of 31,432 for Roosevelt and 17,998 for Dewey.

Failure of local election officials to count this vote was said to have resulted from their inexperience, many of them having been hired at the last moment after it was decided to extend the poll closing time by two hours.

Some of these workers left their polling task to return to full time jobs before the tallying had been completed, it was said, while others did not know how to make out tally sheets. In some precincts election clerks had reported only part of the vote and in others no count had been announced.

Mrs. Marguerite Montgomery, chairman of the canvassing board engaged in the difficult task of untangling the numerous errors, said "there well could be major errors" even in the revised figures.

THE WHO, WHEN AND WHERE OF NEW SENATORS!

Election Winners Have Varied Personalities.

Fourteen new United States senators will enter the country's highest legislative chamber next January as a result of Tuesday's voting choices. Eight of the new men are Democrats and six are Republicans. Sketches of the senators-elect follow:

MASSACHUSETTS.

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, Republican, who won handily over Democrat John H. Corcoran, is probably Massachusett's most popular public figure. His plurality of more than 400,000 votes was the largest the Bay state has accorded a candidate since Calvin Coolidge ran for President.

Saltonstall is a softspoken, lean, and lanky man who walks often for exercise. He refuses a special elevator in the state house, has no uniformed officers in his outer office, and refused bodyguards and motorcycle escorts.

He graduated in 1914 from Harvard, where he captained the Harvard crew. He is a southpaw in all but writing. After service in the last war he was an alderman in his home city of Newton, then an assistant district attorney, and for eight years speaker of the Massachusetts house. He is Massachusett's first three term governor.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Francis J. Myers, who is the apparent winner over Sen. Davis, is a Philadelphia Democrat who was a dark horse candidate for his party's nomination last spring. His name was offered as a compromise when Democratic slate makers approached a deadlock.

Myers was described as a man who can thread his way among opposing factions without incurring resentment. Myers is a three time member of the state house of representatives and prior to that was a deputy attorney general under the Earle administration in the mid '30s. At one time he was an attorney for the Home Owners Loan corporation.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Gov. Olin Dewitt Talmadge Johnston, who beat South Carolina's veteran E. D. [Cotton Ed] Smith to win the Democratic primary, is a big, ruddy complexioned man who is serving his second term as governor.

He is 6 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 220, is slow talking and affable but quick tempered. He is personally and politically dry and doesn't smoke. In his youth he was a textile worker, later became a lawyer, was twice defeated for the senate and once in a race for the governorship in 1930.

His present calm administration is in sharp contrast to his fiery first term when he called out the National Guard with machine guns to take over the state highway department, to which he was bitterly opposed politically.

CONNECTICUT.

Brien McMahon, a husky young man who made a name for himself as an assistant United States district attorney, won the senatorship in his first try for public office. A Democrat, he defeated Sen. John A. Danaher, Republican.

At 32, as an assistant attorney general in charge of criminal prosecutions, McMahon distinguished himself at Chicago in his successful prosecution of Louis Piquett, attorney for Gangster John Dillinger, on a charge of harboring Dillinger's lieutenant, Homer Van Meter. He obtained a life sentence for John Paul Chase for killing Federal Agent Samuel P. Cowley in a gun battle at Barrington, Ill.

McMahon was known as one of the youngest men ever to hold the post of assistant attorney general. A graduate of Yale, he was admitted to the bar when he was 24, and was a special or acting or full assistant attorney general from 1933 to the time he resigned in 1938. He since has been practicing law. He is 41 years old, is married, and has a daughter.

INDIANA.

Homer E. Capehart, Republican, who defeated Gov. Henry F. Schricker, Democrat, for the senate, is a one time farm boy who achieved success in industry but never gave up farming. He is owner of the Packard Manufacturing company of Indianapolis, which made radio-phonographs before the war and now turns out parts for tanks, guns, and planes. He also operates a farm near Washington, Ind., his legal residence.

Capehart's "cornfield rally" of Republicans in 1938 drew national attention in the political world. On Aug. 27 of that year he raised a city of tents on his Daviess county farm and was host to about 8,500 Republicans precinct workers and 30,000 others.

After serving in the army in World War I., Capehart worked as a farm hand in Northern Indiana. Later he sold farm equipment, and in 1927 founded the Capehart corporation to manufacture automatic phonographs and radios. He is of Scotch-Welsh ancestry, is married, and has three children.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Clyde R. Hoey, former governor, has flowing gray locks and wears a stand-up collar and a cutaway coat with a red boutonniere. During his term as governor, 1936-1940, he strolled almost every morning from the capitol to a nearby drug store to drink a coke.

He began work at the age of 12 as a printer's "devil" and at 16 was publishing his own newspaper, a county weekly. At 20, before he could vote, he was elected to the state house of representatives. He served two terms there, then a term in the state senate and, in 1919, was elected to an unexpired term in congress, but declined renomination and resumed his practice of law.

During his term as North Carolina's chief executive he was called the state's "friendliest" governor. He reportedly broke all records for gubernatorial speechmaking. He spoke in Chicago in 1938 before the Sunday Evening club. He always speaks extemporaneously.

IOWA.

Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, who turned his name from a handicap to a political asset by telling jokes about it, will take over Iowa's last major office held by a Democrat when he succeeds Sen. Gillette [D.] in the senate next January.

After two terms as a state representative, Hickenlooper [R.] was defeated in the primary for the lieutenant governor nomination, a loss he blamed on his name. He decided to beat others to the punch and began joking about the name himself. He rolled up a 4 to 1 majority in winning election to his first of two terms as governor.

Hickenlooper speaks smoothly and forcefully without notes. He is an easy companion in any sort of gathering, as is his wife. They have two children, Jane, 15, and David, 11, who call their father Hick, as does every one who knows him.

ARKANSAS.

Rep. J. W. Fulbright, 39, calls himself "just a boy from the country," but he is a gentleman farmer, a former Rhodes scholar, industialist, and a college professor. He is the son of a well-to-do Fayette newspaper publishing family.

Fulbright [D.] was president of his alma mater, the University of Arkansas, a political appointment, until he was ousted over differences with Gov. Homer M. Adkins in 1941. He then decided to run for public office and in a runoff primary for congress he beat Gov. Adkins.

Earlier he had been an attorney in the department of justice antitrust division and an instructor in law at George Washington university and at the University of Arkansas. He is a tall, good looking man who played football in college and lacrosse on an Oxford-Cambridge team.

MISSOURI.

Gov. Forrest C. Donnell, who will be Missouri's next senator unless 75,000 soldier votes being counted today wipe out his 9,000 lead over his Democratic opponent, Atty. Gen. Roy McKittrick, has been described as being "dry as dust."

Donnell, who is auburn haired and sturdily built, is noted for never making a decision without consulting the law books. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He is a Methodist churchman and a Mason. He married Hilda Hayes of St. Louis Jan. 29, 1913, and they live in suburban Webster Groves. They have a son and daughter.

Donnell was born at Quitman, Mo., 60 years ago and has practiced law in St. Louis since 1907, when he was graduated from the University of Missouri. He was elected governor in 1940. He seldom has appeared before the legislature.

NEW JERSEY.

Howard Alexander Smith, former Princeton university lecturer, won the only major Republican victory in New Jersey by defeating Democrat Elmer H. Wene for a senate term ending Jan. 3, 1947.

Smith was a student of Woodrow Wilson in Princeton, from which he was graduated in 1904. During the first World war he was an aid to Herbert Hoover in the food administration. This work took him to England and France and the Baltic states.

Smith is 64. He and his wife make their home in Princeton, just off the university campus. They are the parents of three children and grandparents of seven.

OREGON.

Senator Elect Wayne L. Morse, 44, former dean of the University of Oregon law school and former member of the war labor board, who succeeds Sen. Holman, another Republican, is a Wisconsin product.

The slender, moustached Morse taught three years in Wisconsin, Columbia, and Minnesota universities before going to Oregon in 1929. Outspoken and direct on public issues, he frequently clashed with members of the WLB or the university, but always held their respect. Indorsed by the CIO and AFL and by conservatives and liberals among Republicans, he won the senate seat by more than 100,000 votes.

In his campaign he invited questions and met all comers. The public liked his ready answers. Morse is a Congregationalist, a Rotarian, a Scottish Rites Mason. He is married and has three children. His wife was formerly Mildred Downie of Madison, Wis.

WASHINGTON.

Rep Warren G. Magnuson, handsome, young, unmarried, and a Democrat, climaxes a political career that began when he was driving an ice wagon to put himself thru the University of Washington law school.

His organization of an "Al Smith for President" club on the campus attracted the attention of the late A. Scott Bullitt, Democratic national committeeman, who got him a job as secretary of the Seattle Municipal league.

Magnuson successively served two terms in the state legislature, was an assistant federal district attorney, and King county prosecutor. He was elected to congress in 1936. By coincidence he will become the state's senior senator shortly after the first of the year when Sen. Wallgren will resign to take the governorship and a successor is appointed. Magnuson, 40, is called "Maggie" by his friends.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Gov. John Moses, who defeated Sen. Nye, is the first Democrat ever elected to congress from this state by popular vote.

Born in Strand, Norway, in 1885, Moses received his early education at Oslo and, after coming to the United States in 1905, attended the University of North Dakota. He has been a railroad employe, farmer, lawyer, bank president, and a state's attorney. He is serving his third term as governor. His two sons and daughter all are in service. The governor has been seriously ill for some time.

IDAHO.

Glen H. Taylor, who won the Democratic primary by only 216 over Sen. Clark and defeated Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen, Republican, in the election, is a former Idaho cowpuncher. A war worker, Taylor hails from Pocatello. He became a radio singer of cowboy ballads and stole the show from seasoned politicians in the primary campaign by stumping the state on a sound truck.

NEW TYPE SIGHTS HELP YANKS BAG ENEMY PLANES

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—The navy disclosed tonight that automatic sights keeping guns aligned on fast moving targets have proved successful in helping to shoot down attacking enemy planes.

The sights, operated on a gyroscopic principle, the navy said, originally were used on smaller guns and forced the enemy to stay away from American ships.

The navy also disclosed that "a revolutionary new sight based on the same gyroscopic principle is now in production by the navy for use in army and navy planes."

MASSED LABOR VOTE A FACTOR IN F. D. R. VICTORY

Change of Leadership in War Time Another.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

Two factors, in the opinion of political analysts, loom large in the explanation of the Roosevelt victory in the Presidential election last Tuesday.

One was the feeling of millions of citizens, particularly the fathers and mothers and wives of soldiers and sailors, and of the service men themselves, that it would be unwise to change the commander in chief in the midst of the war.

The other factor was the unprecedented mobilization of the labor vote for Mr. Roosevelt by Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee under the pressure made possible by the New Deal labor laws.

Vote of 48½ Million.

With 8,588 voting units yet to be reported, the indications were that the total popular vote was about 48¼ million, approximately one million less than four years ago. This loss was easily accounted for by the 8 million men of voting age in the army and navy, less than half of whom sent in absentee ballots.

A Roosevelt plurality of about 3 million popular votes was indicated by the returns so far in hand, the smallest margin of popular votes given any Presidential candidate since 1916, when Woodrow Wilson won with 600,000 more votes than Charles Evans Hughes. Harding had a 7 million plurality in 1920, Coolidge 7 million in 1924, Hoover 6 million in 1928, Roosevelt 7 million in 1932, 10 million in 1936, and 5 million in 1940.

A good many considerations that were expected to sway large masses of the electorate faded away as factors in the election result, in the opinion of the political analysts.

Doomed as Issue.

The fourth term, for example, even the Republican leaders now admit, did not alienate vast masses of voters from the Democratic ticket, as it was expected to do. Gov. Dewey himself told the Republican strategists from the start that the fourth term was a dead issue. He said the fourth term was doomed as an issue when the people voted Mr. Roosevelt a third term.

This is believed to have been one important reason why the defection of conservative Democrats from the Roosevelt-Truman ticket never attained impressive proportions. Former Gov. Ely of Massachusetts declared for Dewey and Bricker; former Rep. John O'Connor organized the Democrats for Dewey, Jim Farley and Sen. Walsh of Massachusetts refused to campaign for the ticket, and many old line Democrats, particularly in the solid south, voted Republican or "took a walk" away from the polls on election day.

Fewer Votes in Texas.

But these defections did not influence the result appreciably. In Texas, for example, Roosevelt received 200,000 fewer votes than four years ago but he polled 610,000 votes compared with only 92,000 for the ticket of the bolting Texas Regulars and 139,000 for Dewey, who got 60,000 fewer votes than Willkie.

In Georgia the dissident Democrats voted Republican but increased the Republican percentage of the popular vote only four points. In Mississippi the bolting Democrats were snowed under. In Tennessee the anti-Roosevelt Democrats made their best showing, boosting the Republican percentage of the vote from 32 in 1940 to 40 last Tuesday.

Soundings of sentiment that were supposed to show that the women were preponderantly against Mr. Roosevelt because he failed to redeem his pledge to keep the country out of war, that voters of Polish and Italian origin had turned against the President and that Irish Catholic Democrats were off the party reservation in large numbers, were discredited by the analysis of the returns.

The conclusion reached by the analysts is that the considerations on which all these phases of dissidence were supposed to be based were outweighed in the minds of millions of people by the fact that the war was being successfully prosecuted and by the fear of doing anything that might rock the boat.

Parents and Wives.

Parents and wives of service men subject to the ever present anxiety concerning the safety of their men and hoping for their early return from the battle front are thought to have been influenced particularly by such considerations and apprehensions.

Of course, in any event, Mr. Roosevelt was bound to profit politically from the age-old political principle that victories in war make votes and defeats lose elections. Sherman's successful campaign, presaging the end of the civil war, insured Lincoln's reëlection.

In the congressional election of November, 1942, the Democrats suffered serious reverses that they ascribed to the succession of defeats sustained by the United States navy in battles with the Japs in October. The Democratic managers were praying for a signal victory before election day to turn the political tide running against them. But they didn't get it—till after the election.

Far Different in 1944.

Far different was the situation leading up to the election last Tuesday. For several months a steady march of victories had attended our arms both in Europe and the Pacific and as a grand climax on the very eve of the election came the smashing of the Jap fleet in the brilliant operations of our navy off Leyte and Formosa. This was a military triumph that redounded to the credit of the commander in chief, no matter how little he had to do with it.

The soldier vote also turned out to be about as favorable to Mr. Roosevelt as the Democratic managers had calculated it would be. Wherever the soldier vote has been separately tabulated it has been found to be about 10 per cent more favorable to the President than the civilian vote.

In the big cities the Democratic machines operated more effectively for Mr. Roosevelt than ever before, chiefly, it appears, because of the aid in getting out the Democratic vote rendered this time by a new political force—Hillman's PAC.

Roll Up Huge Vote.

In New York City, despite the absence of 500,000 service men who did not vote, Tammany and the Bronx and Brooklyn Democratic machines with the help of the PAC rolled up a vote of 2,040,000 for Mr. Roosevelt, 73,000 more votes than the President got in the metropolis four years ago. Dewey got only 23,000 more than Willkie did.

In Chicago the Kelly machine and the PAC got out a vote for the President exceeding by 94,000 the vote he received in 1940, altho this time there were upwards of 125,000 service men absent and not voting. At the same time Dewey's vote in the city was 29,000 less than Willkie's.

Even with half its service men not voting, the PAC, with some help for the local Democratic organization, delivered a vote in Detroit for Roosevelt 92,000 in excess of that he polled four years ago, while Dewey's was only 37,000 greater than Willkie's.

Labor Legislation.

A similar story is told by the returns from other industrial centers in which the PAC was active. The power of the PAC to mobilize the labor vote is the product of New Deal labor legislation and war time labor regulations. Under this scheme of things a workingman to get a job must join a union. Then if he should incur the displeasure of the union officials for any reason and be expelled from the union his employer would be compelled to fire him from his job. Then he would be barred from getting a job in any other locality.

Under pain of such discipline for disobedience the PAC rounded up the labor vote for Mr. Roosevelt. It demanded $1 a head contributions to the Roosevelt campaign fund. It staged a great campaign to register voters with tremendous success. Wherever the law permitted or could be stretched thru PAC or Democratic machine influence, registration centers were established in factories with the CIO shop stewards acting as registrars.

Law Is Disregarded.

The law was notoriously disregarded in such registration. The shop steward registrar rarely if ever found that any of the war workers who had migrated from other localities had not lived the required length of time at his present place of residence to qualify him to vote. The result was a record breaking registration in the industrial cities, with allowance made for absentee service men.

Then on election day the shop stewards were no less active in seeing to it that the employes voted. By persuasion and frequently by intimidation the workers were impelled to wear Roosevelt buttons, put up Roosevelt pictures in their home windows and otherwise declare themselves for the President. Many employes who ventured to wear Dewey buttons were assaulted or threatened with expulsion from their union and consequent loss of their jobs.

LST CAPTAIN'S WIFE, SON VISIT 'A SHIP LIKE HIS

Robert W. McCoy Jr., 1 year old son of the captain of an LST [landing ship, tank] and mascot of the flotilla with which his father, Robert McCoy, is operating in Atlantic waters, and his mother were guests yesterday of Richard Shaw, captain of the LST-652 tied up at Navy pier. The LST-652 will be part of the navy's sixth war loan exhibit, "Pacific Theater" which will be open to the public Nov. 18.

Until a few weeks ago information about LSTs was highly restricted. For this reason this was Mrs. McCoy's first opportunity to see the interior of a ship like her husband's.

Her particular interest was the tank deck where invasion vehicles are carried to beach landings.

COURT RESTORES LAWYER'S $25,000 SKIDMORE BAIL

Judge John F. O'Connell in Probate court yesterday allowed the claim of Joseph Johnson, an attorney, for $25,000 against the estate of William R. Skidmore, once the reputed fixer for the Cook county gambling syndicate, who died Feb. 18 in the federal prison at Terre Haute, Ind. Johnson, brother of William Johnson, south side gambler, said he deposited $25,000 in United States treasury notes as bond for Skidmore when he was on trial in federal court for income tax evasion. After the trial the notes were returned to the estate, rather than to Johnson, by the court clerk.

MIDWEST G.O.P. ADDS TO POWER IN U.S. SENATE

Holds 2 to 1 Advantage Over Eastern Bloc.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

Westward was the course of the Republican party in the senate races in last Tuesday's elections. This was revealed last night by a survey as senatorial contests emerged from the doubtful class.

In the present senate middle western Republicans hold a 3 to 2 lead over their eastern Republican colleagues. In the new senate the middle west will hold a 2 to 1 lead to dominate party policy in the 79th congress, which is expected to be a treaty making session.

The 37 Republicans in the present senate include 12 easterners, 18 middle westerners, 6 far westerners, and one southerner, Sen. Moore [R.,] Okla.], a life-long Democrat who ran as a Republican in 1942 to oppose New Deal policies.

Lose Two, Gain One.

In the east Republicans lost two seats while gaining one. Sen. Davis [R., Pa.] was trailing Democrat Francis J. Myers by 13,687 votes with a soldier vote, expected to be strongly Democratic, still to be counted. Sen. Danaher [R., Conn.] lost to Democrat Brien McMahon. The seat gained was in New Jersey where H. Alexander Smith defeated Democrat Elmer H. Wene.

This reduces eastern Republicans to 11 senate seats in the congress which will open in January. The middle western delegation goes up to 20 by virtue of a gain of three seats while only one was lost. There was no change in the far west or south.

The Republican seats gained in the middle west were in Iowa, Indiana and Missouri. In Iowa, Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper trounced Sen. Gillette, Democrat. In Indiana Homer Capehart, Republican manufacturer, nosed out Gov. Schricker, Democrat.

Donnell Leads in Missouri.

And in Missouri Forrest C. Donnell, Republican, was leading Roy McKittrick. The soldier vote in this state is to be counted today. While this may change the result, it is considered that McKittrick will not get enough votes to overcome the 9,251 lead Donnell now has.

The Republican seat lost in the middlewest was that of Sen. Nye of North Dakota. He fell before Gov. John Moses in a three cornered race.

The election brought Republicans a net gain of one seat in the senate. There are 58 Democrats, 37 Republicans and one Progressive in the present senate. By taking 14 of the 21 senatorial contests Republicans increased their representation to 38 against 57 for the Democrats. The one Progressive, Sen. La Follette of Wisconsin, was not running in the election.

In the house the Republicans lost heavily. Democrats elected 241 where they had 214 in the present congress while Republicans fell from 212 to 185. Progressives and American Laborites elected one each. Farmer Laborites lost the one seat they held. There are still seven undecided contests.

The Democrats made their most impressive gain since President Roosevelt was elected in 1932. In 1933, when the New Deal came into power Democrats increased the number of house seats by almost 100, securing a total of 313.

An All-Time High.

In 1935 they boosted the representation to 322 and in 1937 brought the Democrats to an all-time high of 333 seats.

The New Deal representation in the 1939 congress fell to 262. In 1941 it was increased by five to 267 as a result of the third term campaign. It fell in the off-Presidential election of 1942 to 222 for the opening of the 78th congress in 1943. Deaths and loss of contests for vacancies cut the Democratic representation to 214.

The new congress will open Jan. 3. The present congress returns to the capital next week and will function until it is replaced.

THE QUESTION.

Were you ever caught in an embarrassing position upon the arrival of the boss?

WHERE ASKED.

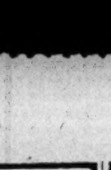
THE ANSWERS.

Dorothy Hubert, model, 1118 N. State st.—My stocking had a tiny run in it at the very top. I had my dress pulled up above my knees and was attempting to mend it when the boss walked in. I could not just drop the needle and thread because it was hooked to my stocking, so I took a partial stitch and pulled my skirt down.



Lois Brozosky, salesgirl, 1232 S. Kolin av.—I was working in a dress shop. It was around 11:30 a. m. and I was hungry. While on the floor, I started nibbling on a sandwich. When the head clerk approached me I stuffed the sandwich in the sleeve of a dress. A customer tried it on before I could remove the sandwich.

Lonnie Chester, stenographer, 120 N. 24th av., Melrose Park—One afternoon I was combing my hair in front of a mirror in the stockroom. I had the rat out of my hair when my employer came into the room. He didn't say anything, but I was sensitive about the fact that I wore a rat and certainly was embarrassed.

Mrs. Henry Sanger, social service worker, 5540 Hyde Park blvd.—When I was working as a bow maker in a department store some one gave me a box of candy. The clerks were not allowed to eat it, but I passed it around. They all had their faces full of molasses candy and ducked under the counter when the head man arrived.

Elizabeth Hindman, medical secretary, 357 Fullerton pkwy.—My employer was a doctor [an allergist] and I was required to wear a white uniform while working. One morning I arrived early and just as I was changing into my uniform the phone rang. I went out to answer it in my slip and just then the doctor arrived.

Dorothy Tarrant, secretary, 6241 Winthrop av.—I think perhaps the most embarrassing thing that has happened to me was getting caught writing personal letters. After it happened a few times I decided the embarrassment wasn't worth the accomplishment and that I should write my letters at home or on my own time.

URGE ELECTION LAW CHANGE ON POLL WORKERS

Amendment of state election laws requiring appointment of election officials for any precinct from registered voters of that precinct was urged yesterday in the report of the election committee of the City Club of Chicago.

Under the law now the three judges and two clerks for each precinct all must be registered voters of the precinct in which they serve and must be chosen from the two major political parties. Permission to choose a minority from outside the precinct is advocated by the election committee.

A bill aimed at accomplishing this change was defeated by the house in the 1944 session of the state legislature.

The last primaries showed another weakness in the present law, the report stated. Many precincts were without enough applicants for these positions, due to war conditions. The election commission appealed to civic groups to ask their members to volunteer as a patriotic service.

A large number of applications was received, but only those applicants could be accepted who lived in the precincts in which shortages occurred. Moreover, they could be accepted only if there was a shortage of officials of the political party to which the applicant belonged. Amendment of the law would remedy this situation, the report concluded.

United Charities Wins on Many Election Bets

F.D.R. PROMISES TO 'REWARD' WAR VICTIMS ABROAD

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt today declared his determination that "the sacrifices of liberated peoples shall be rewarded" thru supplies needed "to start life over."

He made the statement in a letter to Herbert H. Lehman, director of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, on the first anniversary of that organization.

Lehman, who is leaving for London to consult on problems of organization in the European office, said he expects to visit liberated countries on the continent.

G.O.P. THRUOUT U. S. RUNS WELL AHEAD OF DEWEY

Weakness as Candidate Shown in Analysis.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Nearly complete nation-wide vote returns disclosed yesterday that Republican state tickets thruout most of the country ran well ahead of their standard bearer, Gov. Dewey, and won numerous G. O. P. offices to offset in part the Democratic Presidential victory.

Earlier returns had already demonstrated that many G. O. P. candidates for governor and senate seats won in the strongly Republican middle west in spite of Dewey's weak showing against Mr. Roosevelt.

Latest results trickling in from the eastern seaboard, and mountain and west coast states now show the same pattern largely held in those areas as well. In the east, three Republican gubernatorial nominees and three senate candidates were chosen in states lost by Dewey to Roosevelt, while voters in the mountain and far western sections elected one Republican governor and two G. O. P. senators in states Dewey failed to carry.

G. O. P. Carries 16 States.

Thus, on a nation-wide basis, altho Dewey carried only 12 states, the Republicans won 16, or more than half the 31 governorships at stake, and appear, on the basis of latest returns, actually to have made a net gain of one seat in the United States senate.

Outside the middle west the Republican undertow was strongest in New England. There, except for Democratic Rhode Island, the G. O. P. chalked up victories over the Democrats in every state and in many instances local nominees outshone the New York governor at the polls. Dewey carried only two New England states, Maine and Vermont.

In New Hampshire, while the New Yorker was losing to Roosevelt by 10,000 votes, Gov. Charles M. Dale, Republican, and Sen. Tobey [R.] were reëlected easily, and the G. O. P. retained the state's two seats in the house.

Saltonstall's Showing.

Meanwhile, Massachusetts voters, altho giving Roosevelt an 80,000 plurality, elected a Republican, Leverett Saltonstall, now governor, to a senate seat, while the Democrats were winning the governorship.

In Pennsylvania, altho Sen. Davis [R.] appears to have been unseated on the basis of latest returns, he made a better showing against his Democratic opponent than did Dewey against Roosevelt. Davis is trailing by less than 14,000 votes, while the fourth term President trounced the New York governor by a margin of 70,000.

The reverse was true in New York state, where Dewey, tho losing by more than 250,000 votes, outpolled the Republican senatorial nominee, Thomas J. Curran, who was easily defeated by Sen. Wagner [D.].

Runs Poor Second.

In the west, Dewey, in losing the three coastal states, Oregon, Washington, and California, ran a poor second in every case to the state ticket.

His worst showing was in Oregon, where the voters chose two Republican senators and returned all four G. O. P. congressmen to office, while Roosevelt was carrying the state over Dewey by nearly 20,000 votes.

And in spite of the Roosevelt victory, Massachusetts' 10 Republican congressmen were returned to office, compared with four Democrats.

Connecticut likewise went to Roosevelt, by a 40,000 margin, but Republican Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin polled nearly 30,000 more votes than Dewey and won reëlection. The Democrats won the senate race by defeating Sen. Danaher [R.].

In both Maine and Vermont, Dewey won by smaller pluralities than fellow G. O. P. candidates on the state ticket. In the Maine gubernatorial election, held Sept. 12, Horace Hildreth, Republican, was swept into office by a margin of 75,000 votes, altho Dewey carried the state on Tuesday by only 15,000. Sen. Aiken [R.], in winning reëlection in Vermont, drew 10,000 more votes than the G. O. P. Presidential candidate.

Win in New Jersey.

Elsewhere in the east, New Jersey chose a Republican senator, H. Alexander Smith, and elected eleven G. O. P. congressmen out of the state's 14, while Roosevelt was trouncing Dewey by nearly 30,000 votes. Meanwhile, Delaware was choosing Roosevelt over Dewey, but elected to retain its Republican governor, Walter W. Bacon.

Both Washington and California elected Democrats to most offices, but local Republican nominees pulled a higher popular vote than Dewey could muster in his advantageous spot at the top of the ticket. The New Yorker, in losing Washington to the fourth term President by 100,000, ran 10,000 to 15,000 votes behind Arthur B. Langlie, seeking reëlection as governor, and Harry Cain, senatorial candidate.

Demonstrated in Montana.

Similarly, in California, while Dewey was beaten by 500,000 votes, Frederick F. Houser, G. O. P. candidate for senator, failed by only 130,000 to unseat Sen. Downey [D.]. Houser polled more than 1,300,000, to eclipse Dewey's total by 50,000 votes.

The mountain state of Montana further demonstrated Gov. Dewey's weakness as compared with the local ticket. The voters, while giving Mr. Roosevelt a comfortable 20,000 plurality, reëlected their G. O. P. governor, Sam C. Ford with 26,000 votes to spare. Ford got 20,000 more ballots than Dewey.

In Utah, the Republican nominee for governor, J. Bracken Lee, ran far ahead of Dewey and came within an ace of beating the incumbent Democrat, Herbert B. Maw. Lee polled 123,000 voets against Dewey's 99,000, and lost the governorship by less than 2,000, while the New Yorker ran 55,000 behind Mr. Roosevelt.

Gov. Dewey also trailed the Nevada Republican senatorial candidate, George W. Malone, who lost to Sen. McCarran [D.], but polled more than 17,000 votes against 15,850 for Dewey. The state went to Roosevelt by a 2,000 plurality. In neighboring Idaho, the Republicans retained their one house seat out of the two in the state altho Gov. Dewey yielded the electoral vote to Roosevelt, who had a 7,000 plurality.

HAWAIIAN BORN JAP AMERICAN ENLISTS IN WAC

Miss Tamie Tsuchiyama, 29, of 5455 Drexel blvd., a Japanese-American born in Hawaii, yesterday was sworn into the Women's Army corps by Capt. Alice Renning at procurement headquarters, 166 W. Van Buren st. An anthropologist studying for a doctor of philosophy degree, Miss Tsuchiyama has expressed no preference regarding service, but "wants to do her bit." Many of her Japanese-American friends from Hawaii are serving in Italy with the 100th battalion. She will begin basic training at Fort Des Moines, Ia., in about two weeks.

Before residing in Chicago, WAC Tsuchiyama lived in the Colorado river war relocaton project, Poston, Ariz. Prior to her enlistment, she worked as a reader in the anthropology department at the University of Chicago. She was educated at the Universities of Hawaii and California, and speaks several languages.

2 New Paralysis Cases Reported on North Side

Two new infantile paralysis cases on the north side, an 18 year old boy and a woman, 26, were reported yesterday to the board of health. There have been 167 cases and seven deaths from the disease in Chicago this year, compared with 967 cases and 85 deaths in the same period last year. There have been no new cases in 10 days in the county outside Chicago.

MORE TEACHERS TO HELP FILL 100 VACANCIES

BY JOSEPH GREEN.

Supt. William H. Johnson announced yesterday that 50 more elementary teachers will be given permanent assignments in the next 10 days to eliminate some of the more than 100 school rooms that are going teacherless daily for lack of substitutes. The assignments will fill vacancies caused by deaths, resignations, and retirements in the last year.

Johnson's announcement came as protests grew against the continuing large numbers of teacherless rooms, despite appointment of 75 teachers in September, and also against a school policy of hiring as substitutes only graduates of Chicago Teachers' college.

Defends Hiring Policy.

Johnson defended the hiring policy. He said that even before he became superintendent all elementary teaching jobs went to Chicago Teachers' college graduates on the theory that Chicago jobs belonged to Chicagoans.

He said he has refused to alter this practice to allow employment of teachers properly qualified under state law but not trained in Chicago because it might be a hard practice to stop after the war. Teachers' college graduates here were begging for jobs before the war, and will be back after the war, he said.

Others Give Views.

Ira S. Turley, president of the Chicago Teachers union; Mrs. Walter F. Heineman, member of the board of education, and other school leaders said yesterday that some plan should be devised to eliminate the substitute shortage. "I would rather use teachers qualified in other cities for substitutes than see children deprived of proper training," Mrs. Heineman said. Turley said the union is working with school officials in an attempt to correct the evil.

Johnson admitted the new appointments will not entirely solve the problem because he must also guard against overstaffing the schools. The permanent assignments will relieve teachers who have had regular substitute work and make them available for occasional and scattered assignments, Johnson said. The permanent jobs will in many cases go to persons who have refused substitute work.

Many in War Service.

Johnson said that to give temporary certificates to outside teachers might lower teaching standards and bring trouble if those assigned fought to be retained on the eligible roll after the war. Teachers' college eligibles number more than 2,500, but only about half are available for substitute work. Many of the others are in war service or war jobs.

Some persons close to the schools said assignment of outside teachers might bolster arguments that the teachers' college is not needed, and that its $250,000 annual budget could be eliminated.

HEART ATTACK ON TROLLEY FATAL.

Ignatz Sigkowski, 60, of 2038 N. Kostner av., collapsed of a heart attack on an Armitage av. street car near Hamlin av. yesterday, and died while being taken to Walther Memorial hospital.

URGES TEACHING CANCER MENACE IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Benjamin Wham, chairman of the Illinois State-wide Public Health committee, last night urged that all secondary schools and colleges incorporate in their schedules educational material on cancer. He was moderator of a forum on the subject, "Cancer Education in Secondary Schools and Colleges," held in the auditorium of the American College of Surgeons, 50 E. Erie st.

His suggestions were in regard to the physical education law enacted in 1943 by the general assembly of Illinois. The law requires schools to provide physical education for all students.

Wham said such material not only would inform school children concerning cancer, but would enable more adults to learn of the disease because the children would relate to their parents what they learned in school. More than 300 school nurses, teachers, and principals attended.

But here's where you're in danger of kicking YOURSELF

There's no Radar nor any other detector to tip off Winter's first crackdown. It usually beats official Wintertime by weeks, and fills up the auto radiator shops double-quick. Chances are you'll want to kick yourself then, if you go skipping your Super Pyro anti-freeze now.

Don't put it off; put it in this early. Then if all the next six warmish Autumn weeks bring only six cold days, you'll still have your radiator. And the usual prudent checking will generally show plenty of Super Pyro for all sorts of cold scheduled later. Neither pre-Winter WARMTH right now, nor your engine's normal 160-degree HOTNESS will steal away too much Super Pyro. That's why this anti-freeze will give you low-cost safety per mile and per gallon, even though you start your Super Pyro season way back now. You must, to be safe. But the Super Pyro supply is limited. Hurry...cut out lots of Winter worry.

ATTACK STATE'S POISON CHARGE IN NURSE'S TRIAL

Testimony by Physician Brings Recess.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 9 [Special].—The murder trial of Mrs. Roberta Steiger, 25, a nurse's aid charged with putting poison in a sandwich that caused the death of her "best friend," Nurse Helen Roberta Hovey, 24, was recessed at 4 p. m. today after a pathologist expressed doubt that the charges in the indictment could be substantiated.

The recess was requested by State's Atty. Alfred H. Greening after Dr. Harry Steen, pathologist at St. John's Memorial hospital, asserted in answer to a direct question by Defense Atty. Edward Pree that 7.1 milligrams of phosphorous was not sufficient to cause the death of a person.

Defense to Ask Dismissal.

The indictment charges that Miss Hovey, who had been living with Mrs. Steiger in a cabin on Fox rd. near Springfield, died as a result of the administration of 7.1 milligrams of phosphorous in rat poison put into a peanut butter sandwich by Mrs. Steiger July 1. Miss Hovey died July 8 in St. John's hospital.

After Dr. Steen's statement, Pree said he would ask for dismissal of the case on the ground that the charge was not substantiated by the evidence. Greening's request for recess followed.

After Dr. Steen's testimony Circuit Judge L. E. Stone sent the jury of seven housewives and five men from the courtroom while Mrs. Catherine Rutherford, deputy coroner of Sangamon county, told how she had secured from Mrs. Steiger a written confession stating she had poisoned Miss Hovey.

Tells of Confession.

The confession, which was repudiated a few hours later by Mrs. Steiger, was accepted as evidence but has not been read yet to the jury.

Earlier Dr. H. M. Childs, St. John's Memorial hospital chemist, testified he had analyzed the stomach contents of the victim and found 10.1 milligrams of phosphorous.

Thomas E. Melaney, Springfield pharmacist, testified that Mrs. Steiger had purchased rat poison from him "a few days" before Miss Hovey was stricken.

Dr. Stanley Magill, Springfield physician, told the court he had been called to treat Miss Hovey and was told by both women that her taking of the poison was an accident.

VILLAGE SCENTS NEED OF CHANGE; JUDGE DISSENTS

The peculiar odor that fills the city of Crystal Lake, in McHenry county, on days when the wind is in a certain direction is the result of the use of its sewage system by the National Grain Yeast corporation, which has a plant there, attorneys for the city testified yesterday before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan. A five year contract which the company entered into with Crystal Lake for disposition of its waste thru the sewer system expires today. Atty. John H. S. Lee, representing the company, said the war production board had turned down plans of the company to build its own disposal plant. Pending further deliberation, Judge Sullivan granted a 10 day order restraining the city from interfering with the company's use of the sewers.

SOLDIER TO HANG FOR SLAYING OF WIDOW IN THEFT

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 9 (AP).—Pvt. Donald B. Brooks, 31, was sentenced today to be hanged for the hammer slaying of Mrs. Mary B. Finn, 63 year old widow, last July—the day she was to have been married.

The slim, bespectacled Brooks, who is related by marriage to Charles Rommel, the man Mrs. Finn planned to wed, stood impassively as the death sentence was pronounced by Judge John T. Tucker and J. Abner Sayler in Criminal court.

PIPE SMOKERS HANDED A JOLT —BY THE GALS

The pipe smoker, who has watched the frantic scrambling of the cigaret addicts with complacency, is due for a solid jolt where it will hurt most—in his tobacco pouch—a survey of cigar stores indicated yesterday.

This new situation, store owners said, is not caused by any shortage of bulk tobacco but—you guessed it—by the women. Nearly a thousand pipes have been purchased by women for their own use in the last two weeks, the survey of stores showed. One chain with 30 loop stores has sold more than 500 lightweight pipes to women in the last few weeks.

The women, said Joseph F. Petersek, manager of one loop store, are snapping up a special half ounce pipe with a light tan bowl. This pipe, he said, is about half the size of an average man's briar.

Many women, said another store manager, have suggested pipes be put out in assorted colors so they can select a pipe to match their day's costume.

U. S. FILES BRIEF CHALLENGING AP MEMBER RULING

Raps Safeguard Against Local Competition.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—The justice department told the Supreme court today that changes sought by the government in the by-laws of the Associated Press would further the objective of freedom of the press.

It made the argument in a brief presented in the government's civil anti-trust suit seeking to change membership by-laws of the non-profit news coöperative.

The AP has contended that the government's action is in conflict with the constitutional guarantee of press freedom.

Both Sides Appeal.

Both the AP and the government have appealed from a decision by a special federal court of the southern district of New York, restraining the AP from observing by-laws that permit members to consider the competitive effect of an application for membership. The decision held that the coöperative might restrict admission on other grounds. The Supreme court will hear oral arguments next week.

The justice department told the high tribunal that the AP should be required to modify its by-laws to provide a "more explicit" provision against exclusion of newspapers from AP membership from competitive reasons.

The lower court ruled that the AP could continue to provide its news report exclusively to members, to demand the local news of members exclusively, and to retain its contract with the Canadian Press, provided the AP modified its by-laws on admission of members.

The lower court left open to the AP the adoption of substitute by-laws "which will restrict admission," provided that members in the same field [morning, evening or Sunday papers] as the applicant for membership shall not have power to impose or dispense with any conditions of admission.

The court also held that the by-laws should declare that the effect of admission upon the ability of an applicant to compete with a member or members in the same field shall not be considered by the board or by the membership at large in passing on the application.

The justice department, however, told the Supreme court today that if the final judgment is to give "adequate assurance of effective relief" it should provide that the conditions for admission to membership in a city and "field" in which there are one or more memberships shall be the same as in a "field" in which there is no existing membership.

WORK STARTED ON PLANS FOR STREET LAMPS

Installation of 12,000 streeet lights to be financed by the 3 million dollar bond issue approved by Chicago voters Tuesday may be started in the spring, Commissioner Lloyd M. Johnson of the department of streets and electricity said yesterday. The city must obtain priorities for certain materials.

Incandescent lighting will be used, rather than the orange colored sodium-vapor type of lamps, Johnson said.

The $3,000,000 will be spent mainly in outlying districts which have no street lighting or use outmoded gas or gasoline lamps. Engineers in the electrical department are drawing designs for the new lamps and plans for control box locations, cable layouts, and other items.

She was trapped with a man in a Chicago hotel on May 31, said Gentleman, who was represented by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker.

DIVORCES REACH ALL-TIME HIGH IN COOK COUNTY

1 in 3 Marriages Goes on Rocks; War Blamed.

With one in every three marriages now winding up in the courts, divorces will reach an all-time high in Cook county this year, according to a survey completed by the judges of the Circuit and Superior courts yesterday. Decrees granted had reached 10,965 at the end of October. The figure is expected to reach above 13,000 before the end of the year.

Both divorces and marriages in Cook county, with its present population of 4,700,000, have steadily increased since 1939. In that year there were 35,113 marriages, 8,644 divorces. Marriages reached their all-time high here in 1941, when County Clerk Flynn issued 48,317 licenses. In the last few years the normal rate of marriages has been 40,000 to 43,000 in Cook county.

A Problem for Study.

Judges John A. Sbarbaro, William J. Lindsay, and Joseph Sabath, sitting on dissolution of nuptials in the Superior court, and Judge Michael Feinberg, presiding in the Circuit court, say the whole problem of marriage and divorce has become one for study not only by the judges hearing marital rifts every day but by psychologists and sociologists as well.

They lay the increases in marriages as well as legal separations to war time conditions. They believe, they said, that conditions in Chicago and the county are countrywide.

Sabath Gives Opinion.

Judge Sabath, dean of the divorce courts, who has reconciled thousands of couples and granted decrees to many thousands more in his years on the bench, believes that introductions of thousands of women into war industries is a factor in the increase in divorces. He said he believes many men also have been influenced likewise by war prosperity.

Until 1941 the rate of divorces was one in four.

JURY SELECTED TO TRY MOTHER OF BEATEN BABY

Selection of a jury of eight women and four men to try Mrs. Betty Jane Dybicz, 19, of 7102 Lowe av., on a charge of assault to kill her infant son, Dennis, last August when he was two months old, was completed yesterday before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court.

Her husband, Chester, 25, a war worker, sat alone in the back of the courtroom and later told of a change from the attitude he had toward her at a previous hearing when he pleaded in her behalf.

"We are all washed up," he told reporters. "I could never excuse an inhuman act like that. When this is over, I am going to start divorce proceedings."

Mrs. Dybicz was arrested Aug. 16 after she had carried the baby into a south side hospital suffering from fractures of the skull, left arm, left leg, collar bone, and three ribs. She told conflicting stories, but once admitted that she had injured the child intentionally. The child since has recovered and is in the father's custody.

Somervell Meets Army Technical Chiefs Here

FILTER PLANT'S FIRST UPKEEP FUND APPROVED

Release of $100,000 to the water department from city funds for the first maintenance expenses at the filtration plant at 79th st. and the lake was approved yesterday by the finance committee of the city council.

The money will pay for lighting, heating and maintenance at the plant in the final week of November and the month of December. Engineers estimated the normal operating expenses will be $86,000 a month. W. W. De Berard, city engineer, said the plant, originally scheduled for completion in the summer of 1943, will be placed in partial operation early in 1945. The actual filtration process unit will not be completed until after the war. Coagulation and sedimentation units, which will be the first to operate, will remove 70 per cent of impurities from the water furnished to 1,500,000 persons south of Pershing rd.

A federal grant of $190,000 was accepted, to help pay the $475,000 cost of extending city mains 15,500 feet on Wabansia av. from Cicero av. to deliver water to Maywood.

The committee purchased 25 new police cars, equipped for ambulance duty, at a net price of $26,460, and three new police trucks for a net $3,760.

WLB Upholds Pipe Works Union Maintenance Order

Maintenance of membership for an independent union and check-off of union dues at the Taylor Forge and Pipe Works, 4735 W. 14th st., Cicero, affecting 1,900 employes, were upheld by the national war labor board, Edgar L. Warren, sixth regional WLB chairman, announced yesterday. The regional board issued the original order last May 30 and the company's petition for review was denied by the national body. A strike at the plant ended recently when several hundred men returned to work pending a decision.

DISMISS CHARGE IN MAT CAPONE TAVERN SLAYING

Nick Kokenes, 27, who was charged with murder in the slaying of Jens Larrison, alias Larkin, last April 18 in the Hall of Fame tavern, 4839 Ogden av., Cicero, owned by Mat Capone, a brother of Al Capone, was dismissed before Justice of the Peace Harry J. Pendl at Willow Springs yesterday.

The case was called for the 13th time yesterday after numerous continuances had been granted while police were making an unsuccessful search for Mat Capone. Defense Atty. Harold Levy said Kokenes was entitled to dismissal since the state had failed to bring him to trial after four hearings within two months.

The case was dismissed for want of prosecution after Kokenes had been served with a subpena for his appearance before the grand jury on Nov. 28.

Facts Regarding the Strike of Train Service Employes on the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee and Chicago Aurora and Elgin Railroads

The strike of train service employes (motormen, conductors, collectors, switchmen) involves about 550 employes.

It was called for 4 A. M., Friday, November 10, by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, who represent these groups of the employes. No other employes are involved.

The strike was called because of dissatisfaction with a recommendation made by an Emergency Board appointed by President Roosevelt that these employes accept a 5 cents an hour increase (in addition to a 14 cents an hour increase already given them under federal government direction), instead of 9 cents an hour as they had requested. There is no other issue.

BRIEFLY THE SITUATION IS AS FOLLOWS:

A strike was originally called for September 18 on the two electric interurban railroads by these same groups of employes. This was averted through the appointment by the President of the United States of an Emergency Board as provided for by the Railway Labor Act.

The Emergency Board consisted of Judge E. B. Rudolph of the Supreme Court of North Dakota, Chairman; W. H. Spencer, Dean of the University of Chicago School of Business and Regional Chairman of the War Man Power Commission, and Judge E. M. Tipton of the Supreme Court of Missouri. Public hearings were conducted over a period of approximately one week by the Board and evidence was submitted by both parties to the controversy.

The Emergency Board recommended to the President that an increase of 5 cents per hour be granted to these employes. This was based on the President's award of 5 cents per hour to steam railroad employes in December, 1943, in lieu of claims of time and one-half for time over 40 hours, and for expenses while away from home. Employes on these two railroads have for some time received time and one-half for all overtime work as provided by contract and are not required to be away from home.

The employes under a previous Emergency Board recommendation have received 14 cents per hour increase. This award of 5 cents per hour would make a total increase of 19 cents per hour since January 1, 1941, which would be one-half cent per hour more than the increase which steam railroad employes have received since January 1, 1941. The original demand of the employes was for a 9 cent per hour increase. On November 4, 1944, the brotherhoods notified the two interurbans that the 5 cents was not acceptable and as of 4 A.M., Friday, November 10, they proposed to strike to show their dissatisfaction with the Emergency Board award and to enforce their demands.

The managements of the two railroads, at the request of the National Mediation Board, functioning under the Railway Labor Act, sent a telegram to the Secretary of that Board on Monday, November 6, reading as follows:

"Your telegram of November 4, addressed to undersigned as 'Executive Officer, Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee and Chicago Aurora and Elgin Railroads, 72 West Adams Street, Chicago,' received Saturday evening, November 4, reading as follows: 'Mediation Board in receipt of information employes represented by BLFE and BRT have rejected Emergency Board report and will strike at 4 A.M., Friday, November 10. Please advise your reactions to this situation.'

"Prior to the receipt of the strike notice we had prepared notices to employes of both carriers to the effect that we would pay the Emergency Board award both as to retroactive and current provisions. The managements' original objection to the payment of the increase of 9 cents an hour demanded by the employes was primarily based upon our belief and assertion that such payment would be contrary to the stabilization program of the Government and particularly in defiance of the decisions in that regard issued by Director of Stabilization Vinson. The managements did assert and contend in the light of the past history of these properties and in contemplation of the future necessities thereof, that such demanded increase was economically unsound.

"Nevertheless, we call attention to the fact that in these wage controversies the managements of the carriers have at all times evidenced a willingness and desire to bring about settlement, and this is disclosed by the fact that in the earlier stages we agreed to arbitrate the question and later agreed to abide by the awards of the emergency board set up by Presidential decree, and thus have shown our willingness and desire to follow the expressed will and wish of the President. The employes, through their representatives it would seem, have taken the opposite position. Further than this we make no comment.

"I am signing this for the Chicago Aurora and Elgin Railroad Company on behalf of my Co-Receiver, Albert A. Sprague, and myself, also as Receiver, and for the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad Co. as Executive Officer for the Trustees."

(Signed) Bernard J. Fallon.

The managements of these two railroads have at all times followed the provisions of the Federal Laws and the directives and orders of all agencies established pursuant to such laws.

It seemed inconceivable that the many loyal employes of these railroads would strike, but would consider it their patriotic duty in wartime to continue at work, when it is obvious that interference with the operation of either railroad would hinder the war effort.

Upon receipt of the strike notice, the managements of the two railroads publicly stated that they would continue to operate the railroads after the hour fixed for the strike to the extent that present train service employes would man the trains. That continues to be their position.

VENEREAL RATE UP AMONG YANKS IN CAMPS IN U.S.

Public Holds Own in Fight Against Disease.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 9 (AP).—Surgeon Gen. Thomas Parran of the United States public health service said today available records indicate the nation is at least holding the line against venereal disease in war time, but a navy doctor, describing an infection increase among all service men in the continental United States, declared this may foretell a general upward surge.

At the same time, Lt. Col. Thomas H. Sternberg of the army medical corps, asserted that "it is increasingly evident that a general letdown in the over-all venereal disease program, both military and civilian, is in progress."

Parran told the national conference on post-war venereal disease control that despite three years of war and several years of preparation for war, reports made to the health service show "there are no signs pointing to any over-all increase in the attack rate of syphilis or gonorrhea in the general population."

There is even some sign of a reduction, he said, as indicated by a decline in the death rate from syphilis in 39 states between 1939 and 1943.

But Parran declared that many of the estimated new cases of these diseases annually are not being reported for treatment, and he added that unless vigilance is heightened, the post-war period may see an increase in the problem due to the renewed shifting of population and possibly a lowering of moral standards.

Declaring the nation must begin to forestall this, Parran said we have a particular obligation to offer a venereal disease controled nation to returning millions of the military forces who, he asserted, will constitute a "sanitary oasis" free of infectious venereal diseases.

No one in the military forces will be discharged, he said, until he is free of any infection and these men and women must be protected from civilian infection.

Comdr. Walter H. Schwartz of the navy medical corps said that while the over-all venereal disease rate in the navy is now at an all-time low, infection among the navy in the continental United States is "rising rapidly" and is now 24 per cent above the 1942 rate.

Col. Sternberg gave a similar picture for the army, asserting that the venereal disease rate among the military in this country has "risen steadily" since January, 1944.

Dies of a Heart Attack in Blood Donor Offices

Darrell Varner, 43, of 50 N. Michigan av., Villa Park, died of a heart attack in the Red Cross blood donor service offices at 5 N. Wabash av. an hour after he had made his fifth blood donation. Dr. S. O. Levinson, medical director of the donor service, said the heart attack had no connection with the giving of blood. Varner's last previous donation was made about five months ago, it was said.

BRICKER TO KEEP UP INTEREST IN POLITICAL LIFE

Columbus, O., Nov. 9 (AP).—Gov. Bricker, unsuccessful Republican candidate for Vice President, today said he would maintain an interest in politics, tho not necessarily as a candidate, when he completes his third term as Ohio governor Dec. 31.

Asked at his first press conference since his defeat if he planned to continue in politics, Bricker said he would return to his law firm, but added:

"I'm always interested in politics. That doesn't always mean being a candidate, however."

ABOLISH ELECTORS?

The proposal to abolish the electoral college in favor of election of the President by direct popular vote will undoubtedly come before congress this coming session. The question was brought to a head by the recalcitrance of some of the southern Democrats in recent months.

Logical as the change may seem on the surface, it is unlikely that anything will come of the present agitation. The electoral college was a product of its times. No modern country had ever sought to choose its chief executive by popular election at the time that the Constitution was drafted. The Presidency itself was a great innovation in government and the electoral college was the invention which made it possible.

The framers of the Constitution intended that the electors should do just what the rebellious southern electors threatened to do in this election, namely, exercise their independent judgment as to candidates for the Presidency. The members of the constitutional convention did not foresee the formation of political parties, but they did see in the communications system of that day the impossibility of any candidate conducting a campaign and putting his claims before the voters of the whole country. George Washington was probably the only man in the new United States sufficiently known to the people of all of the states to command support for the Presidency, and he was the only candidate ever to receive the unanimous vote of the electoral college.

The difficulties which the framers of the Constitution foresaw have all disappeared. It is no problem today to conduct a national campaign, and the machinery devised in 1789 accordingly appears outmoded. But an amendment of the Constitution requires ratification by three-quarters of the states, and too many states would lose influence in the choice of the President to give the direct election amendment any chance of succeeding. Nevada is the classic example of the small state. It cast less than 33,000 votes Tuesday, in a closely contested election. That is fewer votes than were cast in at least three of the townships of suburban Cook county, yet those 33,000 Nevada voters choose three Presidential electors. The same objection would be raised in Arizona, Delaware, Montana, Vermont, and other states with three or four electoral votes. Substitution of popular election would cut their voice in the choice of the Presidency down to a half or a third of what it is now.

Neither are the southern poll tax states eager to give up the advantage they now enjoy thru the operation of the electoral college. Considerably less than 100,000 voters in South Carolina have eight electoral votes. Kansas, also with eight electoral votes, turned out nearly 600,000 voters on Tuesday. If the southern states were to have the same influence in a popular election that they have in the electoral college they would have to get rid of their poll taxes and enfranchise their Negro and poor white voters. That is something they will never do except under the most severe compulsion, such as the reduction of representation, as provided in the 14th amendment. They will certainly never vote for a constitutional amendment that puts that necessity on them.

There is, aside from sectional interest, one practical objection to a popular vote for President. It would necessitate federal control of elections, which would mean that whatever party was in power could manipulate the election machinery to perpetuate itself. At present the two party system is a guarantee against the more flagrant election frauds. The effect of fraud is not felt outside the state in which it occurs, and if there is not effective representation of one party within a state the influence of vote frauds by the predominant party is nil, since it would win the electoral vote in an honest election anyway.

But if election should be by popular vote it would be possible for the Democratic party in a one party state to report a million votes for the Democratic candidate instead of the hundred thousand that were actually cast. The only effective means of stopping such frauds would be to place control of elections in a federal agency, which, of course, could easily become the tool of the party in power in Washington.

The proponents of popular election do not seem to envision one possibility under their proposal. At present, election of the President is thrown into the house only if a candidate fails to get a majority of the electoral vote. In a close election it is much more difficult to get a majority of the popular vote, because of the votes diverted to the Prohibition, Socialist, and other splinter candidates, than it is to get a majority of the electoral vote. Thus it would be more likely that elections would be thrown into the house of representatives under the popular voting plan. There the proponents of popular election would find themselves up against a much worse situation than they are in the electoral college, because the Constitution provides that when the house chooses a President each state, regardless of its size, has only one vote. The 33,000 voters of Nevada, in that event, would have exactly the same voice in the choice of the President as the 6,300,000 voters who turned out in New York on Tuesday.

THE DRYS LOSE.

With the emphatic rejection by Nebraska voters of a state-wide prohibition proposal, most of us will hope that this is one matter that has been settled for the whole country. That, however, is probably too much to expect. The prohibitionists bided their time until the first World war gave them their chance. When the 18th amendment was nullified, they waited again. This time the comeback fizzled, but the desire to legislate morality for the neighbors seems to spring eternally in prohibitionists' breasts, so we may not have heard the last of it yet.

The people had enough and to spare of prohibition the last time. They learned that those who are going to drink will drink, anyway, no matter how the law on the books reads. They saw the worst wave of organized crime in the nation's history develop when the gangs moved in to exploit the booming bootleg industry. They discovered that whatever abuses may attach to unwise use of alcohol, they were far less when the industry was in the hands of people who made it a legitimate business than when it was under the control of criminal gangs. They discovered, too, that the hypocrisy of professing public respect for laws when they were consistently violated privately was not healthy for the national character.

We think that prohibition and repeal settled the matter once and for all. Questions do have a way of getting settled in this country. Nullification and secession were seriously considered for 60 years after the Virginia and Kentucky resolutions first pointed the way. The Civil war was the logical outcome of this political philosophy, and disposed of it for all time. In 80 succeeding years no one has ever given serious heed to proposals for disunion. Prohibition may have similarly gone to the limbo of lost issues. Its day was not a pretty one, and it will not have another.

REPUBLICAN CITADEL.

Gov. Dewey carried 12 states in all. Two of them, Maine and Vermont, are in New England. Two others, Colorado and Wyoming, are generally classified as mountain states. The remaining eight are midwestern: Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, and South Dakota.

Gov. Dewey failed to carry only three midwestern states, Illinois, Michigan, and Minnesota, or four if Missouri is included. In Illinois, Michigan, and Minnesota the Republican candidates for governor were elected and Missouri seems to have elected a Republican senator.

Plainly the Republican stronghold is the middle west. Without it the Republican party today would be moribund, if not dead. It was in the middle west that the Republican revival began in 1938. In the Presidential election of 1940 it was the middle west which gave the Republicans all but 14 of the 82 electoral votes they got. This year the middle west has increased its contribution.

It is a singular fact that in spite of this showing the Republicans of other sections of the country, and particularly of New England and the middle Atlantic states, continue to think of themselves as the leading members of the party. They fancy that they are uniquely qualified to guide it in the selection of candidates and the formation of the party platforms, tho in the last three Presidential elections they have not contributed a single Republican vote in the electoral college.

Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Connecticut went against Roosevelt in 1932. In the three subsequent elections not a single state east of Ohio, except Maine and Vermont, has gone Republican in a Presidential election. Likewise no Republican has received an electoral vote from a state west of the Rockies.

The overwhelming influence of the far western and more especially the eastern wing of the party in its deliberations is not difficult to explain. It results in large part from taking the middle west for granted. The middle west's position in the Republican party is beginning to look something like the south's position in the Democratic party. The politicians of the two parties start their calculations by assuming victory in these sections. The Democrats know the south will go along, no matter who is nominated and no matter what the party's position may be; and similarly the Republican wiseacres assume that they will have the middle west and, with that as an ace in the hole, can make their bid for other territory.

The Republicans, therefore, nominated New York's governor for the Presidency and might have nominated California's governor for the Vice Presidency if he had been willing to accept. The Republicans didn't carry New York and it may be doubted that they would have carried California with Warren on the ticket, but Bricker's influence was sufficient to win the victory in Ohio. Had he been the Presidential nominee he might have marched to victory in Illinois beside Gov. Green. Since Gov. Dewey lost Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania anyway, Gov. Bricker could not have done worse in electoral votes. For our part, we believe he would have done better.

The time has come when the Republicans of the middle west must demand a more influential voice in the party's counsels. They can claim it on their record of achievement for the party. They can claim it also because eastern candidates and eastern management have won little for the party nationally. On the contrary, rather. The persistence of eastern domination has made it easy to pin on the Republican party the charge that it is the party of great wealth, the party of the bankers. The Republican leaders in the middle west bear no such taint.

The Artesian Wells: No stranger will fail to visit these objects of peculiar interest. They are located at the corner of Western and Chicago avs., and may readily be reached by the Randolph st. cars. There are two wells, one about 700 and the other about 1,000 feet deep. These wells were first bored by some oil speculators, who were led to the spot by a spiritual medium. But instead of oil, water began to flow and has continued to come forth at the rate of a million gallons a day. The two wells are very close together and have bores of from five to six inches in diameter.

Athens Marble: While the canal was being constructed at Athens, about 16 miles from the city, a deposit of soft, cream-colored stone was discovered. . . . It is now regarded as the very best and most elegant building material in the country. Soft to the chisel, it is hard in the finished wall, and devoid of the glare of white marble, it possesses that hue of the Parthenon which, Dr. Wordsworth says, looks as tho it had been "quarried out of the golden light of an Athenian sunset." [Editor's note: "Athens marble" was a limestone, extensively used for building fronts.]

Erring Woman's Refuge: This institution on Indiana av., corner of 31st st., is intended as a home where may be found kind looks, affectionate words, earnest entreaty, and wholesome advice—a home whose inmates, withdrawn entirely from the whirlpool of dissipation, may carry out their feeble resolves to forsake the allurements of sin. . . . Visitors not admitted, except for the purpose of imparting religious counsel and instruction to its inmates.

Lincoln Park: Located near the city cemetery, commanding a beautiful view of the lake. It contains some 60 acres, with a variety of fine trees, handsome walks, and carriageways, and will in time possess all the essentials of a picturesque park—pond, stream, hill, rock, slope, and plain. It may properly be called the park of Chicago.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.

A border city famous since the days
When Romans found your healing sulphur springs,
We gaze upon you now thru Autumn's haze
And fancy that your chapel bell still rings.
In plaintive tones it tells of Charlemagne
And how he loved the town where rest his bones,
Of relics and of emperors in train,
And pageants marching on your ancient stones.

As ages pass, old kings and customs die,
Comes peace from these ruins, then all will be well.

Voice of the City.

It's the voice of the city. She speaks in many tongues and tones: Powerful, gentle, hoarse, melodious, loud, soft, gruff, pleasant, sincere, hypocritical, comforting, aggravating, bright, dull, cheerful, oppressive, interested, preoccupied, seductive, bored.

She greets the stranger within her gates as tho he were an unwanted guest. Yet her voice is friendly enough to her adopted sons. She laughs, she sings, with the carefree. She shrills at the meek, applauds the brave, utters words of encouragement to those of ability. She turns her back on the indolent. She is all things to all men. You love her, you despise her. You leave her never to return, but her siren voice lures you back again. Damn her anyway!

SENTINEL TREE.

The mulberry tree stands watch and ward,
One tree, last sentinel of the guard,
A faithful sentinel at his post
When comrades fall, a stricken host;
His panoply of tattered gold
He wears as might some knight of old.
On guard he waits, his sole reward
On him descends the mantle of the Lord;
No word is said, no trumpets sound,
Only a glory spreads to all around.

The Indian Boundary Line.

Why does Rogers av. in Rogers Park run diagonally to the southwest? Certainly there is no justification for a diagonal street to the southwest, for the flow of traffic has never been in that direction. Rogers av. on the old plats is known as Indian Boundary Line. Rogers av. is a part of the boundary line on the north established by treaty with the Indians in 1816. The line extended from Lake Michigan to the Fox river.

The tradition is preserved in the neighborhood in the names of Chippewa, Pottawatamie, and Indian Boundary Line parks. Both the Evanston and the Chicago Historical societies memorialized the council to retain the old street name of Indian Boundary Line. Philip Rogers, a large land owner in the district, also joined in the request, but the council did not abide by the scriptural injunction not to remove ancient landmarks.

Mrs. I. Z. writes: "Can you give me information concerning the overseas edition of the Tribune? I would like to subscribe to it for my husband."

I am sorry, but it is not possible to subscribe to the overseas edition. Only a limited number are printed, and they are made available in post exchanges in the British Isles, mid-Pacific, and Panama Canal Zone.

Mrs. W. L. writes: "My sister has three small children. She and her husband are divorced, but at the time he registered for selective service he was classified as a man with a family. He since has joined the merchant marine. Is there any way my sister can draw a family allowance for the children, or can collect a portion of his earnings?"

Men in the merchant marine are not eligible for the family allowance paid to the wives of service men. That service is not considered a part of the forces. I suggest she contact an attorney. If the court awarded support at the time of the divorce, an attorney should be able to help her obtain it.

"MARCH" FRACTURES AMONG RECRUITS.

A FEW weeks ago I had a visit with one of my medical colleagues who has been attached to a training base in the Carolinas. He was willing to admit that the program to which recruits are subjected is a strenuous one. But it is necessary, so he remarked, "to rule out the unfit." This was achieved by long hikes, sometimes interrupted with obstacle drill.

To my inquiry concerning the physical condition of the soldiers, he mentioned the rather frequent observance of pilonidal cyst, which was discussed in this column in May. His next comment—namely, that he had encountered a substantial number of "march" fractures, aroused my curiosity.

He went on to explain that a dozen or more of these embryo warriors had exhibited broken metatarsals. These bones are the longest in the foot and there are five in all, one corresponding to each toe. They lie back of the digits, however, and their heads [forward ends] form the "ball" of the structure. In the course of a long tramp, altho there may have been no stumble or fall, the sufferer would experience a sudden pain which forced him to limp.

What had happened? Due to the powerful contraction of the muscles, one of the solid supports in the extremity had snapped. X-ray films revealed the lesion, whereupon the diagnosis was confirmed. Most of the breaks were in the middle of the shaft. There was nothing to do but to make certain that the fragments could not be displaced. This was accomplished thru the application of a plaster cast, to which a walking heel was attached. This allowed the patient to get about and perform light duty. Six weeks later he was permitted to resume routine activity but was cautioned not to indulge in excessive exercise.

What brings on the defect? Apparently the pull and haul of the muscles between certain parts of the skeleton was just more than the bony framework could withstand. It is also possible that the individual may not be quite as well nourished as the chap who goes thru the same maneuvers without the slightest trouble. It was noted that difficulties of this character did not occur among those who were accustomed to lead outdoor lives. All the victims were relatively inactive as civilians. They had failed to keep up participation in games in which they probably indulged as youngsters.

Several of the cases were recognized when a member of the "awkward squad" complained that his toes felt stiff. This symptom was explained as a reflex spasm and led to a more thoro investigation, whereupon the break was revealed.

Ordinarily, we would expect that such accidents would be the result of a jump, landing with the full weight of the body on the forward portion of the foot. The patients in question were not exposed to this hazard. It was only when the men began to fall out that the condition was suspected.

All personnel of this group recovered. For them, however, it was necessary to lengthen the training schedule in order to qualify them for full duty. In other words, the long march plan was approached more gradually. The hardening process for these individuals required several months, instead of the average two or three.

HEAVY LAD.

Mrs. H. A. writes: My 9 year old son, who is 4 feet 6½ inches tall, weighs 104 pounds. He gained 18 pounds in the last year. He is well and active but I was wondering if he is too heavy?

REPLY.

He is considerably over the average for his height and age. It may be well to curtail his consumption of starches and fats but increase the meat ration slightly.

HARDENING OF THE ARTERIES.

L. S. writes: Is there anything that can be done to make more comfortable an elderly lady with arteriosclerosis?

REPLY.

Yes—anything that aids the circulation will be of value. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet giving various suggestions.

INVESTIGATE.

W. S. writes: My vision is normal [20-20] but my eyes are always red. What can I do?

REPLY.

See your eye doctor promptly. You may be harboring an infection which should be eradicated.

Nuggets of Comfort.

If you still feel worn out by election frenzy and are wondering what [if anything] is going to happen to the country now, perhaps you now may derive comfort from the fact that the National Button society will meet as usual in its sixth annual conclave; that under a handicap system of bowling it is possible for a 101 pound girl to roll 19 out of 20 balls into the gutter and still chalk up a score which, she will be assured, is far from discouraging; that you may buy any one you please a solid gold compact with sapphire clasp for $540 for Christmas; that tiny dots of scarlet fingernail polish on the ear lobes is considered quite the thing among the bobby-sox set this fall, and that a perfume now is on the market with the slogan, simple, splendid, and proud, "The costliest perfume money can buy!"

You may also be comforted to know that in the Smithsonian Institution's Hall of Living Washington, 1944, which was opened last month, there are 49 small bronze figures of men prominent in World War II. and of one woman. The woman is Mme. Perkins. COMMUNISTS—CHINESE AND AMERICAN.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 2.—Wherever I have lectured, questions regarding the recall of Gen. Stilwell from China have been bombarded at me by my auditors. It is most unfortunate that at the present juncture there has been a difference between Gen. Chiang Kai-shek and Gen. Stilwell, but I believe there is no need of our American friends being overwrought by this change. I have faith that we can solve our problems in our own way, eventually, to the best advantage of all concerned.

Radio commentators and the press have said that Gen. Stilwell favored the amalgamation between the Chungking government and the Chinese Communists. It is most important that the American public should get the story straight in regard to the Chinese Communists, then I would urge that they courageously stick to the story when they have it straight, in order that we may combat a vicious campaign of propaganda, which is designed not only to sabotage China but which has as its main object the destruction of a century of good will between the United States and China.

In the first place, if the Americans only realize that the so-called Chinese Communists are not like the Communist party of America, they will give more understanding sympathy and backing toward the Chungking government, which is the recognized de facto government. Chinese Communists have formed a pseudo government of their own in revolt against Chungking. They have their own militia, known as the 18th group Communist army and they even issue currency of their own, instead of honoring Chungking currency. They merely give lip service to Chungking government, after their solemn pledge of allegiance given to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

What would American people think of a Communist party in the United States having a militia and issuing bank notes apart from United States currency? It would seem like a foreigner meddling with American politics if he dared champion the cause of American Communists again the government. After all, this Chinese Communist affair with Chungking government is not any other than Chinese politics.

WHAT THE ONE WORLDERS FEAR.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 2.—Your editorial comment on the clamor of the internationalists in this country to subordinate the United States to a combination of the great powers does not answer the question posed, namely, "What Do They Fear?" They do have cause to fear. Their principal fear is that they will be unable to put across their plans before our service men return home. One need only recall the reaction of those who saw active service in World War I. to similar schemes which they returned to face.

We at home should be damned to perdition if we permit the adoption of any world organization before our heroes return home and are given an opportunity to voice their opinions and vote on the question. These G. I. Joes, as in 1919, will return from the foreign battlefronts proud to be Americans and more nationalistic than ever. The global Joes know it and fear it.

WORLD WAR I. VETERAN.

TOBACCO AND LEND-LEASE.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—A contributing factor to the present domestic cigaret shortage is the fact that considerable quantities of tobacco are being lend-leased to the United Kingdom and other favored nations. I doubt if many people in the United States will deny the probable need for tobacco in these countries or would feel strongly against helping as much as we can. However, only a few people know the mechanics of this transaction, and those who do object.

To begin with, lend-lease purchases of tobacco for the favored nations are made by the Commodity Credit corporation [using our money] in competition with domestic buyers. In fact, from a competition standpoint, the Commodity Credit corporation does not have to abide by price ceilings, so that they are in a position not only to satisfy their wants, but also to obtain the choice tobaccos.

The Commodity Credit corporation is then lend-leased to the various countries and converted into cigars and cigarets, which are in turn sold by these countries on the open market.

THE TRIBUNE, "RAILROAD."

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Today it was my privilege and pleasure to witness the operation of THE TRIBUNE'S "gravity railroad" unloading and storing rolls of paper from the warehouse to the pressroom.

I was amazed at the expansiveness of this operation and thrilled at the operation of the railroad. Having been in the machinery and equipment line along with the oil business, I marveled at its simplicity and perfection. I was further impressed by the safety factors incorporated thruout the entire system.

Certainly it must be this kind of talent and ability which your organization possesses that make your paper so successful.

VIOLETS IN NOVEMBER.

Has any one heard of spring violets blooming in November? B. HANCE.

CHANGING ONE'S NAME.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—What legal procedure is necessary to shorten one's family name? C. C.

Where it is not done for fraudulent purposes, and in the absence of statutory restriction, one may lawfully change his name without resort to any legal proceedings and for all purposes the name thus assumed will constitute his legal name just as if he had borne it from birth." 45 C. J. 390, 381.

Chap. 96 of the Illinois Revised Statutes provides that a person "may" file a petition and secure a court decree, but it is held that such statutes do not abrogate the common law right of an individual to change his name without application to the courts.

Illinois Revised Statutes, Chap. 96, Sec. 4, says that if an assumed name is used in business, a certificate must be filed with the clerk of the County court.

CROMWELL COST DORIS $700,000, COURT IS TOLD

Witness Bares $10,000 Monthly Allowance.

gave him $75,000 to help pay off a $150,000 note. Baldwin said Doris later gave Jimmy another advance of $10,000 and that more of these loans had been paid off.

Refuting previous Cromwell claims that Doris refused to maintain the United States embassy in Ottawa when he was minister to Canada, Baldwin declared "she felt the $10,000 a month he was receiving should be ample for that purpose. She furnished the wines, liquors, and flowers for the embassy but did not pay the running expenses."

Shaved $7,000,000 Demand.

Baldwin's deposition recalled Mrs. Cromwell's earlier charges that Jimmy had sought seven million dollars from her as the price of a divorce. Cromwell failed to get the seven million, Baldwin said, and then said he'd settle for half. Baldwin asserted he offered Cromwell $500,000 in cash and a $1,500,000 trust fund but Jimmy wouldn't take it.

When Cromwell later said he would take the $500,000, Baldwin said he turned him down without a cent.

In a move to prove that Cromwell was not a resident of New Jersey and an attempt to prove that New Jersey courts had no jurisdiction in the divorce case, Mrs. Cromwell's attorneys introduced a deposition showing that Cromwell gave 2300 Foxhill rd., Washington, D. C., as his home address when he registered in a $23 a day room in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York Sept. 1. The deposition said he stayed at the hotel for five days, during which time his divorce petition was filed in New Jersey.

Paid No N. J. Taxes.

A deposition from Patrick Conroy, supervising tax clerk of Newark, N. J., declared Cromwell had never paid any New Jersey taxes. One from Robert B. Tyler, office of the federal collector of revenue at Newark, testified Cromwell had never paid federal income taxes there.

Several Reno residents challenged testimony of Frank Cadwell, a New York apartment house doorman, who had told the New Jersey court he had seen Mrs. Cromwell at her mother's New York apartment between Sept. 16 and Nov. 16, 1943, and during Christmas time.

Among them was Hutt Martin, manager of the Washoe County Golf club, who said he had given Doris golf lessons, starting Sept. 16, and had seen her almost every day for 11 days.

W. W. Hopper, bank president, said he met her late in July or August, that she opened a "very substantial" account and kept it active.

Flora Baker, riding stable owner, said she met Mrs. Cromwell Aug. 28 last year and had seen her frequently, especially during September and the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Cromwell in Egypt.

The local divorce decree of Mrs. Cromwell, who now is reported doing war service work in Cairo, Egypt, was granted on ground of "mental cruelty." She charged Cromwell had made excessive demands for money, including the 7 million dollar trust fund proposition, which failed to materialize.

In asking the New Jersey court to annul the Reno divorce, Cromwell declared their marital difficulties were partly caused by the fact that he was a "disciple of President Roosevelt" while the Duke "power interests were good, old fashioned reactionary Republicans." He charged his wife with "willful, continued, and obstinate" desertion, starting in 1940.

THANKSGIVING TURKEY PRICE SET AT 51 CENTS

Thanksgiving turkey, grade A, will cost 51 cents a pound dressed, for all weights, Marion W. Isbell, office of price administration area director, announced yesterday. This price is a drop of 2 cents a pound from the 53 cents charged for lightweight birds last year and compares with the 50 to 51 cents charged for heavy birds in 1943. Furthermore, federal agencies promised that turkeys are going to be plentiful. Reports show that the crop is 8 per cent over a year ago, and poultry processors again are supplying civilian markets. The order freezing grade A turkey for the army quartermaster corps was lifted Sunday night.

Prices of broiling, frying, and roasting chickens at 38 cents a pound alive, up to 45 cents a pound dressed, remain at 1943 levels, Isbell said. Dressed ducks are 36 cents, and geese will be 37 to 38 cents, depending on the size of the stores.

Retail sellers of poultry will be expected to have the new price lists posted next Monday. The OPA will assign most of its food investigators to the poultry markets for the next few weeks to see that lists are posted and rules followed, Isbell said.

Because Americans won't spend ration points for cheap shoes, the war production board in Washington yesterday relaxed regulations to permit making of better grade footwear. The action is expected to bring to market more shoes selling around $4 for men, $3 to $3.50 for women, and $2.75 to $3 for children.

SHUN TIME LIMIT ON 'TEMPORARY' AIR AGREEMENTS

Delegates Indicate Aim to By-Pass Senate.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

A subcommittee of the international civil aviation conference was reported unofficially yesterday to have refused to place a time limit on the temporary international aviation agreements now under discussion. Some Americans believed that these agreements should be limited to two or three years so that congress might review them. The conference is being held in the Stevens hotel in Chicago.

The subcommittee decided that the agreements shall be binding from the time they are signed after the war until the time when a permanent international aviation covenant is ratified. If the United States senate fails to ratify such a covenant, the "temporary" agreements signed by America in effect would become permanent.

Pledges Innocent Passage.

Undoubtedly there would not have been much significance in the committee's action or much opposition to it if Adolf A. Berle, chairman of the United States delegation and New Deal assistant secretary of state, had not come to Chicago with the draft of a "standard form" agreement which pledged America or any other country signing it to grant reciprocal air rights, including what is called the "right of innocent passage."

This is a technical term in international aviation which means freedom to fly over the territory of a foreign nation in "innocent," or noncommercial, flight. America never has made this concession on a wide scale before.

Observers here say that the danger in "innocent passage" concessions lies in the fact that foreign air lines could come into America from whatever countries our air lines touch, draw off American traffic, and run the American lines out of business.

Talk of Senate Action.

They reported that there has been "a lot of talk" about the part the United States senate may play in international aviation since it first was disclosed in THE TRIBUNE that New Deal elements in the American delegation may be trying to circumvent the senate thru the temporary agreement plan introduced by Berle.

A bloc of 19 Latin American nations which protested earlier in the week that the United States plan for creating an interim council, to handle international aviation problems until a permanent authority could be set up, was unfair to them, introduced their own plan yesterday. They protested because the American plan, which Berle brought from Washington, gave control of the council to the larger nations, such as the United States, Russia, the British empire, and France, and left only six out of 15 seats to be distributed among smaller nations.

The Latin American plan, which was presented as the work of the Mexican and Cuban delegations, would set up an assembly of 51 delegates, one from each nation, which would elect a 15 man interim council. This, they asserted, would give the smaller nations more chance of representation than would the American idea.

Some of the American observers said American aviation after the war can be protected only if the United States retains control of its air, with "reasonable" flying privileges granted to foreign nations, but no blanket concessions of "innocent passage."

In the same court, John Lesauskas, 31, of 4501 S. Paulina st., the father of five children, was sentenced to serve two years. He already was on probation on a similar charge.

Judge William J. Campbell granted two years' probation to Vincent R. Rawski, 39, of 955 N. Racine av., a letter carrier since 1928, and John F. Allen, 40, Negro, of 3447 Cottage Grove av., night fireman at the Englewood postoffice. Both pleaded guilty to charges of stealing from the mail.

John J. Woods, 55, of 7102 W. 16th st., who was charged with using the mails to defraud, yesterday was discharged by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. Woods said he was unable to complete delivery of plaques ordered by churches because of a cardboard shortage.

ADMITS KILLING BOY, 4, IN GAME OF 'COMMANDO'

New York, Nov. 9 [Special].—Frank Pape, 16, was booked today on a homicide charge in Bronx Magistrate's court after he told police he had strangled William Drach.

The body of the Drach boy, bound with a clothesline and gagged with a handkerchief, was found Oct. 29 in the basement of his apartment home.

Detective William Theis said Pape, who lived near the Drach home, met William near a movie theater where he had seen an actor trussed up. He suggested they play "Commando."

The boy agreed, Pape was quoted as saying, and was tied up. When the boy's eyes began to protrude, Pape told police, he threw a burlap bag over the boy and fled.

Fight Is Urged on Exploitation of Child Labor

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Some years ago I had several friends who were passionately concerned with the abolition of child labor in the United States, and who fought for the passage of legislation protecting our children against exploitation. I remember some of the pitiful, shocking photographs that were used as arguments to achieve their ends, among them those of under-nourished, under-sized boys who were working long hours each day in or near the mines.

If we are not alert, some of these hard won gains will be lost. Already since war has caused such a dearth of man power in peace time occupations and industry, minors are being again exploited. Both the federal government and the state governments are combatting this trend, and taking steps to enforce the child labor act. There have been thousands of violations. The violation, incidentally, is a misdemeanor, punishable by a $250 fine, a 60 day jail sentence, or both. Unfortunately the penalties for violations have been made too light.

Under the present laws of, for instance, the state of New York, no child under 14 may be employed, and children under 18 must have working papers issued by the board of education, after a physical examination has been given. The working hours and the type of work for which they may be hired are governed by state regulation. Yet in spite of this, there were bowling alleys which kept pin boys working past midnight, hotels employing bellboys more than 48 hours a week, and small companies employing minors who had not received their "working papers."

Perhaps some figures will bring home to all of us the need of still one more kind of war to be waged on the home front, this one in behalf of our children. Mr. Edward Corsi, industrial commissioner of the New York state department of labor, estimated that, while before Pearl Harbor only 76,000 children under 18 were working in New York state, 425,000 children were working, legally or illegally, at the time of the report I am quoting.

Dear Diary BY BECKY

[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.] [Copyright] [1944 By The Chicago Tribune]

Paris Designer Puts Emphasis on Smart Detail

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Beautifully made fur and cloth coats and matching suits and dresses are the outstanding features of Lucien Lelong's collection for the winter of 1944-'45.

"Afadin" is a leopard skin coat trimmed with a blue velvet collar. It is worn over a blue dress suit with wide winged shoulders embroidered in black. Scotch plaid is used to fashion big collar scarves on plain black coats. The same plaid material lines the coat and forms a dress with all-around plaits on skirt and waist.

Most of the afternoon dresses, worn under full length Persian lamb or blue fox coats, are fully draped at the hips. They have long zipper fastenings in the back. Collars and cuffs are trimmed with narrow bands of fur matching the coats.

Drapery made of shining plaid taffeta appears at the hips and forms the long train of an evening dress, the top of which is of velvet. Lelong closed his winter show with a long sleeved, square shouldered brocaded satin wedding gown. The train is several yards long. Veiling forms a high turban and falls on the train.

Max Fur shop presents unusual adaptations of French skins. A wide, square shouldered, full sleeved dress model is made of ordinary rabbit dyed to imitate chinchilla. Everyday squirrel pelts, found abundantly in Paris, are fashioned to resemble Russian sable in a knee length evening cape.

Natural red fox, also common in France, is dyed to imitate blue fox. Full length coats cut very wide are made of this fur.

Plain Australian sheep is transformed into silky Hudson seal by amazing artistry. This fur is mounted on woolen material to fashion smart, dressy coats with circular skirts.

Among the rare furs remaining in France there are still a few pelts of ermine, sable, and mink. The ermine is dyed dark brown and fashioned into an evening wrap with winged sleeves. The mink coat is in classic straight lines with the new, large balloon sleeves. Sable is seen in richly designed evening jackets.

FASHIONS
By Angela

After wishing for a luxurious lounge suit that the budget wouldn't allow, there is no greater delight than to find one under the tree on Christmas morning. A new group of rich looking lounge suits combining brocades with velvet, taffeta, and crepes is now available.

The Chinese influence is apparent in the short white brocade jacket splashed with vivid rosy red chrysanthemums, at the left. It is straight, slit at the sides, has a brief standup collar and long loose sleeves, and is fastened at the front with material frogs. The slim black velvet slacks worn with it offer striking contrast.

Exclamatory is the word for the handsome lounge suit in the center, which combines black velvet slacks with a black and white striped taffeta top. Velvet sleeves and bow tied at the waist are featured on the gracefully flaring tunic top. This same model is available in pink with black and gold with black.

Again the oriental influence is found in the suit at the right. A crisp white brocade rayon satin top has a modified diagonal closing from the stand-up collar. It is trimmed with huge gold colored plastic buttons. The back is slim and fitted. Chinese red crepe trousers provide an elegant contrast.

White Collar GIRL

Man Power Shortage.

A certain boss sent his office girl to get tickets for a radio show. She was told to let nothing happen to those tickets. About three-quarters of an hour later, she returned with an escort which came along to see that nothing happened to the tickets. That escort included just about all of the radio station's orchestra and a leading crooner.

Is it any wonder one of the stenos remarked, "I thought there was a man power shortage."

Super Sisters.

Years ago, when I saw what a slight bit of authority did to warp the dispositions of females, I decided then and there never to strive for colossal success other than to do my job right. How I hate to admit this, but twice I was mistaken in my size-up of these superlative business paragons, really believing I had misjudged my super sisters, chiding myself for having nursed a feeling that some ladies love to wield the scepter.

I have seen one of them lose the seat of the mighty and the other—well, give her time! For, were it not for the men [whom we secretly adore because they're such good eggs—nincompoops tho they be for failing to notice holler-than-thou situations], were it not for the loyal assistants of 20 years' standing not wishing to make the lot of the men more trying, the turn-over in our place would be far greater than it is. THE BIG SHOT'S TYPIST.

Know Thyself.

"Character Analysis as a Game and a Guide" is the subhead of a new book, "Know Yourself," by Wells Carr. It is a series of personal quizzes—a sort of see-your-self-face-to-face book.

"Can You Concentrate?" . . . "Do You Bluff?" . . . "Are You Attractive?"—those are some of the hundred or more tests which, by answering the questions honestly, will introduce you to yourself.

Pianist Uninsky Scores Success with Orchestra

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw conducting; Alexander Uninsky, pianist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Nov. 9, 1944, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:
Concerto for String Orchestra, No. 3, G major.....Bach
Sinfonia for Double Orchestra, D major, Opus 18, No. 3.....J. C. Bach
Concerto for Piano, No. 2, A major.....Liszt
Concerto for Piano, No. 3, C major.....Prokofieff
"La Mer".....Debussy

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

When Alexander Uninsky appeared in début recital here about a year ago, it was told that Désiré Defauw said to him, "If I am reengaged next season I want you as one of my soloists. It was a good idea. The Russian pianist scored a deserved success in Orchestra hall last night when he played Liszt's A major concerto and Prokofieff's in C major with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

It seemed to me that in juxtaposition each concerto diminished rather than enhanced the effect of the other, but that had nothing to do with the way each was played. Mr. Uninsky is a slight, dark man who holds nerves in taut leash until he starts to play, then he forgets about them. He has a supple, apparently a comprehensive technique, and his tone has velvety beauty, tho it sometimes lacks the power to cut thru full orchestration. After a tight-fisted start, his Liszt had more than a touch of the grand manner in its gracious phrasing, and no touch of bombast even in the score's less persuasive moments. Here, as in the Prokofieff, he had a sensitivity toward the mood of music that explains much about his winning the Chopin Concourse. He was unable to duplicate Prokofieff's own steely brilliance in the latter concerto's climactic finale but within his own scale of dynamics he gave a highly effective performance.

Both accompaniments were excellent. Mr. Defauw, always at his best in Liszt, gave the performance the feeling of the composer's own description, "Concert symphonique." It was all of a piece, and a handsome one, tho in 1944 a period piece. Both here and in the Prokofieff the orchestra was a supple instrument, fluent and authoritative in support and contrast, taking in its stride the fustian sweep of the older work with its flashes of prickling brilliance, and the contemporary score with its wiry resilience and those beguiling intrusions of sentiment constantly rebuffed. Some of the playing was the orchestra's best this season, including Dudley Powers' cello, which had a new richness to underscore the piano.

But all this was the best of the concert. Mr. Defauw makes Bach dull and when that happens in the Third Brandenburg Concerto, it isn't Bach's fault. The English Bach came off better with his graceful Sinfonia for Double Orchestra, particularly in the lovely melody that opens the andante. Debussy's "La Mer," which ended a curiously constructed program, displayed the surface of a wonderful score, but failed to discover the pulse beat that can make it magical.

Infant's Jackets

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Three wool jackets for the newly born infant are none too many. Two of these are crocheted in a shell stitch and double crochet, respectively. The third is a serviceable knitted nightingale [shoulderette to adults] which is simple to do since it consists of ribbing at the wrists and a straight band of garter stitch thruout.

For instructions in making the three jackets, No. 1099, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you haven't already trotted out to the store and bought a preparation to keep your hands soft and pretty during the winter months, better not waste much more time or you'll find yourself with a pair of hands that won't be either comfortable or presentable before long. The last few days have been sharp enough to bring on the seasonal hand problems, chapping, roughness, and redness—three bogeys that only constant care can scare away.

For something that's as effective as it is quick to use, we like a lotion we've been trying lately. It's on the thickish, creamy side, prettily scented, and only a very little is needed for a single application. There's no aggravating, prolonged wringing and rubbing of the hands necessary to work it into the skin, it disappears in a jiffy, and the skin feels smoother and less tense almost instantly. It doesn't leave any stickly film in its wake, and you may even draw your gloves on immediately after using it, a test for any cream or lotion. As a softener it's as efficient as anything we've ever tried, and the overall effect is to keep even the most sensitive hand skin looking and feeling in perfection condition.

Not the least of the lotion's good points is the fact that it serves as an excellent protective to be used before tackling any job that calls for immersing the hands in hot, soapy water. Smooth a little of it on before washing dishes, scrubbing floors, or doing the laundry, and you can be assured that the hands will come out little the worse for wear. A second application upon completion of the task and the hands will look as pampered and pretty as if you had nothing more in the world to do than to look to their care.

Metal Weaves Add to Appeal of New Blouses

BY REA SEEGER.

Handsome metallic weave blouses with plenty of eye appeal will shimmer effectively under suits of velvet, heavy satin, or silk and the newest of all dark beauties those suits of outstanding elegance, made of smooth broadcloth. The metallic brocades are especially beautiful because they're far from garish or crude in dazzle or color contrast.

Many are deceptively simple in shirtwaist style, with long sleeves cuffed and held with pearl stud buttons to match the row of simulated pearls down the center front panel. They even have the demure little tie bow at the high collarline, but after that all resemblance vanishes. Such contrasts as huge quarter size dots in gold or silver thread make them essentially dressy. Both white and black crepes with these large coin size dots are shown.

Narrow multi-colored stripes are extremely effective in metallic brocades. Such jubilant mixtures make ideal sleeveless blouses or models in which mere shoulder caps serve as sleeves. Rhinestone buttons add zest to the already festive appearance of these models, also to those with bracelet length sleeves.

Celestial shades of blue, shot with either silver or gold threads, also rose-red and some stunning russet gold tones, likewise shimmering with metal threads thru the woven texture, are so simply fashioned that the metal does not detract from the gleam of the material itself. But the brocaded patterns of all-over design make the most effective blouses for winter suits. Many can be worn with long evening skirts of velvet or crepe to make smart dinner or evening costumes.

War to Give Missions Day New Meaning

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

With the value of Christian missionary activities being demonstrated to personnel of the country's various military services in the Pacific war theater, Sunday's observance in many Protestant churches of the 14th annual Men and Missions Sunday will have a renewed reality. The observance is sponsored nationally by the Laymen's Missionary movement, headed by Prof. Arthur H. Compton of the University of Chicago.

Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago business executive and founding president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak by transcription over several hundred radio stations on the significance of missions and will be heard over W-G-N at 9:30 a. m. Sunday. Edward Foss Wilson, Chicago packer, will speak over 150 Blue network stations at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Fred J. Michel, secretary of the missionary movement, said observances will be held in at least 6,000 military units of the United States and Canada and that thousands of churches will emphasize the importance of missions. The Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church and head of the Federal Council of Churches, urged widespread observance of the day on the ground that "after this war opportunities for evangelistic work will be open all over the world as never before." Thirty-six Protestant communions are officially participating in the movement and in Sunday's observance.

Pre-war Armistice Sunday services will be supplanted in many churches Sunday by memorial services for those who have given their lives in the present conflict. Prominent in these services is one announced by the Rev. Dr. Duncan H. Browne of St. James Episcopal church, 666 Rush st., where Wilfred H. Gallienne, British consul general, and the British delegation to the international civil aviation conference will participate. Delegations from WACs, WAVES, SPARS, and other military units will be present. Dr. Browne will give the sermon.

"What Will V-Day Bring to the Jewish People?" will be the subject of a Sunday conference of Zionist leaders in the Hamilton hotel. The meeting will be preliminary to the annual conference of the Jewish National fund Nov. 18 and 19 in the Stevens hotel. Dr. Israel H. Weisfeld of West Suburban Jewish center, Oak Park, will be moderator of Sunday's conference.

Social Agency Asks Furniture for Its Quarters

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A social agency has asked our assistance in furnishing new quarters. The club is not permitted to spend funds for such purposes and is in need of either modern leather and metal or wicker furniture for a reception room. Overstuffed furniture would not be suitable.

Many of the clients of the agency are mothers who must bring their children with them, and the agency would like to provide some form of amusement and entertainment for the youngsters while their parents are being interviewed. Children's furniture and toys of all kinds would be most useful. Articles from the north or northwest side could be most conveniently handled.

A young mother who is trying to establish a home for herself and infant has requested our assistance in furnishing several rooms. She is earning a small salary, but it is not sufficient to provide necessary items, which include a table and chairs, bedroom furniture, as well as lamps, rugs, etc. The address is on the west side.

Symphony Tea Today to Bring Romantic News

BY JUDITH CASS.

One of the pleasantest gatherings following the Chicago Symphony concert this afternoon, tho one of the smallest, will be held in the Lake Shore dr. apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, who are entertaining at a tea for Mrs. Edward A. Smith of Highland Park and Dr. Carl B. Davis of Evanston. The purpose of the gathering is to tell close friends of Mrs. Smith and Dr. Davis that they are to be married.

News of the engagement of Mrs. Smith, a widow, and Dr. Davis, a widower, already has been told to a few of their intimate friends. No plans have been made as yet for the wedding, thru which Mrs. Smith will acquire a large family. Dr. Davis has two sons and a daughter, Carl Jr., John B., and Mrs. Roderick McKinnon, and several grandchildren.

Other Gatherings.

Mrs. Charles A. Weaver is entertaining at luncheon at the Woman's Athletic club before the symphony today for her house guests from Waynesburg, Pa., Mrs. D. Webster Lynch and Mrs. Helen D. Howard. Mrs. Weaver will entertain again at the club Tuesday for her guests following a talk by Pierre Clemenceau on "France Today and Tomorrow," which should be one of the most interesting on the club's winter calendar of lectures and to which members only will be admitted.

M. Clemenceau is a grandson of George Clemenceau, the Old Tiger of France, and was sent to Washington, D. C., by the French national committee as a member of the French supply council. Mrs. Allan M. Clement will be his hostess at luncheon that day, and seated at their table will be a number of women, all club members, who also are active in French organizations and who speak French, among them Mrs. Francis M. Gunn, new president of the Alliance Francaise, and Mrs. George Cragg.

Mrs. Gunn will preside at a luncheon the Alliance Francaise will give tomorrow at the Casino for the new French consul in Chicago, Lionel Vasse, and the founder of the Federation of the Alliance Francaise, James Hazen Hyde. Some of those who have made reservations for the party are the Robert Hall McCormicks, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, and Mrs. Harry M. Dingman.

On the Calendar.

The English Speaking union's luncheon speaker today will be Carl August Berendsen, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States from New Zealand, who will address the Chicago chapter in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. William M. Scudder, and Mrs. Benyuard B. Wygant will act as hostesses. Mr. Berendsen, who succeeded Walter Nash in July, and his wife will stay at the Blackstone over the week-end.

Wilfred H. Gallienne, British consul general, and Mrs. Gallienne, will entertain at dinner tonight for the Berendsens, and Mrs. Laban J. Brady will give a luncheon for Mrs. Berendsen at the Woman's Athletic club tomorrow while Frank A. Hecht, president of the union, entertains at luncheon for the minister at the Chicago club. The Clark J. Lawrences will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon in Winnetka for the visitors, and the Hechts will give a dinner for them Sunday.

Dartmouth night, set for tonight, which ordinarily is observed principally in the United States, this year will be celebrated all over the world, wherever Dartmouth men are serving. The local alumni and their wives, plus Dartmouth service men from stations around Chicago, will meet for cocktails from 5 to 7 p. m. at the University club. Harold V. Clarke heads the Chicago alumni.

The Cliff Dwellers will gather at 6 p. m. today for their annual harvest home dinner and entertain-

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

The marine corps women's color guard, the only such unit in the Chicago area, will appear at a luncheon meeting of the Traffic Club of Chicago at 12:30 p. m. today in the organization's headquarters in the Palmer House. The day has been proclaimed United States Marine Corps day in the city by Mayor Kelly and is the 169th anniversary of the founding of the corps.

The women's color guard was formed in April when the Marine Corps league presented to Capt. Katherine B. Persons, 1132 Farwell av., a set of flags for the corps' central division, which has headquarters in Chicago. The standard bearers, four regulars and two alternates, were trained by marine Staff Sgt. Ben D. Liberacki, 7239 Bennett av., who also was responsible for the training of the men's color guard.

After numerous appearances at memorial services, dedications, and parties for returned marine veterans, the women now are so proficient that even hard to please Sgt. Liberacki is satisfied with their performance.

Sgt. Edna J. Rosner, Seaford, N. J.; Staff Sgt. Val McCorkle, St. Louis, Mo.; Staff Sgt. Elaine Rentz, Newark, N. J., and Sgt. Mary A. Pettit, also of St. Louis, are the regulars in the guard. Sgt. Kathleen Burroughs, Coronado, Cal., and Sgt. Martha Arnold, Buchanan, Mich., are the alternates. All six are attached to the central division's procurement staff.

A colored Walt Disney certificate will be given to all Illinois children bond purchasers thru the women's division of the war finance committee, Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, head of the committee's women in Illinois, said yesterday.

War bonds in any denomination of the series E, bought at any bond booth, bank, or other authorized issuing agency, and issued in the name of the child, will entitle the owner to the Disney certificate, which is obtainable thru the chairmen of 102 counties.

Parents, grandparents, and other relatives of Illinois children are urged by Mrs. Hixon to "buy a bond for baby" for Christmas.

In Cook county, certificates may be obtained thru the women's division of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, room 400, 105 W. Adams st., of which Mrs. Walter B. Wolf is chairman.

The woman's board of Children's Memorial hospital will give a tea Monday in the lounge of the nurses' residence. Special guests will be volunteers who have devoted at least 200 hours each to the hospital. Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell and Mrs. Herbert H. Kennedy, in-patient and out-patient chairmen, respectively, and the committee on volunteers will have charge of the party, at which Mrs. Maxwell will award merit pins. Among the recipients will be Mrs. John A. Holabird, who has served 1,000 hours as a Red Cross nurses' aid.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mrs. William O. Hunt, and Mrs. Bruce Borland will preside at the tea tables.

News Is Given of Weddings in Recent Weeks

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. James Davis Woolf of Santa Fe, N. M., formerly of Winnetka, of the marriage Oct. 14 of their daughter, Margaret, to Lt. John H. Milne of the marine corps, son of Mrs. John H. Milne of La Jolla, Cal. The ceremony took place in the Marine chapel in Quantico, Va., where Lt. Milne is stationed, followed by a reception in Washington, D. C. The bride attended the Roycemore school and the University of Arizona, where Lt. Milne also was a student before entering the marine corps. They are at home in Quantico.

From Minneapolis, Minn., comes the announcement of the marriage Oct. 28 in the chapel of the Hennepin Avenue Methodist church of Miss Edith Miriam Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Harrison, to Lt. (j. g.) Randolph Herman of the navy. Lt. Herman and his bride are spending a few days in Highland Park with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Herman, before going to Seattle, Wash., where he will receive further orders. Mrs. Herman attended Smith college. Lt. Herman, who recently has returned from duty in the Mediterranean area, attended Lake Forest academy and is a graduate of Tabor academy and Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Louise Wenzel to Lt. Charles Vincent Barrett Jr. of the army medical corps took place Oct. 1 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wenzel of Wheaton. Lt. Barrett, son of Mrs. Charles V. Barrett of Chicago, and his bride are living in Lebanon, Pa., near his post at the Indiantown Gap military reservation. The bride attended MacMurray college and was graduated in September from the Evanston hopsital school of nursing. Lt. Barrett was graduated from the medical school at Northwestern university.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dulcy Goldstein to Ensign Malcolm Paul Steinlauf of the naval reserve Oct. 30 in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moe Goldstein of Winnetka. Miss Irene Goldstein came home from Pembroke college to be her sister's maid of honor, and Ensign Steinlauf's father, Charles Steinlauf, who was here from Beverly Hills, Cal., with Mrs. Steinlauf, served as best man. Ensign Steinlauf, who formerly was stationed in Chicago, has taken his bride to his new post in San Pedro, Cal.

They Never Heard of CALCIUM!

BUT OF COURSE you mothers know your children need calcium to help grow strong, straight bones and sound teeth. Do you also know that scientists say they should get EXTRA calcium? Considerably more than the official daily minimum!

A SIMPLE way to make sure they get this "extra" is to give them Cocomalt* (hot or cold) with their meals.

COCOMALT* makes 3 glasses of milk equal a quart in calcium value...gives them that needed "extra"! (Also extra iron, phosphorus, Vitamin B_1, and their day's need of sunshine Vitamin D...so important during dark winter days indoors!)

AND Cocomalt turns their milk into a delicious, chocolatey treat children love! Play safe! Get Cocomalt today in the ½-lb. or 1-lb. family economy size.

Cranberries will not add brilliant color to as many tables this year as in previous holiday seasons. First, there's a smaller crop of berries, with a subsequent rise in price. Then there's the matter of sweetening the tangy fruit which scares off those who have an anxious eye on the dwindling sugar supply.

From the sugar standpoint, however, it's still possible to work cranberries into the season's menus. Cranberry molds, relishes, salads, and pies sweetened partly with sugar substitutes differ only slightly in flavor from the all-sugar product.

Cranberry Sauce.

[One quart.]

1 cup sugar
1 cup dark or white corn sirup
1¾ cups water
4 cups cranberries [one pound]

Boil sugar, corn sirup, and water together 5 minutes. Add cranberries and boil without stirring until all the skins pop open, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and allow to cool in saucepan. The use of the dark corn sirup gives a caramel-like flavor, while the white variety resembles the sugar-made sauce. To can the sauce for future use, fill hot sterilized jars with hot sauce and seal at once.

Cranberry Orange Relish.

[One quart.]

2 oranges
1 cup sugar
1 cup corn sirup or ½ cup honey

Wash berries, drain well, and put thru food chopper. Cut the unpeeled oranges into quarters, remove seeds, and put thru chopper. Add sugar and corn sirup or honey and mix well. Chill in refrigerator a few hours before serving. Keeps well in the refrigerator for several weeks.

To make a tart and refreshing dinner or luncheon salad, add 1 to 1½ cups of the relish to orange or lemon gelatin which has begun to thicken. Add a spoonful of relish to meat filling for a sandwich. French dressing plus a little cranberry orange relish makes a novel mixed greens salad and enhances an orange and avocado combination.

Cranberry Mold.

1¾ cups water
1 cup sugar
1 cup corn sirup or ½ cup honey

Cook cranberries in water until all the skins pop open. Strain, add sugar and corn sirup or honey, and blend well. Boil rapidly for about 5 minutes or until a drop jells on a cold plate. Skim and pour into one large mold or individual molds. Chill until firm.

Cranberry Pie.

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup corn sirup or ½ cup honey or 1 cup maple sirup
4 cups cranberries [one pound]
2 tablespoons margarine
Grated rind ½ lemon

Mix dry ingredients together, add corn sirup, honey, or maple sirup, and heat carefully until sugar is melted. Add cranberries and cook slowly until skins pop open. Add lemon rind and margarine. Cool, but do not stir. Pour into pastry lined 9-inch pie plate. Cover with crisscross strips of pastry, moistening ends and pressing into edge of under crust. Brush crust with milk and bake in a 425 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Honey Pumpkin Pie Is a Honey

This honey pumpkin pie is another sugarless dessert success. Mix together 1¼ cups canned or fresh cooked pumpkin or squash, 2 cups milk and cream or evaporated milk and water, ¾ cup honey (or white or brown sugar), 3 well beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon salt. Pour into unbaked pie shell and bake in hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 minutes, then reduce temperature to 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes longer or until firm in center. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Beef Problem Again Looms for Housewife

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

A recent war food administration announcement that the public soon will get better beef has caused some retail butcher shop owners and housewives to become optimistic over the prospects of extra steaks this month. Distribution experts in Packingtown, after an analysis of the situation, said yesterday there is no basis for such rosy dreams.

The fact is that the cost of beef meals will be higher in money as well as ration points as the character of animals marketed is altered by a seasonal shift. The shift will bring a larger percentage from the corn belt states and fewer from the western range region.

The amount of low cost, nonrationed beef enjoyed for some weeks will grow smaller before the end of this month. This will be a disappointment to housewives who have been able to fit this beef into a program of economy helpful both to the money and ration point budget. As the WFA says, better grade beef will comprise a larger percentage of available supplies in butcher shops.

However, the over-all supply is expected to tighten in the weeks ahead, and in order to obtain the same amount of beef the family has been getting thru use of point-free products, the housewife will find she must use more red points because nonrationed beef will be scarce. With butter having a considerably higher point value than a few weeks ago when strain of ration coupons was eased by the point-free beef, many families will find the going tougher when the butcher informs the Mrs. he is unable to get as much low cost beef.

In the opinion of most meat experts in the stock yards, production of point-free beef has passed the year's peak. As soon as the movement of western range cattle has decreased enough so butcher shops can notice the effects, they will have to supply ration points for a larger proportion of the meat delivered by the packer.

INSTALMENT XLVII.

NEAR DEATH.

Janice felt a warmth rise up in her. She hadn't known how cold she was until that warmth touched her, and she knew it was hope. She began to pray with all her might.

Cyril Bond, glaring at the enemy he meant to scalp, was suddenly aware that he was closer than he had meant to be to Mrs. Mottram's drawing room windows. He wasn't really supposed to be there at all. All the same he was too near the window, and—jeepers!—there was Mr. Everton no more than a yard inside it. Lucky he wasn't looking this way, but he might turn round. Cyril prepared for flight.

And then something stopped him. He could see Mr. Everton's back, and Miss Meade standing up in the middle of the room, and Mrs. Mottram down by the fire. Miss Meade looked funny somehow. Mr. Everton had his hand in his pocket, and then it came out with a pistol in it. Just for a moment Cyril felt excited, and then something began to heave inside him and he wondered if he was going to be sick because Mr. Everton was pointing the gun at Miss Meade, and Cyril heard him say, not loud but very distinctly:

"Don't move, either of you!"

He must have crawled clear of the lilacs, but he didn't remember doing it. He thought he was going to be sick, but he kept on running. He barged into Maj. Albany and gasped thru chattering teeth:

"He's shooting them! Mr. Everton's shooting them in Mrs. Mottram's drawing room! Ow, major!"

Mr. Everton stood with his pistol leveled and considered his plan. If he shot one of them, the other girl would scream. He couldn't risk a scream. He said quite pleasantly:

"My dear lady, nobody is going to hurt you, but I want a little time to get away." When as Ida blinked bewildered blue eyes at him, "Miss Meade, you've got a head on your shoulders. I don't want to hurt either of you, but you must see that I can't risk your giving the alarm. If you will do what you are told you will be quite safe. I don't think Mrs. Mottram has as much self-control as you have, and I want to gag her. There is some nice pink silk in her work basket there which will do very well. Hurry!" There was a dangerous urgency in Mr. Everton's voice.

Her head felt stiff. She turned it a little, and saw Ida Mottram kneeling upon the hearth rug and staring blankly at the pistol. She said in a surprised voice:

"I don't understand——" and Mr. Everton said, "I'm afraid you will have to be gagged, but nobody is going to hurt you."

That wasn't true. Janice looked back at him. For a moment that had nothing to do with time—it was just as if she was looking thru a window into his mind. He would make her gag Ida, and then he would kill them both—her first, before she could scream, and then Ida, who couldn't scream because she would be gagged.

Something in her said "No!" and her mind went cold and clear. She said in a slow, considering voice:

"I'm sorry—would you mind saying it again? What do you want me to do?"

He began to tell her all over again, but before he had said more than half a dozen words she saw Garth come round the corner of the house. He was running. She picked up the heavy glass bowl with the roses and pitched it at Mr. Everton as hard as she could. It took him full in the face with a scatter of roses and water, and the bowl smashing home. His glasses broke, and he cried out with a horrible animal sound of pain. Ida Mottram screamed at the top of her voice. And then, Garth turned the handle without any sound at all and stepped into the room.

He made a long reach over Mr. Everton's drenched shoulder, took him by the wrist, and jerked his right hand up. The pistol went off, and a little plaster came pattering down onto the table where the bowl had stood.

The next thing she knew, she was at the telephone calling up the police. Mr. Everton was on the ground with Garth sitting on him, and Ida was saying between her sobs, "O, you've broken my bowl! And it's cut his face—it's bleeding! O, poor Mr. Everton!"

A day or two later there was a gathering at the rectory to bid Miss Silver good-by—Miss Sophy, Garth and Janice, Sgt. Abbott, Ida Mottram, and Miss Medora Brown who was really Mrs. Madoc.

Frank Abbott, who appeared to be off duty, and was sitting reverentially on a fat Victorian stool at Miss Silver's feet, said in a coaxing voice:

"Come along—tell us all. They think at the Yard that he'll talk. That sort does, you know—likes to boast about how clever it's been—all that sort of thing. And when they talk there's more than a chance that they'll give away more than they mean to. We want the boy friend he met at the Ram, and I rather think we'll get him, but meanwhile you can give us a lead. You suspected Everton from the first—didn't you? Why?"

"My dear Frank, you are so impulsive. I did not begin to suspect Mr. Everton until Wednesday—the day before we made our expedition to Marbury."

"What happened on Wednesday?"

"Very little—very little indeed. If I had mentioned it, you would have thought that I was exaggerating the importance of a trifle. When I was waiting in the garden for Miss Fell, who was very kindly taking me to call on the Miss Doncasters, the evacuee child, Cyril Bond, was up on the wall. As you may have observed, he has a considerable thirst for knowledge. He leaned suddenly out between the overhanging branches and inquired, 'What does "Sprechen Sie Deutsch" mean?'—mispronouncing the words in a most afflicting manner. However, the sense was clear, and I told him it meant, 'Do you speak German?' He had apparently picked up the phrase from another evacuee."

Ida Mottram said in a puzzled voice,

"But why?"

"Cyril informed me that he had approached Mr. Everton before asking me, and that Mr. Everton had said he did not know any German. It seemed incredible to me that an educated man who was aware that the language in question was German should have been unacquainted with the meaning of so common a phrase. And I wondered why he should have been at so much pains. After that the circle kept narrowing. I had never been able to believe in Mr. Madoc's guilt, and his testimony cleared Bush. Everything else apart, Mr. Madoc could not have killed Ezra Pincott, since he was away then in Marbury jail. And Mr. Bush could not have killed Mr. Harsch if Mr. Madoc's statement was correct."

Frank Abbott nodded.

"No—we checked it all up—he couldn't have got to the place where Madoc saw him in the time."

Pilot Club Will Honor District Head Tonight

The Chicago Pilot club, a service organization for business and professional women, will have a dinner party at 6 o'clock tonight in the Bismarck hotel for Miss Catherine Streitmiller, governor of the international club's 12th district, which encompasses the states of Illinois and Iowa. Mrs. Helen Salisbury heads the hostess group.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	1 spade	5 diamonds	Pass
6 diamonds	Pass	Pass	Pass

We continue the discussion of slam bidding on a common sense basis. There are certain hands which call for splashing methods. On these hands scientific treatment will frequently clog up the machinery, whereas the "slam-bang" methods of the tired business man may prove more effective in collecting the chips. Sometimes, however, there can be a happy combination of the splash method and the scientific treatment.

Take today's hand for example, when North opens the bidding with one diamond and East overcalls with one spade, it is no secret to South that a slam is no worse than around the corner. There is no thought of any losers in diamonds or clubs. As far as hearts are concerned, if North does not have the king, then it is very likely that East does, because of his bid, in which case the finesse would succeed. The only worry, therefore, is "Will we lose two spade tricks?" North might have the ace and queen of diamonds, the king and queen of clubs, and the king of hearts, which would be a high grade opening, but two spade tricks would be lost. South's problem is how can I tell my partner that if we have no more than one spade loser, we will probably make a slam. The answer seems to me very simple. South should bid five diamonds.

With the part score of 60 this cannot be considered as a pre-empt, but the common sense language of the bid must be: "Partner, I will take care of everything but spades; from where I sit that is all we can lose. Can you guarantee us against the loss of two spade tricks? If so, bid a slam."

North, despite his minimum opening should read this message and bid the slam because of the king of spades; with the lead coming to him no more than one spade trick can be lost.

Had North's hand been:
♠ 7 6 ♥ K 8 4 ♦ A Q 10 7 4 ♣ K Q J

he would have more honor tricks yet would have been obliged to pass the bid of five diamonds.

Without the part score, South's best bid over one spade would be the immediate slam try of three hearts to be followed subsequently by showing the ace of clubs.

[The usual weekly quiz will appear tomorrow.]

Nurses Told Family Must Deal Wisely with Returned Vet

Families of returning service men — and women — will have to deal with boys and girls grown old beyond their years, and must go at least half way in helping these veterans make their post-war adjustments, Dr. Coleman Griffith, provost of the University of Illinois, told members of the Illinois State Nurses' association and Illinois State League of Nursing Education yesterday. The annual convention of the groups, at which he spoke, being held in the Palmer House, will close tomorrow.

The first months after the veteran's return will try the nerves of his family, Dr. Griffith said. It is during this period that wise families will appraise the character of their service men, study their methods and measure their abilities.

"The impact of the veteran on the thought and culture of our times will be far greater than we now can imagine, Dr. Griffith said. "The full force of this impact will be felt first around the family circle."

Cautioning against attempts to force the veteran into the usual channels of life he said, "There is no measure for the amount of heartache that will follow this practice, and if it is followed generally the national heartache will be even more intense."

Stage Note

John Van Druten, author of "The Voice of the Turtle," is in town to take a look at the company now at the Selwyn. Mr. Van Druten missed the Chicago opening because he was launching his new hit, "I Remember Mama," now a New York favorite.

Install Dr. Croneis as Beloit College President Tomorrow

Speakers at the installation will include President Virgil Melvin Hancher, University of Iowa; President Donald M. Cowling, Carleton college, and Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the University of Chicago chapel.

A reception for Dr. and Mrs. Croneis will be held tonight in Wright hall of the college. A special car to take alumni to Beloit for the installation will be attached to the 9 a. m. train on the Chicago and North Western railroad tomorrow. It will leave Beloit to return to Chicago at 5:55 p. m.

Dr. Croneis, who succeeds the late Dr. Irving Maurer, has been on the faculty of the University of Chicago since 1928 as professor of geology. At present he is consultant to the national defense research committee.

'Master Race' Long Way from Master Movie

"THE MASTER RACE."

An RKO Radio picture, directed by Herbert J. Biberman, with George Coulouris, Stanley Ridges, and Osa Massen, and presented at the Palace.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

There undoubtedly is drama of a large order to be wrung from the problems of post-war Europe—but "The Master Race" decidedly isn't it. It doesn't make you hate the Germans, feel sorry for the Belgians, or admire the noble Americans. It just makes you wonder once more what's wrong with Hollywood.

As far as this picture goes we can tell you. It's feebly written, moves ponderously, is hammily acted, makes its villain incredibly villainous, its heroes unbelievably pure, and is by turns syrupily sentimental and boringly preachy. All of which, indeed, does not add up to a capital crime, except that the tone and production are very much on the pretentious side.

In the first scene a certain Col. Von Beck—played to the hilt by George Coulouris—instructs his Nazi cohorts concerning their conduct in the post-war world of defeated Nazilism. "Divide and conquer" still is the essence of his doctrine, tho it now includes hating Germans as well, if anything is to be gained by it. The colonel then betakes himself to a liberated Belgian village where he forces himself into the household of some collaborationist relatives. From there he conducts his insidious campaign against the American occupation authorities who are nobly striving to bring peace and order out of chaos. He finds it easy going for a while, but ends up before a firing squad, tho you are hardly convinced it's worth the waste of ammunition.

Huh uh!

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 9.—Now it can be told. The opening shots of "Ziegfeld Follies" will take you back into your book of memories, because figures of Fannie Brice singing "I'm an Indian," Eddie Cantor doing "Susie," Bert Williams, "I Ain't Got Nobody," Marilynn Miller dancing, Will Rogers with his rope trick, the Anna Held girls are all featured in Louis Bunin's Humanettes. They're little figures 8 inches high, which he's worked on for 14 months. They could shoot only a few feet a day, because figures had to be synchronized with the real voices taken from records, of course. The figures wink their eyes, act like the real thing. Louis' wife made all dresses, did hair styling, etc. It's greatly to Metro's credit that it has been able to keep this whole sequence under wraps all this time. Wouldn't even tell me when I made such a fuss about getting some of the old Ziegfeld girls back to show how they look now and what their activities are today. This is the reason my suggestion wasn't taken. But if this scene doesn't give every spectator a nostalgic feeling of happiness and sorrow, then I don't know what will.

A Writer, By Gosh!

George Seton has just about finished directing "Diamond Horseshoe," and it's so good Twentieth Century has handed him "Junior Miss" to do with Peggy Ann Garner. Mary Pickford was so certain she was going to get "Junior Miss" that for weeks she worked casting children. But said she, "I had fun—I met such cute kids." . . . Gilbert Miller and Homer Curran may revive Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan" with Ina Claire, Constance Collier, and Anita Louise on Broadway. . . . The wedding scene between Judy Garland and Bob Walker on "The Clock" gave folks on the set ideas. Judy's wardrobe girl, Evelyn Cornwall, became the bride of Jack Moss Jr., and Helen Young, Judy's hairdresser, will marry Wesley Sherrard Dec. 16. . . . John Charles Thomas' getup the other night nearly scared me. Shirt was brown and had yellow checks an inch square, tie an Italian sunset with red the predominant color. When I commented on it, Chuck said, "I'm a rancher now—remember?" . . . John Emery used to be a good guy, but now he does the villain in "Blood on the Sun," while bad boy Jimmy Cagney is hero.

New Method, but Does It Work?

Lyle Talbot, in San Francisco in "The Doll's House," has a new and winning way of courting his gal, Sheila Rogers. Instead of perfume and candy, she gets steaks, butter, and bacon. . . . Leo McCarey and writer Norman Reilly Raine lunched together at Lucey's. Does that mean Raine will be working on "The Bells of St. Mary's"? . . . Harry Sherman went to hear Lily Pons in opera here. Now's he's got some highbrow ideas. Wants to do a modern version of "Lucia di Lammermoor" with Lily. Well, before anybody gets Lily for anything she'll be on her way to China. . . . Bob Wright and George Forrest, our youthful composers who jumped into dazzling fame with their "Song of Norway," are hoping to bring Carmen Miranda back to Broadway, and also use Milton Berle in their new musical, "Spring in Brazil." . . . Now Twentieth wants to tie Sam Wood to a long termer.

A Postman's Holiday.

Quite a party the Charlie Morrisons put on at Mocambo for Charlie Berns of "21" fame. Gosh! We ate up the profits of the place for months in advance. Mrs. Berns' hats are the kind we cry over. The Eddie Sutherlands, Al Halls, Bill Gargans, Bob Hopes, Harry Crocker, the Myrt Blums, Mark Hellingers, Jerry Gieslers, and Dave Chasens were among those present. At that board, half a dozen great pictures could have been produced, directed, and cast. Ideas were flying thru the air like that man on the famous trapeze. . . . Harold Kress is now a director in Metro's shorts department. He came up from wardrobe to cutting. His first short is "Psychotic Study." . . . John Hodiak told William Eythe that playing opposite Tallulah Bankhead was better than finding a four leaf clover. His first break came in "Lifeboat." . . . Fred Kelsey, who was a prominent director when Errol Flynn was in three cornered pants, is playing a bartender in Flynn's "San Antonio."

Wintering in Chicago

in a Mt. Rock Fleece isn't half bad

As a matter of fact it isn't bad at all, whether we have a winter that's on the balmy side or one that sets a new record for snow and low temperatures. Mt. Rock Fleece will take you throughout any temperamental sallies of the thermometer. A special process which gives the cloth an extra surface nap without adding weight accounts for your comfort. This plus a suave fit and precise tailoring is most assuredly yours should the label on your overcoat read Mt. Rock.

CHARITY WEEK BETTING NEARS FIVE MILLIONS

8,000 Brave Cold at Sportsman's.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Wintry blasts chilled patrons at Sportsman's Park yesterday and there was more than a suggestion of rain, but 8,000 persons were out for the sport and the tempo of the wagering kept pace with that of the first three days of the Chicago Tribune Charities' week, which will bring the Chicago racing to a close tomorrow. The total handle was $673,732 yesterday.

The weather man has failed to produce the superb coöperation during the current charity session that was in evidence during the regular fall meeting at the half-mile track, but, where he has been remiss, the public has responded nobly. As a result, it seems likely that the total money which will go thru the parimutuel department during the six days of the charity session will reach $5,000,000.

Fund Nears Million.

Such a sum will mean that charitable organizations will share over a million dollars raised by the Chicago race track patrons since the season opened last April. The high mark, of course, was THE TRIBUNE'S meeting at Washington Park early in July, when $400,800 was realized for charity from five days of racing to which each Chicago track contributed one of its allotted dates.

The sport reaches the first of its climactic two days this afternoon when another nine race program will be run off with a 1:30 post time set for the first race. Tomorrow the first of the nine races will be called for 1:15.

This afternoon's card bears six sprint events and three distance affairs with the seventh race carrying the feature tag and being named for Shipstad and Johnson of the Ice Follies. It is a mile and one-sixteenth race for 3 year olds and upward and will be run for an $1,800 purse. Six thorobreds are entered, headed by F. J. Demary's Selma May, which has been assigned top weight of 111 pounds.

Happy Pilot Finally Wins.

In yesterday's feature race Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot scored his first victory of the meeting, beating Mikel and Elrod's Plaidloch by a neck at a mile and one-sixteenth. S. D. Sidell's Loch Ness was third in a field of six. Willie Gillespie was the winning jockey and his mount paid $3.40.

The daily double return was $204, based on victories by Mismark in the first, also ridden by Gillespie, and Pretty Bitter in the second. Mismark paid $11.60 and Pretty Bitter, with Walter Warren up, returned $33 for a $2 ticket.

RACING BOARD SUSPENDS FOUTS ON DOPE CHARGE

Trainer E. W. Fouts, whose horse, Big Bozo, won the first race at Sportsman's Park Nov. 2, was suspended indefinitely by the Illinois Racing board in a meeting yesterday. The action resulted from discovery, after the race, that benzadrine had been administered.

It was revealed at the hearing that Clement A. Nance, secretary of the commission; Dr. M. F. Kent, state veterinarian, and Al Meserow of the state's attorney's office, had visited Fouts' stable last Saturday and found syringes, medicines, patent remedies, and two batteries. Trainer Fouts did not disclaim ownership of the paraphernalia, but denied he had stimulated his horse.

Marion H. Van Berg, Columbus, Neb., owner of Big Bozo, saw his horse run but could throw no light on the first doping case of the Chicago racing season. A further hearing in the Fouts case will be held Nov. 21.

MAJ. ROKUSEK, '24 ILLINI CAPTAIN, OFFICIALLY DEAD

Maj. Frank E. Rokusek, 42, former star end at the University of Illinois and captain of the 1924 football team on which Red Grange played, has been declared legally dead by the war department, his wife, Alice, was notified yesterday at her home in Oak Park.

Rokusek and four other officers, members of the 3d air force, had been missing since Oct. 15 when their plane disappeared on a flight from Athens, Ga., to Tampa, Fla. The plane went down in the Gulf of Mexico, according to the war department.

Rokusek is survived by his widow and one son.

Paratrooper.

Below, a rendezvous with death may lie.
Like clutching hands from some abysmal hole.

There is no voice, no slightest bit of sound
To bring him courage, as he nears the ground.
What lies in wait? Do peering, watchful eyes
Detect his coming from the night-clothed skies?
What unknown terror lies in silence there,
To meet him as he floats down thru the air.

His anxious eyes probe downward toward the earth.
His comrades, shrouded from him by the night,
Perhaps know something of his nameless fright.

To face the unknown with a fearless mind.
Yet they, in alien skies, have proved their worth,
That peace may someday reign upon this earth. —Ray Medland.

ARMY COACHES WORRY ABOUT IRISH PASSES

Blaik Sings Praises of Dancewicz.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 9—Earl Blaik, coach of the United States Military academy eleven, currently rated the No. 1 team of the nation, hopes the weather man's prediction of rain and foggy weather for the week-end materializes.

Lt. Col. Blaik in Army's final preparation for its annual meeting with Notre Dame in Yankee stadium, today turned all his efforts to setting up a defense against the midwesterners' aerial attack. He is convinced, after watching Navy tear great holes in the Irish line, that the Cadet forwards will be more than a match for Notre Dame's. He is not sure, however, that Army's ack-ack can drive Frank Dancewicz, Joe Gasparella, and the other Notre Dame bombers from their targets.

Blaik Praises Dancewicz.

"Dancewicz is one of the finest college passers I ever have seen," Blaik said this afternoon. "In my book he's every bit as good as Angelo Bertelli. He and Bob Kelly could play in my No. 1 back field without question."

While Army was winding up many weeks of effort for its big test, the advance guard of the Notre Dame contingent was en route to New York. For the first time in many years the Irish will not spend the night before the game at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club in Rye. This time they'll put up at Bear Mountain. They'll get off at the same station tomorrow morning —Harmon—and Joe Byrne, who has been meeting the Notre Dame eleven at that spot since memory of man runneth not to the contrary, again will be on hand to greet the gridiron representatives of his alma mater.

O, For a Pair of Tickets.

Meanwhile thousands of disappointed New Yorkers are scurrying thru mid-Manhattan trying to locate a pair of tickets for football's most popular contest. All of Yankee stadium's 76,000 seats were sold weeks ago. Notre Dame's defeat by Navy in Baltimore last Saturday hasn't cooled the enthusiasm of the subway alumni, some of whom think that setback was only newspaper talk anyway.

Army comes up to the Notre game undefeated. It has piled up 360 points in less than 360 minutes of play. In two army contests the length of the quarters mercifully was reduced to spare opponents annihilation. It is shooting for a margin of victory greater than Navy's 32 to 13 count of last Saturday. It wants, too, to establish the highest total it ever has run up on the Irish, which now stands at 30, made by the 1916 eleven. From which you may gather that the Cadets are preparing to give Notre Dame "the full treatment." They haven't had a victory since 1931 and haven't scored a touchdown in their last six meetings with the South Benders.

Sensanbaugher Remains at Full.

Blaik said today he had decided to keep Dean Sensanbaugher, the former Ohio State star, at full back, where he operated for the first time against Villanova last week. He had played left half back previously. Sensanbaugher has replaced Bob Dobbs, brother of Lt. Glenn Dobbs, famous forward passer of the last two All-Star games. Army has been alternating two back fields. The one in which Sensanbaugher will operate includes Doug Kenna, a quarter back; Dale Hall, left half, and Max Minor, right half. The other is made up of Tom Lombardo, quarter back; Glenn Davis, left half; Dick Waterhouse, right half, and Felix Blanchard, full back.

One unit is about as effective as the other. The Sensanbaugher quartet is considered the No. 1 group, but the other one has done more scoring.

THREE IRISH CHANGES.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 9 [Special].—Three changes in the Notre Dame lineup were announced by Coach Ed McKeever this afternoon.

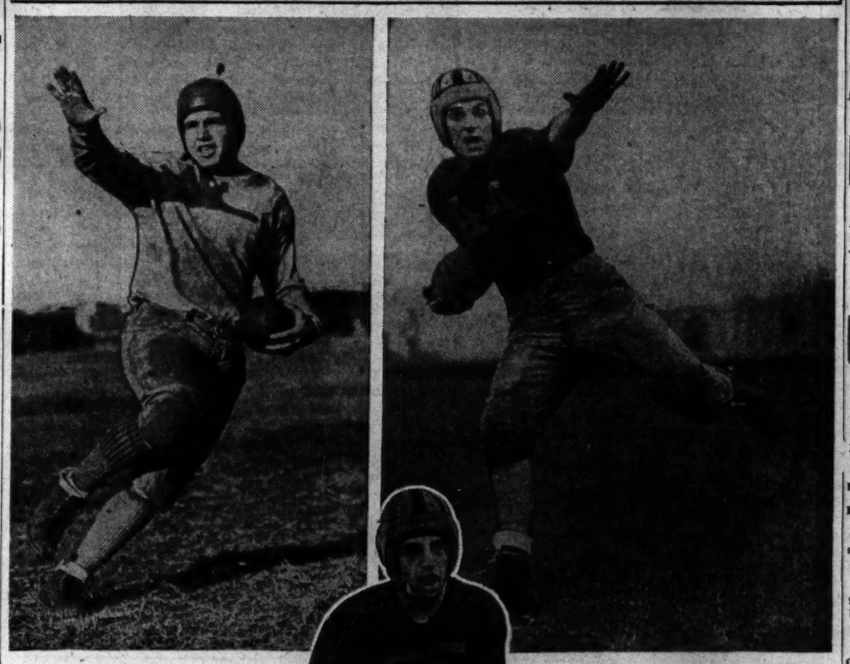
The V-12s who will leave tomorrow are:

Ends—Benigni, O'Connor, Skoglund, tackle—Sullivan; guard — Westenkirchner; center — Stewart; half backs—Marino, Chandler, Brennan; full backs—Wendell, McGurk.

BIDDING FOR A CITY LEAGUE FINAL BERTH



Bob Carlson, right half back, is one of Fenger's best ball carriers, altho he is not listed among the leading league scorers. Bob plans to set the stage for more than one Fenger touchdown tomorrow against Lane Tech.

Alex Cichanski will be in the right half back position for Lane Tech, opposite Carlson, when the prep elevens meet in Soldiers' field tomorrow in one of the two City league semi-final games.

MICHIGAN WORKS ON DEFENSE FOR ILLINOIS' SPEED

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 9.—The problem in football tactics this week for the Michigan squad and its coaches is: "Can we stop Buddy Young?"

The answer to this question will snuff out the championship hopes of either Illinois or Michigan Saturday afternoon. If the game is tied, it is likely both of these rivals, meeting for the 30th time since 1898, probably will be eliminated from the Big Nine race.

Young epitomizes the speed on which the Illini attack is founded. Perhaps, Buddy is no more valuable to his eleven than Paul Patterson, the left handed freshman passer, Jerry Cies, the blocking full back, or the veteran Don Greenwood, field general for the T formation, but Young, Big Nine and national collegiate sprint champion, has been the breakaway runner on sweeps directed at the defensive ends.

Defense Is Main Problem.

Because of Young, Coach Fritz Crisler and his aids, spent this morning mapping defensive strategy. Because of Young, the Michigan line and suporting backs have been drilled overtime this week.

"We still don't see how we can cope with his speed," Crisler admitted this afternoon. "The problem is complicated because we expect Eddie Bray will be ready for our game Saturday and Bray not only was good enough to be a regular last year but he was the No. 1 left half back this year until he was injured. With Bray available, Young can be used at either of the half back positions as he was when Illinois defeated Indiana.

"If Illinois continues to score as it has in all games except with Notre Dame," Crisler continued, "we doubt if our own attack can muster the winning points. We will miss Bob Wiese and Bob Nussbaumer. Don Lund and Ralph Chubb played splendidly last week at Pennsylvania, but Pennsylvania is not Illinois."

Illinois Line Is Heavier.

Michigan's line will be outweighed by the Illini forwards, but this has been true in all of Michigan's games this fall. Milan Lazetich, left tackle, has improved steadily until he may be compared to some of the better tackles of other campaigns. Michigan's guards, George Burg and Quentin Sickels, are noteworthy, and local observers speak highly of the defensive ability of the ends, Bruce Hilkene and Art Renner.

Michigan has Gene Derricotte, a youngster from Defiance, O., to lead its attack. Derricotte is by no means slow and he is even more difficult to bring down when tackled than Young. Derricotte has carried the ball 72 times this year and has gained 381 yards. Jack Wisenburger, a 6 footer weighing 180 pounds, has developed as a kicker and passer at the same position, and then there's Bill Culigan, who threw the two touchdown passes against the Seahawks.

Purdue Loses Ed Cody for N. U. Contest

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 9 [Special].—Any hope that Ed Cody, Purdue's hard hitting full back, might be able to rejoin the Boilermaker forces for the Northwestern game Saturday were abandoned this afternoon when the team physician provided a negative report on his knee injury.

Following the final hard drill of the week, Coach Cecil Isbell named a 35 man traveling squad which did not include Cody, who has been second only to Boris [Babe] Dimancheff in the yardage and scoring column. The Boilermakers will also be minus the services of George Mihal, No. 2 full back, who still is bothered with an injured side, and Isbell will be forced to start a reshuffled back field which will have freshmen, Stormont Pfohl, Bill Canfield, and Angelo Carnaghi, teaming up with Dimancheff, the only man still available from the first two back field combinations of 10 days ago.

Name Boilermaker Squad.

ENDS—Joe Collings, Charles French, Jerry Jankovic, Nate Laskin, Jack Morton, Harley Reagh.
TACKLES—Don Canfield, Pete Barbolak, Kenneth Glaesner, Tom Hughes, Pat O'Brien, Phil O'Reilly, Raymond Relf.
GUARDS—Edward Chrobot, Ralph Clymer, Morris Kaastad, George Krieger, Walter Lenczyk, Gordon Logan, Olin Lougheed, James McMillen, Kenneth Sloan.
CENTERS—James Lockwood, Carl Piscopink, Joe Winkler.
FULL BACKS—Boris Dimancheff, Raymond Gunkel.

BOB FUNDERBURG OUT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern university, who has been forced to do all manner of juggling with his young Wildcats thru most of the 1944 football campaign, yesterday was called upon for another feat of legerdemain after he learned that Bob Funderburg, his industrious full back, would be unable to play against Purdue when the Boilermakers invade Dyche stadium tomorrow afternoon.

The Waldorf switching maneuver found Frank [Red] Clawson, who has been the regular quarter back in most Northwestern games of this autumn, being moved to the full back role. Altho the assignment is a brand new one to the veteran redhead, Waldorf feels that he can fulfill it, seeing as how his older brother, Don, played a spot of full back for the Wildcats three years ago.

Hank Altpeter, the young man who confounded the Gopher defense with one touchdown run of 33 yards and an over-all performance of eight yards per carry, operated from right half in that game. Tomorrow he will have plenty of chance to run from the left half slot.

LANE HOPES THIS IS THE YEAR FOR KELLY BOWL BID

Coach Bob Koehler of Lane Tech is busying himself with plans to knock Fenger High school's undefeated and untied team out of the City league race.

Koehler has been drilling the north section champions for tomorrow's game in Soldiers' field, where Lane meets Fenger in a semi-final playoff contest. And Koehler, altho impressed with Fenger's powerhouse record, concedes nothing to the team that has been ranked with the best in the state, having amassed 288 points in eight games.

He would like to win tomorrow for a variety of reasons, chief of which is the Kelly bowl contest Dec. 2. The winner of the Fenger-Lane battle will meet the winner of the Austin-Tilden semi-final game for the championship of the City league and the right to meet the Catholic league champions.

Has Reason to Hope.

The Lane coach would like that Kelly bowl bid since Lane is the only one of this year's semi-finalists which never has appeared in the annual charity game. Koehler thinks this may be Lane's year.

Lane's record, outside of a practice game scoreless deadlock with Austin, west section champions, is perfect and Lane has one of the best defensive records in the city. Thus tomorrow's contest probably will resolve itself around whether the Lane line will be strong enough to hold down the Fenger high scoring units.

Did It Once Before.

Early in the season Fenger met a team supposedly having a strong defense and a squad that was rated to share in state honors. That was New Trier, Suburban league champions. Fenger, however, triumphed, 32 to 13.

Leading Fenger's offense in tomorrow's game will be two high scorers, Tim Madden and Pete Konyar. In six league games Madden has scored seven touchdowns and 15 extra points, while Konyar has scored eight touchdowns and one conversion.

Draw Up Catholic Plans.

The Lane offense probably will be led by Dick Berger, who has scored nine touchdowns and one extra point in six games.

Meanwhile, the Catholic league, other half of the Kelly bowl contestants, yesterday voted to play its championship game between Weber and Fenwick in Soldiers' field on Sunday, Nov. 19. If the game is a tie, the teams will meet again the following week; if that game also is a tie, the league will resort to the flip of a coin.

OLYMPIC GAMES RESUMPTION IN 1948 PLANNED

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—J. Sigfrid Edstrom of Stockholm, acting president of the International Olympic committee, told reporters today his organization was making tentative plans for resumption of the games in 1948.

No country at war may be host to the games and Edstrom, in the United States to attend an International Business Men's congress, listed Lausanne, Switzerland, and Stockholm as probable sites, with cities in Spain, Portugal, and Finland as possibilities.

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 9 (AP).—Rookies Harold Fraser and Russell Brayshaw coöperated to give the Blackhawks two goals tonight, one in the first period and one in the second, and that was the extent of the Chicago offensive as the Montreal Canadiens turned on the power to triumph, 9 to 2, in a National Hockey league game in the Forum. The one sided battle was witnessed by 11,275 paying patrons.

The powerful forward line of Elmer Lach, Toe Blake, Maurice Richard spearhead the Canadiens' attack tonight, accounting for two-thirds of the winners' goals. Richard led the scoring parade with three goals and two assists. Lach bagged two goals and had four assists while Blake chipped in with one marker and helped out on five others.

Hawks Start Strong.

The Hawks made a battle of it in the first half of the game, coming from behind twice after the Canadiens had gone ahead. After the visitors had tied the score for the second time, Richard slapped home the third Canadien goal midway thru the second period and the home guard was in charge the rest of the way.

Lach added another to make it 4 to 2 before the period closed and the Canadiens then ran wild in the third to count five times while the Hawks were held scoreless.

Two Chicago Stars Out.

Chicago played without the injured Mush March and Johnny Gottselig, while the Canadiens lacked the services of Defense Man Glen Harmon.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—New York's National Hockey league opener for the 1944-'45 season didn't produce anything new tonight as the Toronto Maple Leafs walloped the New York Rangers, 6 to 3, for their fifth successive victory and New York's fourth straight defeat. The game looked like one of last year's contests, to 15,234 fans.

BADGERS SHIFT BACK FIELD FOR IOWA INVASION

Jerry Thompson Replaces Earl Girard at Half.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 9 [Special].—A revamped University of Wisconsin back field will take the field Saturday when the Badgers face the University of Iowa here in the annual Dad's day game.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher revealed that Jerry Thompson would start at left half in place of injured Earl Girard. T. A. Cox will take over the full back spot and do the punting. Joe Campbell will be back at right half after a week of absence due to an injured shoulder and Allen Shafer will start at quarter.

MADIGAN IS PESSIMISTIC.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 9 [Special].—Final review of the defensive tactics and checking of assignments on offense occupied the Iowa football squad today. The Hawkeyes will leave for Wisconsin by car tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

"The players have shown a lot of fire all week after the tonic of victory over Nebraska," Coach Edward [Slip] Madigan said today. "We will operate, however, without two first team backs, John Stewart and Dick Woodard, and leg injuries continue to slow up Don Winslow and Bill Henskin, the tackles, and Jim Hansen, full back. I figure our chance to win is slim, but at least it's a chance."

Centers—Tower, Fisher and Horn.

GOPHERS BUILD PASS DEFENSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 9 [Special].—Minnesota has assembled the best pass defense it has been able to put together this year in an effort to knock down the aerials of Indiana's Bob Hoerpschemeyer here Saturday.

Vic Kulbitski has been switched from his right half back spot in the Gopher secondary to his old role as line backer; Merlin Kispert, a good pass defender, has been moved to the half back secondary, and Tommy Cates, who formerly worked at the left half back and full back positions, will be at right half back.

D'AMATO'S 645 JOINS BOWLING TRIAL LEADERS

Larry D'Amato, rolling games of 220, 231, and 194 for a total of 645, was the only bowler in the last week to bring about any changes among the leaders in the five establishments currently conducting trials for the fourth annual All-Star tournament. The final meet will be held from Dec. 2 thru 10 in the Auditorium service men's center by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America and the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

D'Amato's total displaced George Borg's 639 as pacemaker at Dominick De Vito's Park Manor Bowling center. Another change was the 630 with which John McMillan tied Ed Brosius and Ralph Edwards for fourth place.

714 Total Still Tops.

Ralph Olsen and Jack Samuelson of Bowling Lanes, 5221 Broadway, reported several revisions in their standings, altho Carl Berker's 672 still is tops. Newcomers to the select octet included Joe Czerwinski with a 667, thru games of 235, 185, and 247. Others to crowd into the Bowling Lanes eightsome were Dr. H. A. Hattstrom, 228, 253, 169 for 650; Ed Schlichting, 235, 202, 201, for 638, and Rudy Habetler, the Classic league star, whose 636 consisted of an unusual set of three 212 games.

Lloyd Wevang's Cascade center was the only one of the five qualifying stages wherein no changes were registered.

The only change at Rose bowl was by Joe Milazzo, who posted a 653 for fourth place. At Garden Recreation, operated by Lyman Bolger and Mike Hechinger, Dan Gullickson shot a 595 to take eighth place in the standings.

Trials Close Thursday.

The trials are open to every bowler at each of the five places, continuing thru 11:55 p. m. next Thursday, which will be the last time any entrant will be permitted to enter the three-game trials. Only requirements for entrance are the payment of $2 and bowling for each set of three games and the stipulation that no following three game set shall be bowled on the same pair of alleys as its predecessor.

After Thursday the top eight men in each of the five establishments will go into round robin competition on Nov. 18 and 19. In these each qualifier will meet his seven rivals in as many four-game blocks, all based on the Petersen point system. The leaders in the round robins will then become eligible for the main event in the Auditorium next month.

Purdue's 2d Sports Clinic Closes Today

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 9 (AP).—Recreation programs for small industries and for members of workers' families other than the wage earners themselves were approved today at the Purdue university industrial recreation clinic. The three-day meeting, second of its kind to be held under the direction of Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood, professor of industrial recreation at Purdue, will close tomorrow.

The proposal to organize an industrial sports conference as a governing body for intercompany competition first presented at last night's session, also received a lot of favorable comment.

May Start This Winter.

A number of concerns represented at the clinic, notably those with strong "varsity" teams, are very much interested in the plan. There is a possibility that the conference may be started, perhaps on a small scale, for the coming basketball season, tho some of the interested firms feel it cannot be developed fully until after the war.

The fact that an industry does not have a large employe personnel and space for a variety of athletic fields does not mean that there is not a need and a place for a workers' recreation program, Samuel Klein of St. Louis told the delegates today. Citing his own company, Mary Muffet, Inc., he said it occupies the seventh floor of a loft building, but a recreation program for the employees, all women, has been built up which includes swimming, tennis, horseback riding and a variety of handicraft classes.

Children Need Program Too.

E. Louise Burkle, personnel supervisor of women for the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, at Carney Point, N. J., stressed the importance of including the children of employes in a plant recreation schedule. Margaret Surissi of St. Louis suggested interesting beginners in such activities as music, as well as sports.

The clinic's annual banquet was held tonight in the Purdue Memorial union, with A. F. McAllister of Lafayette presiding. He is president of the Indiana Manufacturers' association, one of the three sponsors of the clinic, the others being the university and the LaFayette Chamber of Commerce.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Increase Forecast in Small Accounts.

Predicting that a volume of moderate sized and small estates would make up the bulk of future trust business, Albert W. Whittlesey, trust officer of the Pennsylvania company, Philadelphia, yesterday urged that the limit of investment funds in common trust funds be raised to $50,000 from the present ceiling of $25,000 which the federal reserve board places on each participating account.

"The broad investment diversification provided by common trust funds is the strongest argument for their establishment, as any moderate sized trust cannot hope to obtain such protection thru individual investment," he told the midcontinent trust conference in the Drake hotel. The meeting is sponsored by the trust division of the American Bankers association.

Tax Problems Discussed.

Aspects of the trust business and tax problems were discussed by other speakers, including Frederick A. Carroll, Boston, president of the A. B. A. trust division; G. Sidney Houston, manager of investment research for the First Bank Stock corporation, Mineapolis, and Dr. James C. Dolley, director of research and statistics for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

"The undeniable trend in this country is toward a concept of a broader distribution of wealth," Whittlesey said. "It would seem quite probable that individual income tax rates will remain sufficiently high as to make it quite difficult for individuals to amass the large fortunes on which the trust industry used to rely for its volume and profits.

"This whole tax question indicates that the future of our business will be one of a volume of moderate sized and small estates and it clearly points out the great desirability of having the federal reserve board approve an increase in the $25,000 limitation in order that accounts of somewhat larger size can get the benefits of diversified investment protection that is currently confined to merely the first $25,000 of these accounts."

Spread Administrative Cost.

He said one of the advantages of common trust funds was the fact that banks are enabled to invest larger amounts thru accumulation of the funds from many small estates, with the result that operating costs for each estate are reduced and administration is simplified with resulting benefits to the customer.

"The public should know that accumulated deposits and war bonds can be used as the starting point of estate programs and that war stimulated thriftiness can be continued by adding to the trusts that they can establish with trust companies operating common trust funds," he said.

Carroll said the ability to accumulate wealth, large or small, rests on free enterprise, and it, with the right of private ownership, is responsible for the successful growth of this country.

Warns Protection Is Needed.

"That ability must be protected against any direct or indirect effort, whether it be in the form of excess taxes, capital levy, or disguised in any ideology, the purpose of which means redistribution of wealth or its ultimate confiscation," he warned.

"The trust man sees a tremendous tax burden and he realizes that great taxes are essential now and may be for some time ahead, but he also sees that there ought to be and there will be a revision of our system of taxation. He knows that there cannot be a system of taxation which amounts to confiscation of wealth if our nation is to endure."

Discussing various proposals for post-war taxation, Houston said he supported the theory that heavy corporate income tax rates are not as harmful to the private enterprise system as are heavy individual income tax rates.

Urges Tax Revision.

"I firmly believe that, if the American way of life is to be preserved and the free enterprise system is again to furnish relatively full employment, we must have a tax system that will permit the individual to invest his savings in new and expanding enterprises and to enjoy the largest possible proportion of the fruits of his labor and investment," he said.

Dr. Dolley, discussing the post-war outlook on interest rates, said the future of rates was not so much a problem in economic analysis and appraisal as it was a matter of guessing at post-war government policy, and that in this field the opinion of one person is "about as good as that of another."

World Trade Conferences to Open Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rye, N. Y., Nov. 9.—The international business conference, described as the most ambitious nongovernmental meeting of its kind ever undertaken, will open in Rye tomorrow with 350 delegates and technical advisers attending from 51 allied and neutral countries.

Silas H. Strawn, who will attend meeting.

The elimination of obstacles to world trade and the creation of conditions under which international business may expand after the war were conference purposes outlined by the sponsoring organizations, the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Association of Manufacturers, and the National Foreign Trade council.

Most Public of Conferences.

They termed it one of the most publicly conducted of the international conferences that have grown out of the war, which have included the Bretton Woods monetary conference, the Dumbarton Oaks world security meeting, and the aviation conference in Chicago, all under government sponsorship.

Altho private meetings will be held for discussion of the eight major topics on the agenda—topics on which there is little agreement—debates open to the press will follow the closed meetings, it was announced.

Russia, which recalled its delegation to the Chicago aviation conference because of the presence of "fascist" nations, will be represented by M. M. Gousev, president of Amtorg. Argentina, which once accepted an invitation but backed out after President Roosevelt expressed "concern" over the growth of "Nazi-Fascist influences" in that country, has a delegation which distinguishes between its government and its private enterprise.

All Invitations Accepted.

France, Belgium and Italy also will be represented, as will all the other countries to which invitations were sent last July.

Each nation has been limited to six delegates. Henry F. Grady, president of the American President Lines, San Francisco, is chairman of the American delegation. Its other members are Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank; Curtis E. Calder, president of the American and Foreign Power company; Edward C. Riley, general manager of General Motors corporation's overseas division; Harper Sibley, Rochester, N. Y., industrialist, and George W. Wolf, president of the United States Steel Export company.

CARBORUNDUM WALKOUT IN 2D DAY; 500 ARE OUT

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—About 500 employes of the Carborundum company had stopped work today in a dispute over wage rates, United States Conciliation Commissioner Verne S. Follansbee said. CIO United Gas, Coke, and Chemical Workers were involved.

The walkout began yesterday in the Aloxite wheel department and spread to other departments. Follansbee said the strike has not interfered with production at the plant which manufactures abrasives and grinding wheels.

SEPTEMBER IMPORTS SMALLEST OF YEAR; EXPORTS ARE LIGHTER

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 (AP).—September imports were the smallest thus far this year and exports, both lend-lease and general, were little changed from August, the census bureau reported today.

Arrivals of merchandise in September were valued at 280 million dollars, about 15 per cent under the 1944 monthly average. No explanation was available because of war time restrictions on foreign trade data. Total value of imports for the first nine months was 2 billion 923 million, about 19 per cent above the corresponding period last year.

September exports were valued at 1 billion 199 million, which was 1 million under August and 16 per cent less than the record of 1 billion 422 million set last May. Total exports for the first nine months of 1944 were valued at 10 billion 817 million, highest January-September figure in history.

Lend-lease shipments account for 80 per cent of the export total, which does not include shipments to United States forces abroad.

WAR DEVELOPS U.S. OUTPUT OF PRECISION AIDS

Market for Foreign Tools Replaced.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

War time development, speeding up a trend that started earlier, has made the United States independent of foreign sources for scientific and precision optical instruments, manufacturers reported yesterday. It is unlikely the nation ever again will have to go abroad to obtain such equipment, they said.

Optical instruments are used, among others, by universities and schools, research laboratories, and tool and die makers, who produce precision machines employed by industry in mass production. Europe long dominated this business, which demands highly skilled craftsmen, but a start was made toward making America independent in this field during World War I.

Tariff Aids U. S. Industry.

Further progress was made between the two wars when a tariff was placed on this class of scientific equipment, enabling American manufacturers to compete with the lower cost European producers. Conditions imposed by World War II have largely reinforced this position.

Optical devices have hundreds of uses, including movie cameras, bomb sights, naval gun fire control instruments, airplane gunsights, astronomical instruments, and toolmakers' microscopes, as well as telescopes, microscopes, and geodetic instruments. Besides these practical uses they are indispensable in research, where they are employed to obtain exact measurements running to millionths of an inch.

War Gains Useful in Peace.

The United States was said to be virtually independent of other nations in optical instrument design and production under the exacting taskmaster—war. War has developed many specialized uses, some of which will have little value in peace. However, industry leaders said they are certain that specialized knowledge gained in optical science during the war will be carried over to the peace years and should disclose improvements in manufacturing procedures for many industries.

Newly developed optical instruments will make possible extremely high precision, both mechanically and optically, in manufacturing. New devices will enable workers in factories to work with closer tolerances, to turn out finer products. They will enable workers to see exactly what they are doing when engaged in delicate operations. It is believed more manufacturing will be done under optical magnifying glass.

Chicago is one of the important centers in the production of precision optical equipment and among the most widely known companies are the Gaertner Scientific corporation and the Bell & Howell company.

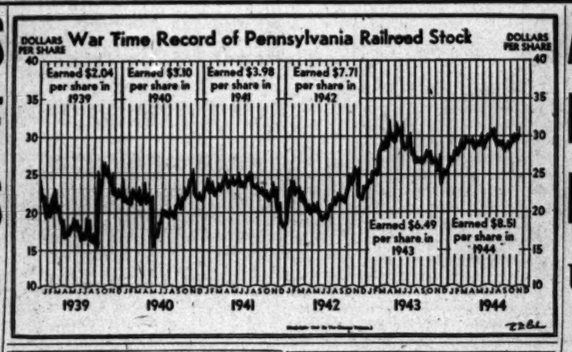
Gaertner Started Early.

William Gaertner, 80, rated as one of the top men in his field, yesterday recalled the humble start of his business in 1896. A few years earlier he had become acquainted with Prof. A. A. Michelson of the University of Chicago, one of the world's leading physicists, from whom he received both help and encouragement. He also received encouragement from other world known scientists, including Prof. S. P. Langley, noted for his aviation experiments.

Bell & Howell has long been a leader in motion picture camera manufacture and is a large war producer of optical equipment.

Engineering Construction Contract Awards Slump

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Engineering construction contract awards in the week ended today amounted to $8,805,000, compared with $32,393,000 in the preceding week and $62,972,000 in the corresponding 1943 week, Engineering News-Record reported today.



Rails, Planes Prominent in Stock Upturn

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Advancing aircrafts, rails, liquors, and specialties led the stock market higher today altho many prominent issues lacked recovery stimulation.

Earnings, dividends and business prospects supported some favorites. Aviations were assisted by longer war prospects, the recent large Boeing army plane order and expectations foreign demand for air liners would be heavy after victory. Expectations of possible generous year-end disbursements and indications of further heavy debt reductions supported carriers. Likelihood of another holiday for distillers to manufacture beverage alcohol lifted liquors.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 55.5. Of 869 issues traded, 439 advanced, 207 declined, and 223 were unchanged. Transfers were 851,100 shares compared with 732,330 yesterday.

BOND PRICES ADVANCE.

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—A rally in secondary rails provided a steady to firm operating base for the bond market today. Some more popular reorganization liens rose 1 to 2 points and Florida East Coast 5s made an extreme sprint of 4½ points to close at 58 on sales of $421,000.

Other good performers included bonds of the Milwaukee, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, North Western, Baltimore and Ohio, Central of New Jersey, Frisco and Erie.

CHICAGO SHARES HIGHER.

Prices were higher in increased turnover of 25,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among volume leaders were Middle West corporation, up ⅝; Chicago corporation and New York Central, each up ⅛.

177,689 COMMON GLEANER SHARES PUT ON MARKET

An offering of 177,689 shares of Gleaner Harvester corporation common stock at $18 a share will be made today by an underwriting group headed by F. Eberstadt & Co. These shares, which are not new financing, were acquired from Commercial Credit company, heretofore the largest holder of Gleaner stock, with 59 per cent of 300,000 common shares outstanding.

Servel, Inc., stockholders will be asked Dec. 18 to approve the creation and sale of 100,000 shares of cumulative preferred stock, the company said. Proceeds of the sale, estimated at about 6 million dollars, would be used to finance post-war expansion.

Stockholders of Pepsi-Cola company at a special meeting approved the change of capital stock from 2½ million $1 par value shares to 7½ million 33⅓ cents par shares.

C. & E. I. Board to Discuss Road's 10 Million of Debt

Discussion of the $10,153,000 debt of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad is expected to take place at a meeting of directors in the company offices today. It is reported that Holly Stover, new president, may ask the directors to rescind previous plans to retire $1,153,000 of Reconstruction Finance corporation obligations from treasury funds. Some directors are said to favor the refunding of the entire obligation.

People and Events

William H. Dana has been appointed chairman of the western traffic executive committee and of the western trunk line committee, rail rate compiling groups, to succeed the late Joseph A. Farmar, L. R. Capron, vice president of the Burlington road, and chairman of the advisory committees of the two organizations, announced yesterday. Dana for 26 years was with the freight traffic department of the Union Pacific and since 1932 has been with the transcontinental freight bureau. The change is effective Nov. 16.

Continental Casualty company announced that John A. Henry, attorney for Utica Mutual Insurance company since 1938, had been appointed counsel of the company to succeed John R. Peterson who resigned recently. Henry is a graduate of Amherst college and Albany [N. Y.] Law school. He was in general law practice in Albany and Utica, N. Y., before becoming associated with Utica Mutual.

The appointment of John W. Giles as assistant general solicitor of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company with headquarters in Cleveland, O., was announced by Robert W. Purcell, acting general counsel. Giles formerly was head of the legal department of International Minerals and Chemical corporation in Chicago.

W. I. Buchanan, Chicago branch manager of the Frigidaire division of General Motors corporation, announced the appointment of G. W. Trask as sales manager of commercial and air conditioning products, A. J. Pizza as sales manager of the national user products and ice-cream cabinet equipment, and C. W. Kirby as appliance sales manager.

HOG PRICES DIP 5 TO 10 CENTS ON BIGGER SUPPLY

Prices of new crop hogs which started to break late Tuesday fell 5 to 10 cents more yesterday at the stock yards as the fall movement of supplies to market widened. Farmers shipped in 19,000 hogs, including direct shipments to packers, the second largest volume since late July, but 22 per cent smaller than a year ago. Both the top and average prices declined 5 cents to $14.45 and $14.25 respectively.

Good to choice steers and yearlings were in demand at steady prices, but the supply quoted downward from $15.50 continued draggy and some were held over unsold. The lamb market was unchanged with the top at $14.40.

EXTRA 40 CENT DIVIDEND TO BE PAID BY PFIZER

Charles Pfizer & Co. yesterday declared an extra dividend of 40 cents a share with the regular quarterly disbursement of 35 cents. Payments in 1944 will be boosted to $2 by these dividends, compared with $1.65 a share a year ago.

Mojud Hosiery company, formerly Mock, Judson, Voehringer company, voted a year-end extra dividend of 15 cents a share on the $2.50 par common stock with a regular disbursement of 20 cents. Directors also authorized an initial quarterly payment of 62½ cents a share on the $50 par 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

AIR LINE PROFIT LIFTED BY BIG REVENUE GAINS

United Nets $1.43 a Share in Quarter.

Increases in the number of planes available, record highs in daily plane utilization and larger revenue loads per pound of plane boosted United Air Lines operating revenues in the third quarter of 1944, W. A. Patterson, president, said yesterday in releasing the company's quarterly statement. Operating revenues were $9,993,124, an increase of 31 per cent over the third quarter of 1943.

Additional improvement in utilization and load per plane pound factors should not be expected because maximum figures appear to have been reached, Patterson said. When the peak of war activities has been passed and additional flying equipment becomes available, a decline in payload percentages should be expected, he added.

Net Earnings Increase.

Increased operating revenues were reflected in higher earnings, $2,269,672 in the September quarter, equal to $1.43 a common share, against $1,151,741 or 77 cents a share a year earlier. Net income in the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $5,194,509, or $3.23 a share, compared with $3,305,141, or $2.20 a share, in the 1943 period.

Revenue passenger miles, mail ton miles, express ton miles and revenue plane miles increased substantially in the third quarter over a year ago, Patterson said.

He reported that the company had discontinued its domestic military transport service for the army air transport command and expected to terminate such military operations to Alaska on Nov. 15.

Packard Income Higher.

George T. Christopher, president and general manager of Packard Motor Car company, reported that war work in the first nine months of 1944 exceeding dollar output for all 1943 yielded the company net income of $3,280,130, equal to 22 cents a share, compared with $3,049,273, or 20 cents a share, in the 1943 period.

Shipments from Jan. 1 thru Sept. 30 of Packard-built Rolls-Royce engines for fighter planes and marine engines were 70 per cent ahead of last year, Christopher said.

Department Store Sales Increase in Last Week

Sales by Chicago department stores in the week ended Nov. 4 rose 7 per cent from year ago volume as did sales in the entire 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

Greece Fights Inflation with New Drachma

ATHENS, Nov. 9 (AP).—Greece, her paper money almost valueless as a result of inflation, will start all over again Saturday with a new drachma unit which will be stabilized at 600 to the British pound. That would mean the new currency, to be issued Nov. 11, would be worth nominally about 2/3 of an American cent, the same as in 1940.

[A London dispatch said the British gold sovereign (one pound in gold coin) would be valued in Greece at four times the paper pound, compared with the London price of just under two paper pounds for the sovereign. The higher rate was decided on because of the high prices prevailing for gold in Indian, Egyptian, and other markets.]

50 Billion Old for One New.

It will take 50 billion of the old drachma notes now in circulation to buy one of the new drachma. The government said gold and foreign exchange totaling 43 million British pounds sterling would be behind the new issue.

The new drachma will be interchangeable with British military authority pounds at the rate of 600 to one. By comparison, one would need 30 trillion of the now-discredited old drachmas to buy one British pound today.

Even Buses Quit Business.

The Greeks hope business will get back somewhere near normal. There was little activity today. Buses quit running. There just wasn't anyone who wanted any more of a currency which was so inflated it took up to 200 quadrillion to buy one British gold sovereign.

WPB EXPECTED TO SET LIQUOR 'HOLIDAY' TODAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 9 [Special].—Formal announcement of another "holiday" period, during which liquor distillers will be permitted to produce potable alcohol, is expected from the WPB tomorrow.

Convinced that the order will be issued, liquor interests predicted today that the industry would produce 48 to 50 million gallons of potable spirits if a month holiday from industrial alcohol production is granted. Last August distillers produced 13 million gallons of whisky and 40 million gallons of neutral spirits. Normal annual consumption is about 150 million gallons.

General Motors V-Loan Reduced to Half Billion

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—General Motors corporation has reduced the revolving bank credit that has been available under a V-loan agreement from 1 billion dollars to 500 million, Alfred P. Sloan, chairman, announced today. The reduction will be effective on Jan. 31.

KELLER LISTS NEEDS OF FAST RECONVERSION

Says Planning Can Cut Unemployment.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 9 [Special].—Warning that reconversion after war would present more problems for the automobile industry than had transition from peace to war output, K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler corporation, today outlined four steps essential in speeding the start of auto assembly lines when the war is won.

K. T. Keller.

1. Advance decisions should be made as to clearing plants. This requires coöperation between government and industry, the equal of anything done to obtain heavy war production. Government agents on the spot, authorized to act without referrals to Washington, could expedite this.

Asks Man Power Priority.

2. Machine tool production required for reconversion should be placed second only to new machines required for urgent military needs.

3. Industries which converted to war production should have first call on man power, available beyond military needs, to aid the work of reconversion. Manufacturers whose plants were torn apart and whose civilian production ceased should be permitted freely to undertake reconversion activities.

4. War time controls should be removed promptly as soon as actual reconversion begins. It is not possible to revise and reconcile for reconversion all the conflicting rules and regulations of the many government agencies now engaged piecemeal in handling various problems related to carrying on the war.

Urges Courageous Action.

Keller said that industry can do much to lead the nation in the return to a healthy peace.

"It needs to strike out bravely, to face squarely its own problems, to take swift and confident action, without reliance on government, without fear of government or of labor or of stockholders or of its critics," he declared.

He said that each man who heads a particular American productive company knows better than any one in government what needs to be done to put its plants to work on peace time goods.

Markets are a parade . . .

For Markets are people. They're born. They create new families. They get better jobs. They develop new interests. They move to new homes. They mature.

To sell to people, Markets, you must know them . . . know their preferences and prejudices . . . know the things that make them change . . . and how they change.

We don't like chance . . . we prefer knowing . . . particularly since we spend other people's money.

CORN PRICES DIP; RECEIPTS FLOOD BIG TERMINALS

Other Grain Futures End Mostly Lower.

Corn futures closed ⅝ to 1¼ cents lower yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as the result of weakness in the cash market and purchases of 600,000 bushels for deferred shipment from the country. This was the largest single day's country purchase since last January. About 2½ million bushels were received in Chicago in the last few days.

Weakness in corn had a softening effect on other grains, altho the deferred deliveries of wheat closed ⅝ cent higher. The near-by months were ⅛ to ¼ cent lower. Rye closed ⅛ to 1¼ cents lower, oats declined ⅝ to ⅝ cent, and barley finished ⅝ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher.

Low grade cash corn was quoted 2 to 5 cents lower and brokers said disposal of grain containing a high percentage of moisture was difficult. A car of sample grade white corn sold at 55 cents a bushel compared with a ceiling price of $1.31.

Brokers said the price break resulted not from lack of demand, but because receipts are larger than elevators and industries can handle immediately due to a shortage of labor. The same difficulties were reported in other markets, and some brokers predicted that the movement of corn to terminal markets would have to be regulated thru a permit system such as is being used to assure orderly marketing of the soybean crop.

May-July Wheat Spread Cut.

Buying of July wheat by shorts and to close spreads with May raised July about 1 cent in the early trading, but pressure increased when corn broke. The May-July wheat spread at one time was down to 10 cents a bushel compared with 13 cents several days ago. Shorts in July are concerned by the possibility the government support program may be extended into the 1945 crop year.

Trading in rye was fairly active, but a large part was by professional traders. Some support came from traders expecting government announcement shortly that distillers would be permitted to resume making beverage alcohol. However, with corn selling well below rye prices, some doubt that much rye would be used for alcohol.
